THE DAILY APPEAL.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 15, '56.

LOST.—A reward is offered in the advertising columns for a lost dog.

☞ The Metropolitan Saloon produced the first mint julops of the season, yesterday, with a sample of which they furnished this office.

PUBLIC WORSHIP.—The three Episcopal Churches in this city have made arrangements for each one to hold a service two mornings in the week, on different days, so that there will be a daily service among the three.

THE WEATHER.—The weather just now is a topic we feel unable to do justice to, we therefore quote a terse and correct description from the Cincinnati Times: "The weather persists in being disagreeable."

☞ We are indebted to Mr. J. B. SHARPE, Front Row, for a sample of excellent chewing tobacco. As our readers are aware Mr. S. is a wholesale dealer in all brands of Virginia and Kentucky tobacco.

RAN OFF.—Two vagrants on the chain-gang, whose names are WILSON and LEONARD, escaped from the calaboose yesterday, by getting loose the foolish padlock at the door. Their absence is welcome if they will continue absent.

THERMAL.—On Monday Dr. TUCK's thermometer stood at 7 A. M., 32, the freezing point; at 2 P. M., 54; at 9 P. M., 49. Yesterday, at 7 A. M., 51; at 2 P. M., 57. The lowest point yet reached during this month was on Friday last, when the mercury was down to 26 degrees.

A CAUTION.—Persons taking letters to the post office should be careful to put them into the box. We saw a package yesterday of two or three letters, lost half in and half out of the box, so that any of the mean people loafing about might readily have taken them and appropriated their contents.

WEEKLY APPEAL.—This publication day for this mammoth sheet, which contains the President's Message, the Speech of Hon. W. T. AVERY on the Kansas question, the Address of Hon. FRED P. STANTON, Proceedings of the Tennessee Legislature, Mississippi and Arkansas Intelligence, interesting Editorials and a large amount of Miscellaneous Reading, &c. Copies of it can be had at our office, with or without wrappers, for 10 cents each.

CHARGE TO THE GRAND JURY.—Our neighbor of the Avalanche kindly furnished us with a copy of the able charge of EDWARD PICKETT, Esq., to the Grand Jury, on the opening of the Criminal Court on Monday. We regretted that the press of matter on our columns, together with the late hour at which it was received, precluded its publication. At the same time, we must congratulate our friend upon the clearness, ability and dignity of the charge.

CRIMINAL COURT.—The business at this Court yesterday was entirely preliminary. The prosecuting attorney declined to prosecute some 150 or 200 cases of misdemeanor, principally cases of gaming and of selling liquor in quantities less than a quart. The cases of Jno. S. CARSON and W. E. CASPAR, charged with passing counterfeit money, were set for next Friday two weeks. After several substitutions, the Grand Jury finally comprised the following gentlemen: W. R. DUNCAN, Foreman, E. M. APPERSON, T. C. BUTLER, JOHN S. LOGAN, R. BREWSTER, JACOB RUDERMAN, L. C. NORVELL, W. H. SEARBOROUGH, S. M. WEBB, N. S. BRUCE, JAS. HANNA, W. J. PERWITT, GEO. BROEKS, and O. C. JONES.

AN EXPERIMENT.—The street opposite our office, though gravelled, has been little better, since the advent of the plague of mud, than streets that have remained in the state of bare mother earth. A suspicion having entered certain minds, which had been rendered reflective upon problems, respecting the condition of the lower strata of the earth by the recent geological lectures of Dr. BOWMAN, that a celebrated saying of a celebrated individual of former times might prove true, they decided on a certain geological experiment. The saving alluded to is found in a well known ballad, one line of which records:

"There's ground at the bottom, said Bryan O'Lynn."

Suspecting, therefore, the scientific probability that there might be "ground at the bottom" of the mud on Madison street, the experimenters called in the aid of Capt. REESE and his company of chain gang volunteers, to remove the redundant mud, jocosely considered by geologists to be a portion of the upper crust of the earth, when everybody knows that it is too moist to be crusty, and too much trampled upon to be "upper crust." The experiment of removal went on all yesterday and ended in the triumphant demonstration that there was ground at the bottom, to the joy of "vehicular," who are ready to join in the grateful sentiment expressed in a well known couplet:

"If you'd seen these here roads
Before they was made,
You'd lift up your hands
And bless Marshal Wade."

LADIES' CONCERT.—A proof how much the former Ladies' Concert had gratified the public was seen last night, an audience being present that fully filled two-thirds of the Odd-Fellows' Hall concert room, though darkness, mud and drizzle made locomotion out of doors extremely unpleasant. We have pleasure, mingled with pride, in saying that the brilliant performance of last night amply repaid those who had braved the disagreeables of the weather to drink in, with greedy and gratified ear, "harmony, heavenly harmony." It is with peculiar pride we note the excellence of the performance, taken as a whole, for the performers were citizens of Memphis.

As is usually the case in amateur performances, there were instances where courage faltered, giving indecision to tones that were sweet and to touches that were expressive. The principal difficulty among the performers arose from the difference between singing or playing in a parlor, and in a large concert room; this was a mere circumstance, however, and probably was little noticed. We allude to these trivial drawbacks, rather that it may be understood that we are giving merited praise, not paying unmeaning compliments, than from any very obvious appearance of the slight faults we have noticed.

Among the pieces we notice the trio, D'un pensiero, as especially remarkable for just and artistic execution. It excited great admiration among the professionals present. Aucilot gai le lamiere, upon the harp, was brilliant and dashing, with a sweet lingering of the pensieroso in the mellow chords. It was loudly and deservedly applauded. The lady who sung "Sweetly o'er my Senses Stealing," fascinated and won the audience by her absolute—her absorbed earnestness in the sweet notes that flowed soft and liquid from her lips into the entranced souls of her listeners. Nocturne, on the piano, excited admiration, by the brilliancy of touch and the entire command over her instrument, manifested by the fair performer. It was one of those skillful efforts that show to the utmost the powers of the instrument in expression. The piece was no mere outline, but delicious harmony poured its full tide, soft and gentle as the flowing of the brook, but rich and complete, mirroring to the soul bright and varied images, as the water returns, softened to the eye, the reflection of sunset's gorgeously tinted clouds.

We are lingering to express our enjoyment, and that of the audience, during the first half of the concert, (the only part our engagements would permit us to remain and hear,) until our space is nearly exhausted, but we must not close without a brief notice of one gem, BERIOT'S 6th Air Varié, executed on the violin by Prof. HOLLENBERG. Here we must pause a moment to commend the excellent performance on the piano of Prof KATZENBACH; his accompaniment in this piece, especially, was a brilliant and finished specimen of musical ability. HOLLENBERG held his audience wrapped, enchanted, absorbed by his expressive and gushing strains. The music, now complaining and wailing, now breaking out into fantastic glee, now bounding onward with firm and conquering step, was finely rendered. This gentleman has merits of no common order. He appreciates the music of his master and, with true German ardor, draws from its inmost depths, and reveals with shadowy outline, its less obvious but more profound expression. His instrument he is well acquainted with; a masterly and easy hand and a free, decisive bow, enable him to bring out whatever of sweetness and power it possesses. The 6th Air Varie was a splendid addition to the concert.

In conclusion we cannot help but express a hope that this is not the last amateur concert we are to be favored with. We have "reasons plenty as blackberries" why it should not be, but we now need only urge that, owing to the bad weather, one-third of those who would have been present, but whose state of health, or the distance of their residences made it impossible to attend, want to participate in the enjoyment they have brard so much and so enthusiastically of. Their contributions should not be lost to the object for which these delightful concerts have been given.

Since writing the above we learn, with no little pleasure, that the concert will be repeated on Friday night.

Monetary and Financial.

MEMPHIS DAILY APPEAL OFFICE, WEDNESDAY, February 13, 1856.

CINCINNATI.—From the Enquirer of February 6: Money exchanges were rather easier yesterday. The demand for New Orleans exchange was active, and the prices were inclined to be in favor of the buyer. The supply was very limited, and the required amount could not be furnished. This demand is an indication that currency is coming from the country, as our grocers remain convert any receipts of funds that may accrue into New Orleans exchange. The monetary market is generally easy, and the current business are accommodated at the above exchanges to a full extent. In the street little good paper can be found, but the little there is, is discounted at rates at about 18 per cent. Gold is heavy at ¼ and ½ prem.

CHICAGO.—From the Times, February 6: Money is scarce and rather difficult to obtain even on the best paper. Loans and discounts are made sparingly, however, at 2@3 ⅌ cent a month. Eastern exchange is firm at ⅛ ⅌ cent, and sold for cash.
