THE APPEAL.

[This is one of the sweetest strains, though mournful, that has ever been sung by our fair correspondent, whom we warmly welcome again to our columns, and trust that she will carry out literally her promise to send us many of those beautiful effusions which her numerous admirers always read with delight and profit. Our columns are hers. We ever feel that whatever she chooses to print there is a grace and ornament that can scarcely be supplied from any other source.]

DIED, on Tuesday, the 12th, MATTIE CHAMBERS, daughter of Charles and Augusta Kortner, aged twenty months.

LITTLE MATTIE.

Lay her down gently
Now from the arms,
Where so oft gulped
Sighs from all harms.
With velvet cheek nestled
Close to thy breast,
First at dare closing
She sank to her rest.
Now all is over,
The last rest is won,
The white fort that met thee
Their last race have run;
And on thy fond bosom,
So softly to sleep,
She hath fallen, we scarcely
Remember to weep.
Kobe her now tenderly
In the white dress,
Her mother's on bendingly,
Wrought in her bliss;
So rich in adornment,
Alighters above,
So twined with best fancies,
So fashioned in love,
Most garment to deck her
With care all the more
So mournfully conscious
Such labors are o'er.
In her pale hands so stiffened
The white blossoms place,
As fair, fleet and fading
As that warm face;
Then kneel in the twilight
With crushed heart and sore,
And wait o'er the bright hopes,
That come never more.
Yet wait, for there cometh
Some balm still from tears,
And they do not more darken
The sad coming years,
Through which, though the blossoms
Bloom bright on the way,
That first blighted lily
Seems fairer than they!
And the sweet hope forever
Still nestle to us,
Beside the blest river
Where life's crown is won,
To find the plucked flower
In Heaven's pure light,
Pearl-crown'd and glorified
In glory bright.

MEMPHIS, July 16, 1858. MARY P——

ORATION OF HON. RUFUS CHOATE.

The oration delivered by the Hon. RUFUS CHOATE, before the Young Men's Democratic Association of Boston, on the 5th inst., fills six columns in the New York papers. It is a masterly effort. We present the opening and closing passages:

"It is well that in one year, so busy, so secular, so discordant, there comes one day when the world is, and when the emotion is, 'our country, our whole country and nothing but our country.' It is well that law—our only sovereign on earth—duty, not less the daughter of God, not less within its sphere supreme, custom not old alone, but honored and useful, memories, our heart, have set a time in which—scythe, loom and sword stilled, have a festival, the flag—our flag unrent—the flag of our glory and commemoration waving on most head, steple and highland, we may come together, and walk hand in hand, thoughtful, admiring, through those galleries of civil glory, where, when we may compare together the spell of one hour of our history upon us all; when faults may be forgotten, kindness revived, virtues remembered and sketched sublimed; when the arrogance of reform, the resentment of reform, the strife of parties, the rivalries of regions, shall give place to a wider, warmer and juster sentiment; when, turning from the corners and dark places of offensiveness, if such the candle lighted by malignity, or envy, or consciousness, or error, shall be put out; when; when, turning from these, we may go up together to the serene and secret mountain top, and there pass, and there unite in the reverent exclamation and in the exultant prayer: How beautiful at last to us the Tabernacles! What people at last is like unto Thee! Peace be within Thy palaces and joy within Thy gates! The high places are Thine and there shalt Thou stand proudly, and innocently, and securely.

"Happy if such a day shall not be desecrated by our service! Happy if for us that descending sun shall look out on a more loving, more elevated, more united America! There, no less, no narrower, be the aims of our celebration. These always were the true aims of this celebration. In its origin, a recital or defense of the grounds and the principles of the Revolution, now demanding and permitting no defense—all taken for granted, and all had by heart; then sometimes wasted in a parade of vain-glory, cheap and vulgar; sometimes profaned by the attack and repulse of partisan and local rhetoricians; its great work, its distinctive character and its chief lessons remain and vindicate themselves, and will do so while the eyes of the fighting or the dying shall yet read on the stainless, ample folds the superscription blazing still in light: 'Liberty and Union, now and forever, one and inseparable.'

"I had something to say more directly still on the ethics of nationality, on the duty of instructing the conscience, on the crimes of treason, and slander, and fraud that are committed around us in the name, on the shallowness and emptiness of the doctrine of more material interests, trained by a mere moral discipline, may safely guide the complex civil life of the teachers and studies which they need to fit them for so precious, difficult and delicate a dominion; of the high place in the scale of duties, which, this day, we may assign to nationality; of the judgment which, thus fitted, they would apply to one or two of the common places and practices of the time.

"But I pass it all to say only that these ethics teach the true subordination, and the true reconciliation of apparently incomprehensible duties. These only are the casuists, or the safest casuists for us. Learn from them how to adjust this conflict between patriotism and philanthropy. Thus, indeed, there seems to be no conflict, for there are philanthropists in proportion as we are unionists. Our philanthropy, we venture to say, is a true philanthropy. That is all. It loves all men, it respects all rights, keeps all compacts, recognizes all dangers, pities all sufferings, ignores no fact; master and slave it enfolds alike.

"It happens thus, that it contracts the sphere of our duty somewhat, and changes not the nature but the times, the places, the mode of performing them; it does not make our love cold, but it makes it safe; it naturalizes it, it baptises it into our life, it circumscribes it within our country and necessities, it sets it on the great national public seal. If you say that thus our patriotism limits our philanthropy, I answer, our's is American philanthropy. Be this the virtue we boast, and this the name by which we know it.

"In this name, in this quality, find the standard and the utterance of the virtue itself. By this, not by broad phylacteries and chief seats; the keener hate, the gloomier fanaticism, the louder cry, judge, compare, adjudicate. Do they think that nobody is a philanthropist but themselves? We, too, look up the long vista, and gaze, wrapt at the dazzling sacrest; we, too, see towers rising, crowded, imperial, and the tribes coming to bend in the morning of a better day. But we see a place, order, reconciliation of rights along that brightening future.

"We trace all along that succession of reform, the presiding instrumentalities of national life. We see our morality working itself clearer and clearer; we behold error, conventional right or wrong after another falling peacefully and still; we hear the chain breaking, but there is no blood on it; none of his whom it bound; none of his who put it on him; we hear the yielding chorus of freedom, but master and slave unite in that chorus, and there is no discordant shriek above the harmony; we see and we hail the blending of our own glory with the eternal light of God, but we see, too, shapes of love and beauty ascending and descending there as in the old vision!

"Hold fast this hope; distrust the philanthropy, distrust the ethics which would, which must, turn it into shame. Do not evil that good may come. Perform your share, if you have a share, in the abolition of slavery; perform your share, for you have a share in the noble and generous strife of the sections, but perform it by keeping, by transmitting, a united, loving and Christian country.

"But why, at last, do I exhort, and why do I seem to fear, on such a day as this? Is it not the nation's birthday? Is it not this country of our loves and hopes which celebrates it? This music of the past, these hallowed days, this pride and beauty, these memories so fragrant, these resolutions of patriotism, so thoughtful, these hands pressed, these congratulations and huzzas and tears, this great heart throbbing audibly—are they not here, and do they not assure us?

"Those forests of masts, these singing workshops of labor, these fields and plantations whitening for the harvest, this peace and plenty, this sleeping thunder those bolts in the closed, strong talon, do not they all tell us of her health, her strength and future? This shadow that flits across our grasses and is gone, this shallow ripple that darkens the surface of our broad and widening stream, and passes away; this little speck in the sky, upon our telescope cannot find, and which our science can hardly find, but which we know cannot change the course or hasten the doom of one star; have these any terror for us? And He who slumbers not, who keeps watch, who keeps watchfully the city of his love, on whose will the life of nations is suspended, and to whom all the shields of the earth belong, our father's God, is he not our God, and of whom, then, and of what shall we be afraid?

PIGEONS.—The Newport (Ky.) Council has adopted an ordinance prohibiting the keeping of tame pigeons, under the penalty of $2 for each day they are allowed to fly at liberty.

KILLED.—H. C. Gilbert, the commercial editor of the Buffalo Commercial Advertiser, and commercial reporter of the New York Associated Press, was instantly killed on the 9th by the falling of a scaffold, at No. 14 Central Wharf Buffalo.

INDIA.—A private letter from India, in the Daily News, says: "People do not hope much too speedily for a speedy termination of the mutiny. We have not force enough to do it. It is obvious that the mutineers have not yet lost heart, and our work is not yet half done."

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

The people of Tennessee will be called upon to vote on the first Thursday in September next, upon the question of calling a Convention "to revise, alter, or amend the Constitution of the State of Tennessee." For the purpose of bringing the subject early before the public, in order that it may be deliberately considered, we publish the following Act of Assembly authorizing the people to vote:

AN ACT to authorize the people to call a Convention to revise, alter, or amend, the Constitution of the State of Tennessee.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, That the citizens of this State, entitled to vote for members of the General Assembly, are hereby authorized to assemble at the several places of holding elections in their respective counties, and vote for or against calling a Convention to amend, revise, or form and make a new Constitution for the State.

SEC. 2. The election provided for in the first section, shall be held on the first Thursday in September next.

SEC. 3. The sheriffs of the several counties in the State shall, after giving sixty days' notice in writing in each civil district, in their respective counties, and in some newspaper printed in the county, (if there be one) and if none, in some newspaper printed in Knoxville, Nashville, Jackson, and Memphis, open and hold an election, at the several places of holding elections in their counties, on the first Thursday in September next, as prescribed in this act.

SEC. 4. The elections authorized by this act, shall be held and conducted under the same rules and regulations that elections are for members of the General Assembly, and the returns of such elections shall be made in the same manner, that returns are made of election for members of the General Assembly.

SEC. 5. Each voter shall write on his ticket "Convention, or no Convention, and the returns of such election having been made, the Governor and Secretary of State shall compare all the votes cast for, or against the Convention, and if it shall appear that the votes in favor of a Convention amount to a majority of the whole number of votes polled for Governor at the election next preceding the day of election for or against said constitution; Provided, that a majority of the entire vote so polled shall be in favor of the Convention, then, the Governor shall issue his proclamation, declaring that a majority of the votes polled, are in favor of a Convention. He shall also issue writs of election, directed to the Sheriffs in every county in this State authorizing and requiring the Sheriffs thereof, to open and hold election for delegates to the Convention, at the several places of holding election in their respective counties, on the first Thursday in November next.

Sec. 6. Each county electing one representative to the General Assembly, shall elect one delegate to the Convention, and each representative district composed of more than one county, shall elect one delegate to the Convention. Counties that elect more than one representative, shall elect the like same number of delegates, as they are entitled to elect representatives.

SEC. 7. Elections of delegates to the Convention shall be held under the same rules and regulations, as members of the General Assembly, and returns of such elections shall be made in the same manner, as returns are made for members of the General Assembly. The persons having the highest number of votes shall be declared elected delegate to said Convention.

SEC. 8. The delegates elect shall assemble at the capitol in the city of Nashville, on the first Monday in December thereafter, and proceed to the discharge of their duty. They shall receive the same compensation for their travel and services, as members of the General Assembly are entitled to receive under the existing laws of the State.

CARSON'S PUMP SHOP,
On Second Alley,
BETWEEN UNION AND MONROE.

THE undersigned would respectfully inform the citizens of Memphis and its vicinity, and his numerous customers living at a distance in the country for their past patronage, that he has moved to Second Alley, and has hitherto been confined to the manufacturing and putting up the Chain-Pump alone, and still believing that it is the best pump in use, and made of good materials and properly put up, (and the meanest when not so made and put up,) however, as there are plenty who want the Chain Pump cannot be used, also a few persons petitioning of the "olden times," who still think that there are some Wooden Pumps in use, and for the Chain. I have determined to accommodate the taste of all by putting up or shipping to order, any kind of a Pump that this market can furnish. I have also on hand a large supply of good wormam, lately from the East, who will attend to putting up and repairing all kinds of Iron Pumps. He will also do every kind of FLEMMING, all of which I will warrant; and when I say warrant, I mean what I say, and say what I mean.

I have in the last year added machinery to a number of our Chain-Pumps with entire success. I have also used large balance wheels on Hand Chain Pump with equal success. I have also added the wooden Link Chain and Tooed Button, which is quite expensive, but it "fadeth not away."

A BOSOM IN PARVO.

I have recently invented a CHAIN PUMP BOX, embracing two complete, separate and distinct Chain-Pumps, in one box, (and double the capacity of any two pumps one can draw water from this box at the same time, having no intermediate wheels or other machinery to take off in the partition, wall or fence, large enough for an inch, dog or cat, chicken or mouse to crawl from a yard to the other, I would refer one concerning the Pump, to F. G. Bingham and J. E. Merriman & Co. W. CARSON.

☞ N. B. I am prepare to ship Pumps on short notice, up or down, east or west of the Mississippi river.
