"PENNSYLVANIA DUTCH."

From the Philadelphia Press.]

"Pennsylvania Dutchman" is an epithet every way calculated to mislead those who understand it according to its verbal import. In the first place it does not embrace Hollanders or their descendants; and, in the next place, it is applied to a mixture of the descendants of the emigrants from Saxony, Silesia, Bohemia, Moravia, Bavaria, and the States bordering on the Rhine, in Germany; from Switzerland, from France, and not a few from Sweden.

The disturbed state of affairs in Europe during the last quarter of the seventeenth and the first half of the eighteenth centuries indeed that emigration of Protestant recreants from the Continent, and dissenters from Great Britain, to which Pennsylvania is indebted for her earliest settlers. Their descendants, (not English, Irish or Scotch,) various as they are in nationality, and still more so in religious creed, are the people now in the State called Dutchmen. The German language, such as they brought with them between the years 1700 and 1760, is their vernacular; for the Provincial French, Swiss, and other dialects of the Continental emigrants have been swallowed up and lost in it. It is substantially the language of Luther's Bible, with the inevitable accessions from the English tongue, which its prevalence around them, and its employment in municipal affairs, have naturally forced into it.

The religious sects into which they are divided are very numerous, and their effective differences are extremely wide. German Catholics, and Germans of all denominations, who have emigrated since the era of Goethe, Schiller, Herder, Ritcher, and the rationalists are not included. These are not Pennsylvania Dutchmen. The resemblance between them is quite as great as the differences; and neither has, or is willing to have, anything in common with the other. Spiritual hierarchy in the one case, and transcendental philosophy in the other, put as wide a gulf between the descendant German fathers of the State, and the Catholic Germans and recent immigrants from Vaterland, as that which separates an orthodox Quaker from a Galway Irishman. This must not be overlooked. It is essential to a proper understanding of our subject.

Among themselves, as we have said, they differ immensely; more, we think, than any other people living in social harmony anywhere else to be found, for it is from them, that while they are most determinedly sectarian and individual, they are the most tolerant of all people to the differences which are not material to social intercourse, and the integrity of faith and practice. The religious denominations which thus dwell distinctively, yet harmoniously together, are the Lutheran, German Reformed, Dunkers, Schwenkfelders, and United Brethren, from the German States bordering on the Rhine; the Mennonites from Switzerland; the Moravians from Austria; and the Huguenots from France. These, with many of their own off-shoots, mingle and harmonize sufficiently well for all the purposes of Christian commerce and good neighborhood.

The Lutheran and German Reformed sects, which are together, much the largest, and most numerous of our German people, are generally well understood. They have their correspondents near enough, in the English population, to be tolerably well apprehended in respect to the doctrines of Christianity. The United Late Old School Presbyterian and Low Church Episcopalian Into German, and you have the analogues of German Reformed and Lutheran pretty accurately. Mennonites, making allowance for difference of blood, correspond in like manner to the Society of Friends of English descent.

The Schwenkfelders are harder to match with English resemblances; they are not very numerous, but they are not unimportant to the mass. They are a strict and very pure party of separatists. They pay great attention to the religious, moral and literary education of their children. Many of them possess a respectable knowledge of the learned languages. There is scarcely a family among them that has not a well-selected library, generally embracing manuscript copies of the works of their forefathers. They are, of course, practical temperance men, and exert the most wholesome influence upon the community. Yet their existence is scarcely known beyond the townships in which they reside, and they are scarcely ever heard of out of Berks, Bucks and Lehigh counties.

The Dunkers are a considerable sect, and an important element in the Presbyterian German character. In peace principles, simplicity and uniformity of dress, they are Quakers; but they never live in towns, never engage in barter, and are the very antipodes of the Friends in their literalness of Scripture interpretation and observance of Gospel ordinances. They baptize by immersion, wash feet, consume a night supper, and elect their preachers by lot, because they so understand the written word to direct them in the sacraments and example of the eleven in supplying the place from which Judas fell. They believe in the final redemption of the fallen angels, and all the wicked without settling the theological formula of the doctrine, or doubting the consumation; for which they rely up n Scripture promises, although they probably owe the hope mainly to their own benevolent impulses. They are not the least formal in their religious government. The chiefest of them could not guess their numbers, or tell where they are all to be found. Probably the majority reside in Pennsylvania; but there are settlements of them in Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, and we know not where else.

It is very hard, indeed, to find them all, and as hard to make this wicked world understand them; for their names are never in police reports, muster rolls, squires' dockets, trial lists of the county courts, or even upon the rolls of killed and wounded by railroad collisions and steamboat explosions. They have no bank accounts, they own no mills, retail stores, bank or turnpike, State or corporation stocks. They go not to law with their brethren, nor with anybody else. They are not communists, socialists, nor anchorites. Every man of them is an independent farmer, because they are in effect, a mutual insurance company, and defend each other from all casualties of life and business, without parade and without any organization of their charities. If one of them buys a farm without the present ability to pay the price in hand, he takes the advice of his brethren, and if they approve, they see him through any difficulty which may embarrass him, as quietly as it were their own personal debt. Of course they are never in the Legislature, and they seldom go to the polls; but when they do go they have a reason for it, and then they are very apt to surprise the professional politicians. Remember with all this, that these Dunkers, Dunkers or Immersionists, are German, all German in courage, constancy, individuality, social attachments, industry, morality, and piety; and you have them, as well as we can help you to, a just apprehension of "The Pennsylvania Dutchmen" of the Huguenot descent are quite numerous. They are much modified in Freethoness and Calvanism now, but they are still distinguishable. In the lower counties they bear the names of Boss, (Des Bois,) Deya, (Dosier,) Ferre, Lefever, Barrit, Cris, (Crist,) Low, Brewer, Deturk, Forney, (Fournier,) and a hundred others of obvious French origin; and of some account, too, in making up a judgment upon our Dutchmen.

There is a considerable party, calling themselves United Brethren in Christ, Church of God, and other names, whose creed and forms of worship nearly approach those of the Methodist Episcopal Church; but they are not exactly representative Germans, for Methodism makes very little impression upon the unmodified people of this race; still, along its borders, there is place for the operation of almost all the multiform sects of Christendom, always under the limitations imposed by whatever there is of the Germanic constitution in its proper activity.

Scarcely any of the colored people residing among the Germans are members of their churches; indeed, we know not that an instance of this sort could be found in the State; and Irishmen and New Englanders are almost as scarce in the brotherhoods, other than the Lutheran and German Reformed.

A MIXED UP LAWSUIT.—An exchange paper tells of a "mixed-up lawsuit" which came off in Vermont last fall. It seems that Smith shot a rabid dog that was trespassing on his land, and belonging to one Davidson. Dog ran into the road and frightened a horse belonging to one Shufelt. Shufelt's horse ran away, upset a wagon, and broke a leg belonging to W. H. Patterson. The question now is, who shall Patterson sue for damages—Smith, Shufelt, or Davidson? As Smith had caused the accident, Shufelt allows that Smith should foot the bill. Smith's counsel objects to this by saying that Smith was doing a lawful act in a lawful manner, and that, as the horse was frightened by the dog, the owner of the dog (Davidson) should pay the damages. Davidson's lawyer claims, on the contrary, that he is not holder, because the dog was not mad; and, if he were mad, he would not have frightened the horse had Smith attended to his own business and let the dog alone. How the case will come out will be known in June, when the court sits.

THE CHINESE IN THE UNITED STATES.—In the course of the debate in the United States Senate on the bill to admit Oregon as a State, Mr. Gwin, referring to the clause in the Oregon constitution prohibiting Chinese from voting, defended it on the ground that the Chinese are a pettiferous, degraded, slavish race, and that many of them are the slaves of masters in China. They take away the gold while contributing nothing to the industry of the country. In California their evidence is not received in the courts of law. They are not citizens of the United States, and Oregon has done rightly in rejecting both Chinese and negroes.—New Orleans Bulletin.

MILK COMPANY.—Under the title of "The New York Pure Milk Company," a joint-stock corporation, with a capital of $150,000 is organizing in that city, by virtue of a charter from the Legislature. The directors are Messrs. Robert Stratton, Henry C. Banks, Jonathan Weller, George Remsen, and J. G. Elliott.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

The people of Tennessee will be called upon to vote on the first Thursday in September next upon the question of calling a Convention "to revise, alter, or amend the Constitution of the State of Tennessee." For the purpose of bringing the subject early before the public, in order that it may be deliberately considered, we publish the following Act of Assembly authorizing the people to vote:

AN ACT to authorize the people to call a Convention to revise, alter, or amend, the Constitution of the State of Tennessee.

SECTION. 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, That the citizens of this State, entitled to vote for members of the General Assembly, are hereby authorized to assemble at the several places of holding elections in their respective counties, and vote for or against calling a Convention to amend, revise, or form and make a new Constitution for the State.

SEC. 2. The election provided for in the first section, shall be held on the first Thursday in September next.

SEC. 3. The sheriffs of the several counties in the State shall, after giving sixty days' notice in writing in each civil district in their respective counties, and in some newspaper printed in the county, (if there be one) and if none, in some newspaper printed in Knoxville, Nashville, Jackson, and Memphis, open and hold an election, at the several places of holding elections in their counties, on the first Thursday in September next, as prescribed in this act.

SEC. 4. The elections authorized by this act shall be held and conducted under the same rules and regulations that elections are for members of the General Assembly, and the returns of such elections shall be made in the same manner, that returns are made of election for members of the General Assembly.

SEC. 5. Each voter shall write on his ticket Convention, or no Convention, and the returns of such election having been made, the Governor and Secretary of State shall compare all the votes cast for, or against the Convention, and if it shall appear that the votes in favor of a Convention amount to a majority of the whole number of votes polled for Governor at the election next preceding the day of election for or against said constitution, Provided, that a majority of the entire vote so polled shall be in favor of the Convention, then, the Governor shall issue his proclamation, declaring that a majority of the votes polled, are in favor of a Convention. He shall also issue writs of election, directed to the Sheriffs in every county in this State authorizing and requiring the Sheriffs thereof, to open and hold election for delegates to the Convention, at the several places of holding election in their respective counties, on the first Thursday in November next.

SEC. 6. Each county electing one representative to the General Assembly, shall elect one delegate to the Convention, and each representative district composed of more than one county, shall elect one delegate to the Convention. Counties that elect more than one representative, shall elect the the same number of delegates, as they are entitled to elect representatives.

SEC. 7. Elections of delegates to the Convention shall be held under the same rules and regulations, as members of the General Assembly, and returns of such elections shall be made in the same manner, as returns are made for members of the General Assembly. The persons having the highest number of votes shall be declared elected delegates to said Convention.

SEC. 8. The delegates elect shall assemble at the capitol in the city of Nashville, on the first Monday in December thereafter, and proceed to the discharge of their duty. They shall receive the same compensation for their travel and services, as members of the General Assembly are entitled to receive under the existing laws of the State.

MOORE & HUGHES

have associated themselves for the transaction of a

General Land Agency Business

IN THE STATE OF ARKANSAS.

THEY will PAY TAXES on lands, and attend to the redemption of forfeited lands.

They will make personal examinations and report on any part of the State, and report accurate descriptions of the soil, timber, quantity of arable land upon any particular tract, and any desirable information in regard thereto; and in cases where owners are willing to bring their lands into market, they will contract to have timber deadened upon it, and will act generally for either the plantations or wild lands of those who desire to sell.

Much due land in this State has been reserved from sale for the last five years, having been reported as swamp and overflowed, and which, by an act of the last Congress, was confirmed to the State, and will be subject to entry in a few months. Many of these lands contain a great deal that has become valuable since its reservation, and the above firm from their experience in land matters, and knowledge of which lands have escaped in the public Surveys of the State for many years, and the close intimacy of Moore with the Commissioner of the Land Office in Washington, having unequaled opportunities for acquiring a knowledge of land throughout the State, will be prepared to make good locations for persons desiring to invest money; other lands of undoubted value will be offered for sale, or subject to entry, either for a stipulated share of the land or commission upon the money invested.

Persons hunting homes in Arkansas will find at their office, plats of land unoccupied, or farms, with rail enclosures, and improvements, of every quality, locality, &c., so that they can be at once directed to cheap and suitable farms.

They will buy and sell Land Warrants or locate them for holders. Any business in the above line will be promptly attended to.

NEW INVENTION!
Horizontal Progressive Power
Cotton Press,
PATENTED MARCH 9th, 1858.
THE inventor, Rev. J. Loving having constructed one and used in packing forty bales of cotton, is prepared to recommend it to the public as possessing many advantages over any Press heretofore used, some of which is here set forth.

FIRST—SIMPLICITY: The device is so simple that it does not require a mechanic to construct it—it does not take more than half the cubic foot of lumber, and any tree that will make good rails will suit as well as the best of timber.

SECOND—CONVENIENCE: It is placed at the last room door with the entire length of the press-box down, and can therefore, be filled for packing much sooner than usual.

THIRD—SPEED: The horse Hackle to travel only 360 feet against 2,640 feet with the Screw Press.

FOURTH—DURABILITY: The Press is so constructed that it can be operated in a house, with no part of the work exposed, except the ends of the levers, and they can be covered and thus preserved. The device overcomes friction at the time the bale is making the greatest resistance, therefore, the wear is quite imperceptible.

Some intelligent gentlemen have expressed the opinion that it would last from 30 to 50 years, with but slight, if any repairs.

I have appointed Mr. A. W. LOVING, of the firm of Pennell & Loving, No 12 Front Row, Memphis Tennessee, my sole agent, who is provided with a full working model of my Press, and circulars explaining the principles upon which it is constructed. Call and look for yourselves.

For Inventor (now five miles east of Moscow Depot, on the Memphis and Charleston Railroad, who will take pleasure in showing and explaining his Press to all gentlemen who may call upon him with a call.

Important to Planters & Millers.
FELTON'S IMPROVED
Self-Sharpening Portable Grist Mill.
An Improvement on all Other Patents.
THIS is one of the most valuable inventions of the day, possessing all the qualifications requisite to make it valuable to the farmer. It is destined to supply a want that has long been felt by that portion of community. It is so simple in construction, that any person of ordinary skill can run it and keep it in order. The grinding surfaces are of the most durable character, harder than any tempered steel, and not liable to go out of order. It will grind wheat, corn, oats buckwheat, dried and spices, crush and grind corn and cob admirably, or shelled oats and corn, and cob may be well ground together. The small size frame mill, with two-horse power, will grind from five to eight bushels of superior corn meal per hour and from eight to ten bushels of meal feed for stock, and requires but little attention, and may be run by six-bolt without increase of expense. The large size frame mill will grind over twice that amount per hour. The meal is not heated in grinding—a valuable feature. Prices are, for small size $125; large size $200. We have the right to sell the States of Tennessee, Kentucky, and a portion of Texas. A rare chance is here offered for competent and responsible men to engage in the sale of the Mill.

County and State rights sold on accommodating terms. All orders, communications, and applications for Rights and Mills addressed to us will be promptly responded to.

We have on hand fifty Gins, embracing all the different sizes and numbers of saws.

Also 10 and 12 foot segment bolts, washers, &c., complete, all of which we offer to our friends upon the usual terms and times.

PLANTERS!
Look well to Your Interests and Purchase only the Best Machines.
FELTON'S
SELF-SHARPENING
Portable Grist Mill.
EVERY PLANTER HIS OWN MILLER.
THIS is one of the most valuable inventions of the day, possessing all the qualities necessary to make it of the greatest service to every planter, and is destined soon to supersede every other mill and to supply a great want long felt in every patent the country. It occupies only 3 feet by 3, and weighs 300 pounds.

The great distinguishing characteristics are, its simplicity, durability, utility and small cost, requiring no skill to keep it in order.

IT IS THE ONLY MILL IN THE UNION THAT WILL GRIND CORN AND COB TOGETHER FAR, WHICH MAKES AN INVALUABLE FEED FOR STOCK.

It is adapted to steam power or horse power, winding to perfection wheat, corn, oats, buckwheat, drugs and spices; grinds with two horse power five to eight bushels per hour (the finest quality of meal for family use, and ten bushels of prime feed for stock, and never heats the meal—a vain boast feature.

It combines more good qualities than all other mills combined, and every needs to be seen in operation to convince every intelligent mind of its great and practicability. Testimonials from the most distinguished competent judges, of any other mill ever invented. Hundreds of the mills are in use in different parts of the United States and all give entire satisfaction.
