THE APPEAL.

LOVE LAUNCHED A LITTLE CRAFT.

"Love launched a gallant little craft" is a ship-shape little poem, with a sub-stratum of good philosophy:

Love launched a gallant little craft,
Complete with every rope,
Its golden words was painted aft:
"The Cupid, Captain Hope

Firmness was rated second mate,
And Patience made to steer;
The guns were handed o'er to Fate,
To Impulse, sailing-gear.

Merrily roved the thoughtless crew
Amid the billows' smile;
But soon a sail here down—all knew
'Twas Captain Reason's "Life."

And Firmness fell, though Patience said
He'd guard her safe through all hazards,
'Twas vain, for Fate rammed him—the lead,
While Love prepared the small arms.

A storm arose; the canvas now
Swamped from Impulse's boat,
While boisterous Passion dashed the prow
Right on a rocky strand.

"All's lost!" each trembling sailor cried,
"But Captain Reason!"
But in her life-boat Reason had
To save the silly crew.

Immense the torrents overwhelm,
But Pleasure's rapid from wreck,
Love, bidding Reason take the helm,
Claimed Passion to the deck.

"I thought you were my foe! but now,"
Said Love, "we'll sail together!
Storms, beneath which single life shall then
My pilot be forever."

A Daguerreotype of Society in Charleston.

"BELLE BRITTAN," who is making a tour of the country, West and South, had got as far round as Charleston when we last heard from him! and to the New Orleans Picayune sent a daguerreotype of society in Charleston, and how he was pleased with a trip to the rice plantation of General GARDEN, our late Minister to Mexico, and the negotiator of Ashburton. He says of Charleston:

The planters and the merchants take things easy, and their wives and daughters still more so. Nobody seems to be in a hurry to go to bed, or to get up, or to go to work. Time is not counted as money, and days and minutes are not coined into dollars and cents. It is, emphatically, a slow city—slow in its growth, slow in its movements, slow in its hotels, slow in its men, slow in its women, slow in its wines. Nobody gets run over in its streets, nobody gets "run down" in its newspapers. The busiest gentleman finds time to lunch and lounge at the "club," and the ladies an infinite deal of leisure to drive or saunter in the streets, and to indulge their idlest caprices at home. In a word, the Charlestonians seem to take things very coolly, and never suffer themselves to get into a vulgar perspiration, except on the subject of politics.

Of his trip to the rice fields lying on Cooper river, some twenty-five miles from the city, being accompanied by the venerable statesman, he says:

We left in the cars at three o'clock, and in an hour reached the depot upon the estate, where a carriage waited to take us some four miles to the mansion of the proprietor. Just here the venerable and excellent General Gadsden, whose name is honorably associated with the treaty which settled all the difficulties between the United States and Mexico, lives like a fine old southern gentleman, all of the good old time. A long and gracefully curving avenue of fine oaks leads to the fine, large house, built some twenty years ago to please a Boston bride, with a beautiful lawn in front and a rich kitchen garden in the rear—the one giving a sweet and smiling welcome, and the other abundant assurance of more substantial cheer.

After breakfast we drove to the rice fields, and then walked round them, a distance of some three miles, to witness the system of planting. General Gadsden's estate consists of nearly twenty-five hundred acres, but only a small portion of it is suitable for the cultivation of rice. These grounds border on the river, and must be overflowed as soon as planted, and then drained off before the crop is ripened. They are as flat and as level as a prairie, and it needs no argument to prove that none but negroes can live in working them. The African, like the black snake, is supposed to be native to all the malarious trenches, lightly covered with earth. The sowing and all the lightest work is done by the women, although they are said to be better hoers than the men.

Upon this estate there are two hundred slaves, all looking well-fed, well-clothed and well-contented with their lot. In passing the "nursery," a sore sixty little black-birds came out in a group to see and sing to us. They were from twelve years old down to, perhaps, as many days, and all the older ones held younger ones in their arms. It was a picture of sable infantry worth seeing, and hearing, too; for the way they sang about "Sweet Canaan" and other heavenly hopes and home would have done credit to an upper-ten Sunday-school in the most aristocratic church in Fifth-avenue. The "belle" of the plantation, whose name I forget, seemed to have caught my eye in the rice field, is one of the finest figures in ebony I have ever seen. I was not surprised to learn that she was the best dancer on the plantation, for that she was married. The way she walks, poises and pirouettes is a caution to susceptible darkies.

There is one veteran slave among them, who was imported from Africa before the closing of the traffic in 1808. He is so old as to have lost his reckoning, but, being a Mandingo, he recently taken to his leathery bosom a youthful bride from a neighboring plantation," and is abundantly blessed with the pride of his old age." Uncle Ned is a character, and a pet of the plantation. He is mostly employed in pattering about the garden. He is much addicted to the "weed," and does not object to good whisky. On receiving a glass from the hand of his master, and being called to drink the health of the company, he proceeded to toast each person present with sentiments and manners worthy of a courtier.

The dwellings occupied by the slaves are quite comfortable. They all have gardens attached to their houses, where they raise poultry and vegetables, which they sell to their masters or take to the nearest market, and spend the proceeds, usually, for articles of dress. Their work is mostly laid out in "tasks," and the industrious and active get through their labor early in the day, often by 12 o'clock; or, if they persevere, get through their weeks work by Thursday or Friday, when the balance of the time is entirely at their own disposal. They have a chapel for their own use, which, on Sundays, is filled with a well dressed and most devout congregation, to whom a white Baptist or Methodist minister delivers pious exhortations.

VACCINATION WITH A MAGNETISED NEEDLE. Professor Gows states that since 1836, hundreds of children have been thus vaccinated, with scarcely any failures occurring. The point of the needle is well saturated with the magnetic fluid before practicing the vaccination. It is quite surprising to observe the rapidity with which the vaccine virus is absorbed, when the needle is thus prepared.—London Illustrated News.

NEW DODGE.—The Black Republicans of Philadelphia got up a new dodge the other day, by calling a meeting "of the friends of Henry Clay and popular sovereignty, for all citizens, and all opposed to the present Administration," to be held there on the anniversary birth-day of the immortal statesman. Among the speakers advertised to be on hand, were Crittenden and Humphrey Marshall, of Kentucky, and Seward of New York. Pacific fraternal!

SERIOUS CHARGE.—Isaac Jourdan, a planter who resides at Carthage, Mississippi, was brought to the city on Tuesday, by Lieut. Hunt, who arrested him at that place, in our neighboring State, by virtue of the Governor's warrant. Jourdan is accused of having obtained $7,000 by false representations from Messrs. Wallace & Rubio, of Carondelet street. We believe the pretence was the unfulfilled promise to ship certain cotton to New Orleans in consideration of the advances made to him.—N. O. True Delta.

We learn from the Chickasaw and Choctaw Herald, of the 4th ult., that Mr. Jas. Pickens was killed by Mr. A. V. Brown, near Tishimingo. It is supposed Mr. Brown mistook Mr. Pickens for the other man. In the same paper of the 26th ult., we notice that Gov. Harris, of the Chickasaw Nation, has offered a reward of $400 for the delivery of A. V. Brown at the Tishimingo jail.—Fort Smith Herald.

AQUEOUS AND GEOGRAPHICAL.—The New Orleans True Delta of Wednesday says:

"We have before us a printed circular of imposing pretensions, signed Neill Bros. & Co., of New York, which contains the following paragraph. The italics are ours:

"Our telegram from New Orleans advises an overflow of the Mississippi at Napoleon, which is situated in the State of Louisiana, considerably below the mouth of Red River. Other telegrams received report similar overflows of the Red and Arkansas rivers."

A BAPTISMAL SCENE.—Forty-four males and fifty-three females were baptized on Easter Sunday in the Merrimack river, Newburyport, Mass., by the Rev. Mr. Pike. The Newburyport Herald says: "It was the most interesting occasion of the kind we have ever known in this section of country; indeed, since the days of the Apostles, we do not know that such a scene had been witnessed." Probably seven thousand persons were present to witness the impressive ceremonies. The ages of the persons baptized varied from sixteen to sixty years, and among them were sixty-four heads of families. In one group were three sisters and a brother with his wife; in another a brother and two sisters, and in a third three brothers and their wives; three fathers, five and six belonged to three families. The last group was composed of young men, and in one group was the only son of the clergyman.

A TERRIBLE ENEMY.—Banker, in his late work on Ceylon, states that on one occasion he came across an enormous serpent which lay in his path. He load was about the size of a very small coconut divided lengthways, and this was raised to about eighteen inches above the coil. His eyes were fixed upon us, and the forked tongue played in and out of his mouth with a continual hiss. Another at his head, I fired at him with a double-barreled gun, within four paces, and blew his head to pieces. He appeared stone dead; but upon pelting him by the tail to stretch him out, he wraps his body in a circular coil, lashing himself out at full length, mowed down the grass in all directions. This obliged me to stand clear, for his blows were terrific; the thickest part of his body was as thick as a man's thigh. On losing his head, he ran away from the stakes, and, although his head was shivered to atoms, and he had lost three feet of his neck by the ball having cut through this part, which appeared in tearing off the skin, still he leaped and writhed in a frightful convulsion, continuing till I left him.

CARSON'S PUMP SHOP,
On DeSoto Street,
BETWEEN UNION AND BEALE.

THE undersigned would respectfully inform the citizens of Memphis and its vicinity, and his numerous customers, wherever at a distance in the country, for their past patronage in his line at business, which business he intends to continue the manufacturing and repairing of the Chain-Pumps, and still belonging thereto, he has now on hand a quantity of the best Chain-Pump tubes (and the most approved pattern) and pump-rods, (and the material when not so made and put up,) however, as there are places where the Chain-Pump cannot be used; also a few pipes as pertaining to the "under ground." So still thinks that there are other Pumps in the country for which he is agent. I have determined to accommodate the taste of all by putting up the pump in order, any kind of a Pump that folk may not as to have; I have the tools, machinery, and good workmen, lately from the East, who will attend to putting up and repairing all kinds of Iron Pumps. He will also do every kind of PLUMBING, all of which I will warrant; and repairs I say warts I, I mean what I say, and will make it good.

I have the best gear attached machinery to a number of my Chain-Pumps with entire success. I have also used large Balance-wheels on Rod Chain-Pumps with equal success. In one case I have used the wheel of the well, and the pump, which is quite expensive, but it "reaches all day."

"MULTUM IN PARVO."

I have recently invented a CHAIN PUMP-BOX, embracing two complete well-tested Chain-Pumps intended for double tenements, (and double prices) two, perhaps not strange were from this box, at the same time having no interference with each other whatever, being so made for in the operation, well or none, large enough for two, and small enough, (which I prefer) to put into one part to the other. I would refer you concerning the Pump, to F. G. Stoghton at 3 N. Morrison's Co.

Memphis, March 8, 1857.

W. S. BENNETT, Esq., Dear Sir: The slate within our roof is all the durability, &c., of the roof put on by Mr. Cement, are these: The building you covered for me last Spring, we are happy to state has answered our expectations. We can therefore, recommend it to the public for all roofing purposes as a light, cheap, fire and water proof, durable roof, and can call at our boarding house, corner of the best of the sun; for does it harden and crack from the effects of the cold. Any person wishing to know more of the article, can call at our boarding house.

MEMPHIS, TENN., Jan. 1, 1858.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: This is to certify that our roof, which we put on for gas fitting factory, is a composition called West's Patent Galvanic Cement, one of them was a new deck, the other an old shingle roof, which we repaired and put Cement on it. We repaired a dormant window, which leaked badly, and have not had a single drop of water, or carpenter to prevent the leaking which he succeeded in making perfectly tight. I do most cheerfully recommend his model or method to the public, for all roofing purposes, and believe it to be a permanent fixture against fire and water.

D. COCKRELL,
Superintendent of Gas Works.

SPERRY'S OFFICE, Proprietor Commercial Hotel,
MEMPHIS, TENN., Feb. 19, 1857.

MR. BENNETT, DEAR SIR: Our Company have been troubled very much with leaky cars, put some of your Patent Paint upon them, and so far as my knowledge extends, it has proved entirely tight. It is my duty to say, I believe it to be all that it is recommended to be.

Yours, &c. H. COFFIN, Superintendent.

MEMPHIS, TENN., Jan. 15, 1857.

TO THE PUBLIC: W. S. Bennett made application to us last summer to cover our buildings with West's Galvanic Cement; it is now the 15th of January, and we find it tight; it is applied to our Blacksmith Shop and Engine room attached to the Foundry. They have proved all required of a water proof roof, and we consider it one of the greatest storms, and are giving good satisfaction. We can only add, try it and you will be satisfied.

CURTIS & KNAPP, Iron Founders.

MEMPHIS, TENN., Jan. 14, 1857.

Mr. Bennett has done some small work on my roof for me to his popular way, with Cotton chaff sealed with Cement, and it has stood the test of two years. The roof is a very effectual and light roof, and appears to possess considerable durability, from the preservative qualities of the cotton chaff and Cement. Every day it seems to be more improved, the Principle and the Nature of Roofing, with Bank Book-keeping, &c.

Parties desirous of patents and guardians to respectively solicited to this Institution. He flatters himself, from the experience he has had in obtaining patents, that he will meet a continuance, by his fine sting zeal to the interest of his pupils.

Terms, &c., made known on application at the College, 263 Main street.

I have the honor to refer to the following gentlemen, and others, who have kindly consented to act as Board of Visitors for Examination, being practical business men.
