Largest Circulation in the City.

Official Journal of the City.

TERMS REDUCED.

The Cheapest Paper in the South!

In consideration of the increased and still increasing patronage of the MEMPHIS APPEAL, under the CASH SYSTEM, the proprietors have determined upon the reduction of the subscription price of their WEEKLY paper.

For clubs under ten, or single subscribers, the WEEKLY APPEAL will hereafter be furnished at $2 50 for each copy.

To clubs of ten and upwards it will be furnished at $2 for each copy.

When we consider the unbounds size of our weekly impression and the vast amount and variety of the reading matter it contains, it may justly be claimed that, at these rates, it is the cheapest newspaper published in the South.

Clubs may be made up in neighborhoods without respect to post office.

Any person sending in a club of twenty, at the foregoing rates, will be entitled to receive one copy gratis for their trouble. All orders must be renewed from year to year on the foregoing terms.

Address McLANAHAN, TROUSDALE & DILL, Memphis, Tennessee.

Our country exchanges will do us a favor by giving this notice one or two insertions.

THE STATE FAIR.

The annual Fair under the direction of the State Agricultural Bureau, will be held at the Fair Grounds near Nashville, commencing on Monday, the 11th day of October, and continuing during the week. We have not seen the programme but understand that the list of premiums is large and attractive. The great advantage of these exhibitions to the industrial pursuits of the State will not be questioned, and it has been a matter of surprise that there has not been more interest manifested in them that the history of preceding State Fairs at Nashville has shown. The last held there, was if not a failure, very far from successful. The Committee have, we are glad to learn, made some new arrangements, by which they expect to add much to the interest of the approaching exhibition. We trust their efforts will meet with such encouragement as shall evince that the people are not insensible to the liberal policy of the State in extending her bounty to foster and develop the agricultural and mechanical interests of her citizens.

THE PACIFIC RAILROAD.

We publish this morning, to the exclusion of other matter, a report of the proceedings of the meeting of stockholders in the Southern Pacific Railroad, held in this city on Wednesday last. From this report our readers will be able to gain a pretty accurate understanding of the nature and magnitude of the troubles in which the Company is involved. It is very clear that unless the Directory can obtain the means to relieve the road of certain pending liabilities, and that right speedily, this great Southern enterprise must pass into the control of other hands. We should regret to see this. For, although we are not of that number who suppose that no other Company but the present one can build the road, we should regard it a great hardship upon the stockholders to lose the amount of their subscriptions. Many men have been induced to take stock in this road from higher motives than a mere purpose to speculate upon the bounty of the State of Texas, and it is for the protection of such that we feel considerable interest in seeing the Company extricate itself from its present embarrassing condition. Moreover, the failure of the present Company would greatly retard the progress of the road, the early completion of which is much to be desired by the country at large and by the South in particular. The question is one, however, the solution of which properly rests with those pecuniarily interested. If they elect to exercise what they have already invested in the road rather than embark any farther in the enterprise, while we shall regret such a conclusion, we must acknowledge that the past history of the road is not such as to inspire public confidence in its success or to reflect credit upon the wisdom of its management. It remains to be seen if any amount of energy and prudence in the present Board can retrieve the errors of its predecessors.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD.

MEETING OF STOCKHOLDERS.

MEMPHIS, September 15, 1858.

At a meeting of the Stockholders of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, residing in and near Memphis, held this day, on motion Gen. R. V. RICHARDSON was called to the Chair, and Col. JOHN MARVIN appointed Secretary.

The Chairman, on taking his seat, addressed the meeting as follows:

GENTLEMEN: I thank you for the honor conferred in electing me to preside over your deliberations. With your permission, I will state the objects of this meeting.

This is a Convention of Stockholders in the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, living in and near Memphis.

On the 19th day of October, 1857, Mr. Yerger, the President of your Company, executed a deed of trust upon your road, its property and franchises, to secure sundry debts against your Company. On the 1st of June last, the deed of trust was foreclosed by a public sale of the road, its property and franchises, all of which were purchased by some one or more of the creditors, who have organized, what they term a new Company, upon the ruins of your Company. The question to be considered by you, now, is this: Was the deed of trust valid, or a nullity? From the facts which I have learned, I give it as my opinion that it is null and void; and that there was fraud in law, and in fact, both in its inception, development and foreclosure.

Your Company is a body corporate, chartered by the Legislature of Texas, possessing such rights, privileges and franchises as that body saw proper to invest you with. The great franchises of your Company, under your charter, are to build a railroad, to operate it, and to hold property. These are vested in the body corporate, or stockholders, and not in the Board of Directory, or the officers and agents of the Company. You cannot be divested of these great rights, without your voluntary consent, expressed as stockholders, in a meeting of stockholders, two-thirds in interest of the shares concurring; and this consent must assume the form of a by-law of the Company. Have the stockholders adopted a by-law authorizing the execution of this deed of trust upon your road, its property and franchises? I understand not. Then the deed of trust was executed without authority, and was an usurpation of power, and, therefore, null and void.

But another trouble has arisen. In this war between the old and new Companies, the State of Texas comes in, like the fox in the fable, and attempts to run off with the prey. She has filed a bill, in the nature of a quo warranto, the object of which is to declare your charter forfeited, on the ground that the proper officers of the Company did not report to the Governor of the State, the affairs of the Company, before you had built any part of your road. It is said, under the act of the Legislature passed subsequent to the passage of your charter, you were required to make annual reports, showing how many miles of road you had completed, how many cars you owned and were running, and how many lives had been lost by the running of your road. If this be so, how could such a act be applicable to your Company, who had not at the time when required to report, not one mile of road completed, did not own one single car, and were simply an organized Company, with brilliant expectations, but few realities? I think the act is not applicable to your Company at that time, and upon a careful showing of facts to the State of Texas, the proceedings will be dismissed.

The President of the Company will appear before you, and report the prospects, difficulties, hopes and aims which he entertains, and the facts with reference to these matters. He has recently attended the meetings of stockholders at Louisville and Cincinnati, and has made such an exhibit of the condition and exposes of facts, difficulties and prospects, as has justly made him the recipient of the highest eulogy of Hon. J. Guthrie, those conventions, and the press of those and other cities, and I have no doubt, he will make the same exhibit and expose here to-day.

When that is done, it is for you, gentlemen, to say what you will do; whether you will be supine, or act for your own interest, and the prosperity and success of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company.

Dr. J. Fowlkes, President of the Company, then read the following report:

[The report will be given hereafter.]

The meeting was addressed by Col. Thos. H. Wiley, who gave an interesting statement of of facts connected with the sale under the trust deed; when the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved by this Convention, That from a careful examination of the facts set forth in the citation in the case of the South Pacific Railroad Company against Saunders and others, purchasers under the deed of trust, by lawyers here, and the written opinion of Messrs. Adams, Murrah and Jennings, attorneys in Texas, also, the act of the Legislature of Texas, approved the 19th day of December, 1857, and the by-laws and proceedings of the Company, it is our deliberate opinion that the deed of trust, executed by G. S. Yerger, former President, on the 19th day of October, 1857, is utterly null and void to all intents and purposes, and that the sale made under it, on the 1st day of June last, could and did not communicate any right, title, or interest in law or equity upon either the road, the franchises or property of the Company, to the purchaser at that sale.

Resolved, That this Convention having examined carefully, by attorneys here, the bill of complaint, filed by the State of Texas against the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, praying to declare the charter of said Company forfeited, for the reason that said Company have failed to report to the Governor of the State the affairs and condition of the Company, in pursuance of the provisions of the act of the 7th day of February, 1850; and have also carefully noted the provisions of said act, from which this Convention believes that no forfeiture of charter has taken place, in the terms prescribed, under a proper interpretation and construction of said act. It is the opinion of this convention that said act was only intended to apply to railroads either in whole, or in part in usual and actual operation, and not to companies merely organized and constructing the first portion of their road, not a single mile being completed, and owning no engines or cars. But should this convention be mistaken in the construction placed upon said act, and should the Legislature of Texas have had the power to fasten forfeiture clause of said act upon this company, under the facts alleged, this convention cannot believe that the great State of Texas will insist on the forfeiture of the Company's charter for the trivial cause alleged in the bill, the mere omission or dereliction of the officers of the company, when the State, and not one of her citizens, of any person else, has sustained any damage. In conclusion, this Convention believe the State of Texas insist on a forfeiture upon a mere technicality, if such there be, thus destroying a great enterprise, for no good and sufficient reason, the public faith in the State would be discredited capital would shrink and foreign capital would not investments in her various enterprises, nor can this convention believe that Texas will pursue a course so ruinous to her credit, her public faith and this convention deliberately expresses the opinion that, when the people of Texas, or the public authorities of that state shall have fully examined the facts, with reference to the alleged forfeiture, the bill now filed will be dismissed and the company will be relieved from this embarrassment.

Resolved, This Convention is gratified to learn that the Board of Directors and President who met at Marshall, in Texas, in July last, did adopt the following resolution, to-wit:

Resolved, Whereas the public mind is stamped with the impression that large amounts of fraudulent stock have been issued,

Be it Resolved, That all outstanding certificates of stock, whether issued from the New Orleans or New York office, be returned to the office in Marshall, Texas, for examination, by the 1st of October next, and when found to have been regularly and properly issued, to be renewed with new certificates from the office.

Resolved, That the officers of this Company be directed to enter into minute examination of the stock-book, in order to ascertain to whom, when, for what consideration, and by what authority, such stock outstanding against the Company was originally issued, and report the same as soon as practicable. Also, to ascertain the precise liability of the company—to whom, when, for what consideration, and by what authority, such responsibilities were created; and further that they shall ascertain and report all the property, assets, and resources of the Company.

And while this Convention does not believe that any fraudulent stock certificates have been issued, by any former board, or officers, or agents of the Company, still as it has been charged that such certificates have been issued, this Convention believes that it is the duty of the proper officers of the Company, to investigate this charge, and report the results of their investigations, to the stockholders, and the world.

Resolved, That in our opinion our road is the great desideratum of the age; that it must be a long link in the great railway chain that must bind the Atlantic and Pacific oceans together across our continent; that our route is practical under all circumstances; that our means are ample and abundant to construct it; that it is unequalled as a railroad investment, not only, on account of its location, direction of route, lucrative end connections, but also on account of its landed endowments, so munificently donated, and money loaned by the State of Texas; that engaged in a work so grand in its auspicious, and promises, and remunerative in its returns, this Convention cannot but express strongly the most energetic prosecution of the work, when the embarrassment that now beset the company shall have been removed; therefore, this Convention does most heartily adopt the spirit and sentiments expressed by the late conventions of stockholders held at Louisville and Cincinnati, and approved by the stockholders in other portions of the Union; and thus approving, this Convention does hereby recommend to its stockholders everywhere, to pledge this Convention to advance fifty cents on each share of five per cent. stock as a loan to said Company, to meet the present emergencies, and this Convention now suggests and recommends that, all stockholders living accessible to this city, at an early day, shall pay over to I. B. Kirtland the advances above specified, to be held by him as trustee, and to be paid over by him into the Treasury of the Company, when a compromise of existing troubles shall be made, and if no compromise should be made, so that the deposit should not be called for, then the money to be refunded to the stockholders advancing it respectively.

Resolved, That this Convention does hereby advise and recommend to all persons indebted to the Company, whether for calls due on stock or otherwise, to pay their debts at the earliest opportunity to the Treasurer of the Company; and if such debtors shall still further persist in refusing to pay their due calls, we advise the Company to forfeit and sell and resell all such delinquent stock until all such calls respectively shall be paid; and we collect whatever deficit there may be under such stock sales in the most expeditious manner.

Resolved, Whereas this Convention has examined the list of liabilities against the Company, and have received explanations satisfactory and credible as to the manner in which these liabilities may be satisfied, it is therefore resolved that with the aid of two hundred thousand dollars in cash, which it is believed will be loaned by the stockholders under the plan suggested and adopted, the entire indebtedness of the Company may be removed immediately, and the great work put upon a basis of credit and prosperity, and the loan of six thousand dollars per mile made by the State of Texas to the Company, upon the completion of the next section of twenty-five miles, making fifty miles of road completed, will make the sum of three hundred thousand dollars, available to the Company, under the loan bill, as a cash fund to pay debts, or aid in the construction of any additional division of the road; and the Company will own, when the fifty miles shall be completed, the road, the three hundred thousand dollars of loan, and five hundred and twelve thousand acres of land and two hundred and seventy thousand dollars now due on calls.

Resolved, That this Convention has confidence in the prompt co-operation of every stockholder, in loaning the amount desired, and perhaps more, if it should be found that it will so act, the liabilities can be promptly met, the Company freed and the work progress; but if we shall be disappointed in this most reasonable expectation, and after all is loaned and paid that can be collected by diligent effort, and a deficit shall remain, this Convention recommends the President of the Company, and such stockholders who may be willing to contribute to make up the deficit and meet the liabilities of the Company, and if the deficit will cannot be met, we cordially approve of the expressed determination of the President to raise the amount needed from third parties, so as to protect his interests and the interests of those who may be associated with him, and such of the stockholders, who may have co-operated with him, in raising the amount needed, as we cannot conceive of what benefit it will be to the stockholders refusing to loan and pay, to have those stockholders who are willing to pay and advance, sink with them, in the general ruin, that most overtake all, on account of such refusal.

Resolved, That we are highly gratified of the deserved compliment paid to the President of this Company, Dr. J. Fowlkes, by the Hon. James Guthrie, late Secretary of the Treasury of the United States, in his speech at the late Louisville Convention, also by the Louisville and Cincinnati Conventions in resolutions, and by the press of these two cities and St. Louis, for the ability, energy and zeal he has manifested in his efforts to rescue our Company from Vandal hands, and impending ruin, and his patriotism in seeking to develope the resources of the State of Texas and the nation; and we do hereby endorse all that is said by these sources about the President, Directors and officers of the Company, for the protection of the Company, and its rights and interests, and we believe that the great object the President has had, and now has in view, is to protect the Company, and each and every Stockholder in the Company with himself.

Resolved, That we recommend all stockholders who have not expressed their views, to meet at convenient points as soon as possible and express their views upon the subjects embraced in these resolutions.

Judge King offered the following, which was adopted:

Resolved, That in the event, I. B. Kirtland declines to act as such trustee, the Chairman is requested to convene the Stockholders and appoint some suitable person who will accept.

On motion, the following was adopted:

Resolved, That the Chairman, and Col. Thos. H. Wiley be requested to furnish a copy of their remarks, and that the President of the Southern Pacific Railroad, also furnish a copy of his report for publication.

On motion of Col. Thos. H. Wiley, the following was adopted:

Resolved, That we approve the course pursued by R. W. Loughery, editor of the Times Revolution, a weekly paper printed in Texas, for his vigilance, firmness, and unwearied devotion to the interests of the old Company, and recommend his paper to the patronage of all the stockholders of the old Company in the Southern Pacific Railroad.

On motion of A. Jones, Esq., it was

Resolved, That the Memphis and other papers throughout the country be requested to publish the proceedings of this meeting.

The meeting then adjourned, sine die.

JNO. MARVIN, Secretary.

FALLING OFF IN EMIGRATION.—For the first time in the history of emigration to the United States from the British Islands, there is now a prospect in the movement towards Australia and Canada over that towards these shores. The official returns made up in England, show this, for the first three months of 1858 the aggregate number of emigrants from Great Britain was 19,000, of whom 8,200 were bound to the United States, against 16,726 for the corresponding period of 1857. Of these, 9,867 were for the Australian colonies. Emigration for all parts of the world has not been so low a figure for fifteen years past as it now is. It attained its maximum figure in 1853, when it reached 372,725. This was reduced to less than one-half in 1857, when the emigration only reached some 180,000.

FASTEST TIME IN THE AIR.—A recent pigeon-flying match was held in Sheffield, England—or rather a sweepstakes, for which pigeons flew—in which the distance of nineteen miles was flown by a young grizzled cock-pigeon in 16 min. 14 sec. This is said by Bell's Life to be the shortest time on record by two seconds; but whether Bell has particular knowledge of competition cotes, or all England, it does not say. 19 miles in 16 min 14 sec. is at the rate of a mile in 51¼ sec., which rather beats a race-horse.

To hate is the Memory of Dr. John P. Wallace.

According to previous notice, the citizens of Panola county met in the Court-House, on Thursday, September 9th, to pay some tribute to the memory of their deceased countryman, Dr. John P. Wallace.

On motion, Col. F. M. White was called to the Chair, and James L. Hoole chosen Secretary.

The object of the meeting was explained by Col. C. Miller, who made some feeling and appropriate remarks, expressive of his high regard for the character of the deceased, whose intimate friendship he had enjoyed for many years.

On motion, a committee of three was appointed to draft suitable resolutions. The committee consisted of Messrs. J. L. Hoole, David S. White and Calvin Miller.

The committee, through their chairman, reported the following preamble and resolutions:

WHEREAS, The sad intelligence has reached us of the death of our friend and countryman, Dr. John P. Wallace, who departed this life in Quitman, S. C., about the 24th of August last, and we, a portion of the citizens of Panola county, here assembled, are desirous of testifying their sincere sorrow for this melancholy event and their respect for his character, therefore,

Resolved, That it is with the deepest emotions of sorrow that we learn of the death of Dr. John P. Wallace, who has been thus cut down in the maturity of life, and in the midst of his usefulness.

Resolved, That the loss of so valuable and esteemed a citizen will ever be a cause of real grief, and we will ever lament him, as one whom we loved for his many virtues, and respected for his talents, industry and his acquirements.

Resolved, That in his death, our county has lost one of its most useful citizens, and who was endeared to his family and numerous friends by every amiable quality, and his death to them must be a source of the deepest affliction.

Resolved, That we truly and sincerely sympathize with the relatives of our deceased friend, and hope that they may bear with patient resignation this sad bereavement.

Resolved, That we tender to the aged mother of the deceased, our warmest condolence for her irreparable loss, and that a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to her.

Resolved, That the proceedings of this meeting be published in the Panola Star and MEMPHIS APPEAL. F. M. WHITE, Pres't.

JAMES L. HOOLE, Secretary.

Correspondence of the Appeal.

CROCKETT, Bowie Co., Texas, Sept. 8, 1858.

MESSRS. EDITORS: How much of change live in a little space.* A day or two since I left Nacidoches, from which point I dropped you a few lines, and after a pleasant ride of a day and night I find myself at this, one of the most flourishing towns in Eastern Texas. The country lying between this place and Crockett is rolling, and in some portions hilly and broken—large portions of it covered with timber, all kinds of oak, pine, ash, hickory and black walnut, with every variety of soil—black, red, gray and sandy, with the best freestone water, gushing out of living springs. The finest corn I found upon the Red Sandy; cotton rather spotted, though much better than in the counties east lying on the Sabine and Neches. Half a dozen different stages lines centre here. The citizens are public spirited—good hotels, schools and churches, society excellent. General Sam Houston passed through here yesterday, on his way to Alto, in Cherokee county. He was in fine health and spirits, and at the supper table, while the conversation turned on several murders that had recently occurred, got off the following to the landlady: "Madam," he says, "you have heard it said, 'that apples, if left to ripen, would soon fall to the ground; that if the gentlemen did not court the lady that the ladies would court them.'" Adding, by way of application, that if men would cease to kill one another, they would soon die. So much for Old Sam, as everybody calls him; he has, like all the rest of the world, some queer ways, but he is a great man for all that.

MUSTANG, JR.

☞ Judge BREESE sends the following letter, intended to define his position. It is published in accordance with his request:

CARLYLE, September 7, 1858.

Rev. W. F. Boyakin, Editor of the Belleville Democrat:

DEAR SIR: I demand as a right to know who requested you to say, as you have said in an editorial in your paper, of the 4th inst., that "Judge Breese is not, nor will he be a candidate for the United States Senate in opposition to Mr. Douglas; and all that has been said in reference to his stumping the State against the Democratic party, is without any foundation whatever."

The article is artifully prepared, but it will not deceive, if such was its object.

It never has been said in any paper, or elsewhere, by anybody, that I intended to stump the State against the Democratic party; hence your disclaimer was wholly unnecessary. You might have sworn, on your friend Caspar Trieber's bible, that I never would be found in opposition to the great Democratic party of the union, whose battles I have helped to fight and win, for more than a quarter of a century. You might take your oath on that without fear.

But I think, friend Boyakin, your ideas of Democracy and mine differ, more essentially. You will pardon me for saying, that yours seem to be concentrated in one man, while mine embrace great principles. Yours seem to tend to the disruption and debauchery of that great party; mine to its conservation and purity. Yours, if carried out, will annihilate it; mine will restore it to its pristine vigor.

What position I may consider it my duty to assume in this contest, now so fiercely waged against the Democracy of the nation, the time tried and time honored principles, and firmer still against him to whom that portion of the nation has committed the power, will depend on circumstances.

Of one thing you may be assured, and my past life is the guaranty, that I will not be silent or inactive when I see, that great party in danger from conspirators within its own bosom, or from foes without. The last are least to be dreaded; their attacks are open in the sunlight, and manly. The conspirator deals his blows secretly; he gets up false issues for the occasion, under cover of which he makes his attack. That species of warfare is now in progress, and I am surprised you do not see it.

They may destroy the citadel, but the foundations will remain; they are everlasting; "the eternal years of God are theirs," and on them the national edifice will be rebuilt, attracting the masses by the beauty of its design, the solidity of its structure, and by the pure purposes to which it will be again dedicated. It will afford an shelter from selfish and intractable ambition, and around its altars will be found none but true and faithful worshippers.

Lend a helping hand to save the present from the assaults of the destroyer, to which you cannot and ought not to be insensible. That shall you be honored of men. That shall you become a bright light and a state guide for your people. Thus only can you preserve the principles you claim to reverence.

I hope you will publish this letter and send me the name of the person who gave the authority you have exercised in regard to me and my name. SIDNEY BREESE.

COTTON SPINNING.—The little check which the consumption of cotton has encountered through the panic of the present year, is passing away, in face of elements which may impart a more rapid consumption, and give a still higher relative value to cotton, since the demand for human clothing, of which cotton is the chief material, is likely to be more important than ever. This influence seems likely to prevent the growth of manufactures in the cotton States. For many years succeeding the tariff of 1828, cotton was very low, so low as to make planting unprofitable, and to impel the migration from the Atlantic States to the valley of the Mississippi, where the cost of cotton raising was less. At the same time it induced the erection of numerous mills in the vicinity of the cotton plantations, the profits of manufacturing being superior to those of planting. Of late years the consumption of cotton has risen naturally upon that fact. Cotton is now more profitably directed to planting.

A yard of sheeting now costs 7½c. against 48½c. in 1844, of which material is 65 per cent. When raw material could be bought for 7c. a few years since, it is obvious that saving the freight, commissions, &c., on the cotton going North, and the goods coming South, gave a larger profit than growing the cotton at that price. When, however, 12 5-8c. ℔ lb can be got for the cotton, with the prospect of a continued rise through insufficient production, the increased profit on 1 lb of cotton is 6½c, or equal to 2¾c. per yard of the cloth, without the employment of any capital in that troublesome branch of business, and in the absence of skilled labor. But the North has to pay so much more for the cotton that its profits on cloth are greatly curtailed, unless it can put in more cheap labor and less cotton, or, in other words, make finer goods. That the South will, however, contend for the manufacture, while, planting is so profitable, is hardly to be supposed, and the history of the trade shows that the United States have gradually succeeded to the control not only of the cotton crop, but also the market of manufactured goods. In 1830, the consumption of raw cotton in the United States was 19 per cent., and the extension of the trade in Europe is such that the Bank of England can no longer govern the price of cotton.—Economist.
