Hotels---Hotels.

COMMERCIAL HOTEL!
THE undersigned has the pleasure to announce to the public that he has this day become the proprietor, and has taken charge of that popular and well known house, the COMMERCIAL HOTEL, Memphis, Tenn. The office is under the charge of Mr. M. M. TYLER, late proprietor of the Bronson House, Grand Rapids, Mich., one of the most thoroughly and accomplished business men in the South, assisted by Mr. JOHN C. McALISTER, formerly of Jackson, Miss., as Book Keeper and Cashier. In that department Mr. McAlister has had experience. Mr. J. A. BRADLEY, late of Natchez, Miss., is Assistant Clerk and general Collector. The catering department is under the management of Mr. WILLIAM ROGAN, late of Vicksburg, Miss., long and well known as a Confectioner, and for several years Proprietor of the Washington Hotel in Vicksburg. Suffice it to say that in his department Mr. Rogan has no superior. Mr. CHARLES FAIRBROTHER, for fifteen years Superintendent of the dining room in some of the first class Hotels in the United States, will be his Assistant. The house keeping department is under the charge of Mrs. S. A. TYLER, a most distant and accomplished lady. The Commercial Hotel is situated on Jefferson street, and fronting the Great Father of Waters, surrounded by the largest and heaviest commission, produce and dry goods houses in the city. Hacks and Omnibuses will at all times and at all hours, both day and night, be ready to convey travellers and passengers to and from the river and Railroad Depots. The Railroad Ticket office, and the Telegraph office are both kept in the Commercial Hotel. The proprietor being thus surrounded by such an able and competent corps of assistants, flatters himself that he can give every personal satisfaction. In a word, he will hurry up the cakes, as hand round the tools. He will give you the ham and the lean, the jolly and the fat, in the true Old Kentucky style, all in—be it the world. He solicits a very liberal share of public patronage. G. D. MITCHELL,
Proprietor Commercial Hotel, Memphis, Tenn.
