THE DAILY APPEAL.

SATURDAY MORNING, JANUARY 23, 1858.

☞ The Adams' Express Company has our thanks for late New York and Philadelphia papers.

☞ We are indebted to the fine New Orleans and Louisville passenger packet Empress, for our latest dates from the former city.

☞ We take pleasure in asking public attention to the card of Dr. T. F. Peyton. The Doctor is one of our oldest and most respected citizens, and stands deservedly high in his profession.

Bank Director — Marcus J. Wright, Esq., has received the appointment of Director of the Branch Bank of Tennessee, for Shelby county, vice J. R. Lane, resigned, to take effect on the 4th of February.

The Gayoso House.—In consequence of the extension of a portion of the furniture designed for the Gayoso House, it will not be opened on the 1st of February as heretofore announced. Everything is in a finishing condition and due notice will be given when it will be ready for the reception of visitors.

Ladies' Supper and Fair.—The ladies of Grace Church design having a Fair and Supper, at Odd Fellows' Hall, on Tuesday and Wednesday nights, the 26th and 27th instants. As the proceeds are to be applied to church purposes, we hope the ladies will be rewarded by a full attendance. Price of admission, 25 cents. On Wednesday they will set an elegant lunch, from 11 o'clock A.M., till 3 P.M.

Galvanism and Natural Philosophy.—Dr. Boynton gives his last lecture in Memphis to-night, at Odd Fellow's Hall, and brings out his immense Iron Galvanic Battery—said to be the only battery of the kind in the country. With this, he will burn the metals, illuminate the globe of water, illuminate the Niagara Falls painting, produce the Electric Light, &c. He will also repeat nearly all the experiments given last Tuesday evening to which so many failed to gain admission. Those who would not take a stander should go early. This is the last lecture of the Doctor in Memphis, as he leaves for New Orleans on Monday.

Newspapers.—Judge Longstreet, the newly elected President of the South Carolina College, thus sets forth the value of a newspaper: "Small is the sum that is required to patronize the newspaper, and most amply remunerated is the patron. I care not how humble and unpretending the gazette which he takes, it is next to impossible to fill it fifty-two times a year, without putting into it something that is worth the subscription price. Every parent whose son is off from home, at school, should supply him with a paper. I still remember what difference there was between those of my schoolmates who had, and those who had not access to newspapers. Other things being equal, the first were decidedly superior to the last, in debate and composition at least. The reason is plain, they have command of more facts! Youth will peruse a newspaper with delight, when they will read nothing else."

The Fire Ants.—We whiled away a few moments most pleasantly yesterday evening in the studio of Mrs. Virginia J. Sullivan, in the Marble Block of F. H. Clark & Co., inspecting the ornamental work of herself and pupils. Her specimens of Oriental Painting on glass, elicit general admiration. The first efforts of her pupils, both in painting and embroidery, evince an extraordinary talent in Mrs. Sullivan for imparting instruction, which she evidently possesses. She taught with great success last winter in New Orleans, and brings with her to Memphis the highest recommendations and testimonials. She follows her profession more from taste and inclination than from necessity, and is enthusiastic in her, hence her great excellence and proficiency. We advise the ladies of Memphis to pay her studio a visit, and examine her specimens, knowing as we do that they will be highly pleased even if not inclined to take lessons.

The Ladies' Concert.—Neither our beautiful belles, nor their gallant cavaliers, should forget that the event of the season, in the fashionable world, will be the Concert to come off at Odd Fellows' Hall on Monday evening next.

We heard a distinguished lecturer, who has visited all the principal cities of the Union, on his lecturing tours, recently remark that he has seen more intelligent faces among our men and more beauty among our women than in any other city that he has visited. The very pick of this beauty and intelligence will be at Odd Fellows' Hall on Monday evening at the Ladies' Concert, and they who wish to see Memphis, or rather the men and women of Memphis, in all their lustre and loveliness, in their full bloom and beauty, and they too who wish to hear some of the most glorious strains from our own home vocalists, will be sure to be there. Pass over every thing else, if you will, but go to the Ladies' Concert on Monday night next.

This Concert will be given for the benefit of St. Mary's Church.

Poems—By Mrs. Helen Truesdell. Eighth Edition. Cincinnati: Published by R. Morgan & Co.

The fair authoress of these poems is now in the city, and will wait on our citizens to dispose of copies to all who may wish to purchase. There is a simplicity and beauty in her lines which touch the heart and awaken the fancy. "A Legend of the South" is particularly pleasing and musical.

The authoress tells her own and story in the "Apostrophe to my husband," in a few affecting and poetical stanzas.

There is a purity and simplicity in these poems of the heart which are not very common in these days of poetasters, and we truly trust that Mrs. Truesdell will be successful in meeting a ready sale for them in the city.

Cerebral Lucitoria of Facts and Folks, from the Notes and Minutes of Mrs Betsy Thoughtfull. Recollections under the Frank Pierce Dynasty. By Mrs. R. Richards, author of Letters and Miscellanies. Price 50 cents.

This is the title of a spicy little volume, placed upon our table by the authoress, who is now in our city, offering it for sale. It is a mixture of fun, pathos, sentiment, sarcasm, politics, piety, &c., &c., and is altogether a most readable book. The press of the country generally, where the volume has been introduced, speak in high terms of it, as well as of the merits of the author, and her claims upon the public patronage. Stricken down by paralysis, she is compelled to rely upon her pen for support.

We might fill several columns with notices of the press, commendatory of this little volume, but deem it unnecessary to do so. It is well worth the price put upon it, fifty cents, and we feel that we cannot do better than to ask all, who are disposed to do a charitable act to a helpless and homeless invalid, to repair to the Wharfboat Hotel and purchase a copy. Miss Eleanay (L. M. J.) will remain there for a few days with the view of disposing of the remaining volumes on hand.

☞ The committee on improvements of this city are requested to meet at the Council room this morning, at 9 o'clock, as business of importance is to be transacted.

Daniel Hughes, Chairman.

Memphis, January 23, 1858.—1t

☞ It is said that a worthy minister in Indiana, who had become somewhat mixed up in land speculation, recently announced to his congregation at the opening of divine service, that his text would be found in "Paul's epistle to the Corinthians section four, range three, West."

Memphis, January 23, 1858.

Messrs. Stutson, Wright & Co.—Your Burning Fluid is the most convenient set of coloms in the world, for make the understandings of men earchist study, adorning that which is good, and publish truth (our) all our energie to (end) the sufferings of the country, the mind and the business'd.

To whom facts, we the Journeyman Boot and Shoemakers, of Memphis, respectfully inform the citizens thereof that, through the pressure of the times and the times, we thought proper to make ourselves into a society for the benefit and comfort of our trade, and as labor is the poor man's capital, we, as men, demand a fair remuneration for that labor. We expected to be opposed in our plan of intelligence and not more than we expected, and from those whose limited means might be a check on their liberality, for to them our thanks are due for the general and manly manner in which they accepted our terms, and in justice to them, we will give the terms to the public, that the public may know where the fault lies if a shoe can be got, in where the best workmen are employed, viz:

GEORGE CARSWELL, Shelby Street.
M. APP.
HENRY FERGUSON, Main Street.
SAM SHEPHERD, Jefferson.
D. BURKE, Washington Street.
A. G. HUSTON, Front Row.
J. C. SMITH, Main Street.
HOWARD TREMENT, Main Street.
H. GOBS, Front Row.
GEORGE TAYLOR, Poplar Street.

The above is published knowing we recommend to the patrons of the public.

We know that in a trade like ours there may be some hard jobs, and in our trade is Harder. Who like a Miller, would stand to be imposed, but to (Linkbear) this our patronage with them, we do, we are never shall, unless by a complaint to our friends.

Signed on behalf of the Journeyman Boot and Shoemakers.

J. M. HINNEY, President.
J. S. SENLER, Vice President.
Patrick O'Connell, Secretary.

☞ New Orleans, Vicksburg, Nashville and St. Louis papers to-day.

River Matters.

The river here is still slowly receding, but will doubtless soon come to a stand, as the upper streams are all reported as full or swelling. The weather continues warm and pleasant, with more than a slight prospect of rain very soon. Business at the landing was rather dull on yesterday. The Hill took out about 1200 bales of cotton for New Orleans, and the Southerner 260 for Louisville. The Kate Frisbee took out quite a fair trip of way business, with a good list of passengers. The new line to Vicksburg, composed of the Frisbee and Boone, is, we are happy to state, succeeding remarkably well, all things considered.

The regular packet departures yesterday were, the Kate Frisbee, for Vicksburg, at 2 o'clock; the Southerner, for Louisville, at 5 o'clock; the Comet, for St. Francis river, at 2 o'clock, and the Hill, for New Orleans, at 6 o'clock P. M.

The fine steamer City of Huntsville, Capt. Weaver, will leave for Nashville at 2 o'clock this day. This boat has superior passenger accomodations, and all persons bound up stream should secure berths at once. Be early on board as she leaves punctually at the hour.

Capt. Riley Jones' packet Return, is at the landing receiving freight for White river. She leaves at 6 o'clock this evening. A fine boat, attentive officers and the best of cheer on board.

The Nebraska came up yesterday morning, and, after discharging a quantity of freight, proceeded to Cairo, from whence she will return to-morrow evening and leave here at her regular hour on Monday night. She will have a receiving clerk at the wharf to-day, who will receipt for cotton and other freight that may be sent down.

The Winchester, which has just entered the Memphis and Napoleon trade, will leave on her second trip this day at 2 o'clock, P. M.

The Joan of Arc, Capt. Dearing, will leave at 3 o'clock this evening for Hatchie river, in which trade she will remain during the entire season.

The magnificent steamer Eclipse, is tied up at New Orleans, and will not, probably, make another trip for some time.

As Old Maid's Manœuvers for a Husband—A Home-made Farce in One Act.—Esquire Marchant's office was full of people, a day or two ago, at a trial of a somewhat peculiar nature, in which an antiquated maid—Miss Amanda Carroll—brought suit against a girl about seventeen, for assault and battery. The unwedded Amanda asserted that the girl—Julia Gray—had, without the least provocation, scratched her face, torn out her hair by handfuls, and struck her repeatedly with a broom. The affiant's face exhibited marks of rough treatment, and, when she was detailing her wrongs the fair defendant was moved to tears—generating the supposition that she was touched by remorse, and pitied the elderly female whom she had so deeply injured. The Magistrate and witnesses seemed surprised at the termagant nature of the girl, who really looked more aimed against than sinning, and wondered that so pleasing an exterior could hide so much ill temper.

At the bottom of this case, as in most where women quarrel, was a two-legged animal, without feathers—as Plato once described—a bifurcated-garment-wearing animal, yclept a man. He had been summoned as a witness; his name was Isaac Creach; his occupation that of a finisher; his place of business a foundry, on Front-street. His statement, which threw new light upon the case, was, that he had been calling at a house on Congress-street, to see Julia, of whom he confessed himself enamored at first sight. After having made her several agreeable visits, he was told by Miss Amanda—whom he then beheld for the first time—that Miss Julia had gone to the country. Isaac was about to retire, when she insisted so pertinaciously upon his coming in that he could not refuse. The venerable relict in curls and calico endeavored to play the sentimental, but succeeded most abominably. The young mechanic was bored to death for two mortal hours. He did not return for a fortnight, but again met the dragon guarding the golden apples of the Hesperides, which golden apples were, of course, his dulcinea. Julia was denied once more—had gone to the country again. Another call, with a like result. Julia had become, to all appearances, a thing of air; not tangible to sense, however desiring.

The impassioned courier despaired of seeing the "apple of his eye," when he was fortunate enough to meet her one morning in the street. She upbraided him for not calling; confessed she liked him, and—for the rest, see or remember, if you can, reader, all the female conversations, under such circumstances, from Eve's down to the present time.

Isaac now perceived the Ptolemaic female had had designs upon him; had endeavored to thrust her dry and osseous self into the niche the soft and tender Julia had so charmingly filled.

He promised to call once again, and be no more alarmed by this hydra of starch and wrinkles. He did call one bright night of this, our delicious winter. The representative of Thebes and Tyre was there, and asserted, as usual, the absence of the charmer. But the charmer had been listening without; the dragon heard her step in the next room, and disappeared therein immediately, to prevent her appearance. Amanda, the antique, endeavored to restrain Julia from seeing her lover; but she would not be restrained, she struggled manfully. The venerable caught her about the waist and held her; the girl screamed and pushed the dragon violently, who fell into a corner where some plants were standing, and scratched like a cat. Up rose the dragon with a frightful mein, and would have annihilated the petite Julia, had not the lover appeared and caused a cessation of hostilities.

Upon this ground, as well as "this here in Denmark," the dessendant of the Pharaohs brought suit.

The Magistrate wished to avoid, he said, wounding the feelings of old age—the dragon shot lightning upon him—but he must say Miss Amanda had erred grievously in a social though not legal way. Julia had done nothing wrong, and if any one merited punishment, it was the feminine pyramid who had unjustly restrained the girl from seeing her lover.

The case was dismissed and its expenses charged to the unwilling virgin. When the left the Court, she glared upon the Magistrate with a hate so deadly that one would have thought she designed marrying him. She said nothing, but hers was the anger and the grief that have no voice: their very silence, like the fiercest poisons, sought to kill at once, and the victim was—Cincinnati Enquirer.

☞ All persons indebted to the late firm of L. Vest & Co., are requested to come forward and make payments as early in January as possible. Mr. Vest will continue with me, and assist in winding up the business for the present. [dec30-tf] B. GRAHAM.

A Great Medicine for Females.

Hundreds of attributants have been invented and sold, purporting to be remedies for the various diseases and derangements to which the delicate form of woman render her subject. The result of all these attributants has been to impart momentary activity to the nervous system, and false vigor to the muscles; but this relief has been succeeded by a depression and prostration greater than before; and the repeated attempts of invalids to build up themselves up by means of these spurious articles, and in designing what little vital organization was left, put in using "Hembaye's Holland Bitters" you will find no such disastrous results. It is a purely vegetable compound, prepared on strictly scientific principles, after the manner of the celebrated Holland Professor, Boerhave. Under its influence every nerve and muscle receives new strength and vigor, appetite and digestion, and, finally, perfect health.—See advertisement in another column.

Monetary and Financial.

Memphis Daily Appeal Office, Saturday, January 22, 1858.

Monetary.—The weekly statement of the New York banks of the last week, show an increase of loans of $651,000; an increase of specie of $731,000; a decrease of circulation of $206,000, and an increase of nominal deposits of $1,849,000.

The banks there have drawn on hand the unprecedented sum of over thirty millions two hundred thousand dollars.

We add the following to the New York Tribune under date of Thursday evening:

The Providence banks, and probably all the banks of Rhode Island, resumed payment of balances among themselves yesterday, and pay a limited specie payment, but they have not yet resumed their redemption arrangement with the Suffolk Bank, Boston, and consequently their notes are not received at the Metropolitan Bank, in this city.

WORCESTER, May, '51
"Tell LEA & PERRINS that their SAUCE is highly esteemed in India, and is my opinion the most palatable as well as the most wholesome Sauce that is made."

The only Medal awarded by the Jury of the New York Exhibition for Foreign Sauces, was obtained by LEA & PERRINS for their WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE, the world wide fame of which having led to numerous imitations, purchasers are earnestly requested to see that the names of "LEA & PERRINS" are impressed upon the Bottle and Stopper, and printed upon the labels.
