THE APPEAL.

MY LIFE IS LIKE THE SUMMER ROSE.

WILDE.

My life is like the summer rose,
That opens to the morning sky,
But ere the shades of evening close,
Is scattered on the ground to die.
Yet on that rose's humble bed,
The sweetest dews of night are shed,
As if she wept such waste to see;
But none shall weep a tear for me.

LADY.

The dews of night may fall from heaven
Upon the withered rose's bed,
And tears of fond regret be given
To mourn the virtue of the dead.
Yet morning's sun the dews will dry,
And tears will fade from sorrow's eye,
Affections pangs so fated to sheep,
And even love's regret to weep.

WILDE.

My life is like the autumn's leaf,
That trembles in the moon's pale ray—
Its hold is frail, its date is brief,
Restless, and soon to pass away.
Yet ere that leaf shall fall and fade,
The parent tree shall weep its shade;
The winds bewail the leaf they bear,
But none shall breathe a sigh for me.

LADY.

The tree may mourn its fallen leaf,
And yet soon shall it wave in bloom,
And friends may heave a sigh of grief
O'er those who sleep within the tomb
Yet kind will spring above the flowers,
And time will bring more smiling hours;
To fri ndship's heart all grief will die,
And even love forget to sigh.

WILDE.

My life is like the prints which feet
Have left on Tempe's desert strand—
Soon as the rising tide shall beat,
All trace will vanish from the sand.
Yet, as I grieving to efface
All vestige of the human race
On that lone shore, loud mourn the sea,
But none, alas! shall mourn for me.

LADY.

The one may on the desert shore
Launch each trace it bears away;
The lonely heart its grief may pour
O'er the lost friendship's fair decay.
Yet when all track is lost and gone,
The waves dance brisk and gaily on;
Time soon affection's bonds s e ver,
And e'en one forgets to mourn.

DISTINGUISHED CHARACTERS AT BEDFORD. The Baltimore American was favored with a letter the other day, before the visiting party had left, alluding in modest terms to the President's suite at Bedford, as well as to the person of the British Minister and wife:

Sir William Gore Ouseley, with his lady and daughter, seem to enjoy themselves very much, and will probably remain for some time after the departure of the President. He is rather a gouty and unwieldly old gentleman, with an apparent disposition to keep still when he is comfortably located. He is very much liked, and is free and easy in his intercourse with all; having apparently as little of the reverse of aristocracy about him as the President himself. Mrs. Ouseley is an American lady, one of the Van Ness family, and was, I believe, born in Vermont. She has quite a majestic appearance, and is dressed in deep mourning.

Miss Ouseley is apparently not over eighteen years of age, of great sprightliness, the best dancer and waltzer at the Springs, and rides on horseback with a grace and reckless speed that renders it difficult for the gallants here to keep pace with her. She dresses in black, and though not decidedly handsome, is by no means homely. She does not seem disposed to participate in the labors of the toilet, so common among American ladies at summer resorts, but looks rather to enjoyment and to please her self than to join with the effort to outshine others with costly goods and jewelry.

While alluding to the toilets of the ladies, I may remark that the two ladies who pay the least attention to the requirements of fashion are the President's niece, Miss Lane, the daughter of Senator Bright, and Miss Ouseley. Miss Lane is of a very neat person and figure, but is always attired with great simplicity and good taste. She seems to discard all jewelry except ear-rings and breastpin, and is the last person you would take to be the leading lady of the President's household. In her manners she is free and courteous to every one, without a particle of pride or hauteur.

Miss Bright has a bright, good-humored countenance, and an easy graceful manner, equally free from hauteur, and as democratic in her intercourse with the visitors of her companions, Miss Lane. Her pleasing manners render her one of the leading belles of the Springs. They seem to have come here to enjoy themselves, and may be found strolling on the mountain in the morning, promenading or riding out in the afternoon or evening, and joining in the waltz or quadrille at night; and do not consider it surprising one to be seen twice in one day in the same dress.

A SON MURDERED BY HIS FATHER.—A most revolting murder was committed at St. Mary's Landing, in Ste. Genevieve county, about 9 o'clock yesterday morning, the 18th inst. John Schmf, an old man, a German, apparently about sixty years of age, deliberately stole shot and killed his own son, Henry Schmf, aged about thirty-three years. Some bad feeling appears to have existed between the old man and all the other members of the family, and the father had repeatedly threatened to shoot Henry; but the latter, who is spoken of in high terms for correct and industrious habits, paid little attention to the old man's threats. On Wednesday, the 18th inst., about 9 o'clock in the morning, Henry Schmf was at work in cleaning away the rubbish from inside the walls of the stone steam mill, which had been burned down a short time since at that place. The old man came to the place where the son was at work, in company with another German, as if to make an examination of the premises, so as to make sure work in killing his son. He immediately proceeded to his house, only a short distance, and came with his shotgun and revolver, and as Henry Schmf was stooping down at work, the father went to the hole through which the shaft of the engine had worked, took aim, and shot the son through the body. A large ball passed clear through the body, and was flattened against the stone wall beyond. Henry Schmf ran about thirty feet and fell on the porch of Caldwell & Fisher's store, where he died in two minutes. More than a hundred persons were within fifty feet of the spot at the time. The wife of the dead man came running with her infant child in her arms to the lifeless body of her husband, and, uttering the most piercing shrieks of grief, and the excitement among the people was intense. Many were for hanging John Schmf on the spot, but better counsels prevailed, and he was committed to the Ste. Genevieve jail, as also his wife, stepmother of the deceased, on accessory before the fact.—St. Louis Republican.

THE VICE PRESIDENT AT HOME.—A Kentucky correspondent of the Herald makes the following remarks upon Vice President BRECKINRIDGE, who is now at his home in Kentucky:

"The Vice President since his return home has been attending to the arduous duties of his profession, save the small portion of time spent in stump speaking. He and his partner, James B. Beck, a Scotchman by birth, get one of the largest and most lucrative practices in the State. Beck is comparatively young, and a self-made man, and for legal acumen and learning, has but few superiors in the State. The Vice President is now as much a leader of Democracy as ever Mr. Clay was of the Whig party. They know that his oratorical powers are not excelled by those of any man in the Union; that he is not a politician in the common acceptation of the term; that he is neither selfish nor a trickster; in fact, that he is a statesman, worthy to have been a peer of Clay, Calhoun and Webster. They will follow his lead, because they know he will lead them right."

NEW YORK, August 18.—The City Hall has been partially destroyed by fire. The dome and central portion of the upper story were burnt. The public documents are safe, however, and the wings of the building are unharmed, save by the water and violence. The fire commenced, shortly after midnight, on the cupola of the building, and the flames spread so rapidly that it was soon all in a blaze. The firemen were promptly on the spot, and laboured hard, but their efforts failed to arrest the conflagration. The cupola and the upper part of the main building were completely destroyed. The pictures in the Governor's room, as well as the other property in the hall, are much injured if not totally destroyed. The fire probably originated from the pyrotechnic display in honor of the Atlantic Telegraph, and was doubtless due to the carelessness of the persons who had the building in charge. The fire did not extend to either wing, but their contents are seriously damaged. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

EX-PRESIDENT TYLER.—A letter from Old Point, Va., says: Ex-President Tyler, having purchased a farm only two miles from the hotel, spends most of his time here in social communication with the guests, all of whom express for him the highest respect. He seldom or never discusses politics, and devotes his attention to agriculture, and practises it, not according to the old Virginia principles of making all you can this year and letting the next take care of itself. He usually attend religious worship at the chapel within the fort, where Mrs. Tyler has her own pew. John Tyler is now in his sixty-ninth year, but looks as young as when he occupied the Presidential chair, and is quite as jocular and full of fun.

TWO FACES.—The Texas Ben says that there is a remarkable negro boy in Polk county. He has two faces, fixed on opposite parts of the head, with mouth nose and ears, so full and perfect that it is impossible to tell which is the front face, when the body is his front view. He is about six years of age, healthy, of a very sound mind, runs and plays among other children with as much sprightliness as could be expected from one of the age.

SPUNKY.—The New York Daily News says: We have whipped our mother; beaten her so sore and loud, in science and art. Nobody does it this. And until it is denied and the denial is proven, it is fair to assume that American men and women are the true lords and ladies of the age. Under the guidance of things, who cares for English "Society," as represented by our patriotic cotemporary.

☞ "Father," said a little fellow, "I shan't sew you any of my wedding cake when I get married."

"Why so?" was the inquiry.

"Because," answered the little fellow, "you didn't send me any of yours."

☞ The Savannah Republican, in copying the abstract of the present monthly statement of the South Carolina Banks, published in the Mercury, says:

"The showing is a manifest improvement upon their affairs at the date of the late suspension."

These lands are unencumbered with any incumbrance by overflow, and purchasers are invited to call and examine for themselves, which is the best evidence that I can do that they may not be deceived as to what they are buying. Also two family residences and eleven varied lots in the city of Memphis, and $20,000 worth lots in the town of Corinth, Miss., at the crossing of the Memphis and Charleston and Mobile and Ohio roads. Also the improved lots in Randolph, Tenn.; also a small plantation one-half mile from Mi dleton depot, on the Charleston Railroad; also one large acre lot and one business lot, fronting said depot; also a plantation of 811 acres, at Sentonia depot, on the Mississippi and Tennessee Railroad, in Dekalb county, Miss. On this tract is a plantation of 400 acres, in cultivation, building site fronting on the depot; also 1,000 acre tract on the Tennessee River, 300 acres in cultivation, near Perry Island; also 30,000 acres east of Sunflower river, of well land, many tracts of which have proved them selves since the recent flood to the Valley, and being far east for the Mississippi river to have its full effect in them; also 20 000 acres of select lands in Crittenden and Mississippi counties in Arkansas, as many tracts of which are entirely above the recent high water. Several tracts of the above have deadenings, varying in size from 50 to 500 acres in places. Also quite a number of other lands, both in hilly and river countrys, too tedious to mention.

Any person desiring to see me in regard to any of the above property can do so by calling at my office, up stairs over the store of Mesers. Copelan & Rhodes, between Court and Madison streets, on Front Row, or any information in regard to any of the above properties by corresponding with me through the mail, and this property will be shown to any one who may desire to examine it.

A Good Investment.

I WISH to dispose of one-half of the UNION FOUNDRY, so as to be well qualified to attend to my business and relieve me from the care and management of the foundry. It has a good run of trade, and is making money. I only want a partner for the purposes above stated, as I desire some respite and recreation.

Any business man wishing to engage in the foundery business could not do better than to take an interest in this concern.

I will expect the purchaser to put in an equal capital with myself.

Be calling at the office of the foundry on Poplar street, I will make a fair exhibit of the business. If not satisfactory, of course, I would not expect any one to take an interest. WATT G. SHADFORD, Proprietor.
