THE APPEAL.

FROM LITTLE ROCK.

LITTLE ROCK, December 8, 1858.

EDITORS APPEAL: Inclosed please find a Bill which I have introduced in the Senate in regard to the railroads in Arkansas. You will perceive that it is intended by this bill to accomplish two important ends: first, to insure the speedy and certain completion of certain railroads in Arkansas, and in which Tennessee is vitally interested; and secondly, ultimately to pay the debt of the State, which has so long hung over us like an incubus, paralyzing all our energies and blighting our best hopes and prospects. Let our railroads be built, and our State debt be paid, and Arkansas would take a position which her immense agricultural and mineral resources justly entitled her to. According to the Auditor's Report, we will have, by the meeting of the next Legislature, two years hence, in the State Treasury, a surplus revenue of about four hundred thousand dollars. The Bill, as you will observe, proposes to loan this surplus revenue to certain railroad companies, on the following conditions—that is to say, when ten consecutive miles of any of said roads are graded, bridged and prepared ready for the reception of the rails, the State shall loan them out of the surplus revenue of the State, ten thousand dollars for every mile so completed, which loan shall be a lien on the road, capital stock, &c., and bear six per cent. interest from the reception, and to be repaid to the State in the bonds of the State, issued to and sold for the benefit of the Bank of the State of Arkansas, on or before the maturity of said bonds.

These bonds will not be due and payable for several years yet to come. By this arrangement the roads would have the use of the money some years, with all the advantages of purchasing State bonds at their market value, and the State at the same time be released of a debt which has been a reproach and stain upon her character for the last fifteen years.

We, in Western Arkansas, are deeply interested in the completion of the Memphis and Little Rock Railroad, and still hope that it will at no very distant day reach Fort Smith, on the western frontier of our State. The people of Arkansas ought to feel under many obligations to Memphis for her efforts to build a railroad in our State and humiliated at our own neglect of this important enterprise, important alike to Tennessee and Arkansas. But we in Western Arkansas think that Memphis is too much inclined to seek an extreme Southern route for the Pacific Railroad. It is hardly probable that the Northern and Northwestern States will ever consent for the Pacific Railroad to come farther South than the 35th parallel of North latitude, and it would seem unjust in us to ask them to do so, and unreasonable to expect them to do it. On an examination of the surveys of the routes, it seems to me that the 35th parallel possesses many natural advantages over the 32d or any other route, and in addition to this, the 35th parallel is not only more central to the States, and consequently would accommodate a greater number of States in the valley of the Mississippi river and on the Atlantic coast, but it also passes through the centre of the immense territories west of us, and which are destined, at no distant day, to form several large States, and which must, from their locations, depend on a railroad to the valley of the Mississippi river as their only means of trade. The rapidity with which these Territories would be settled and become new States for admission into the Union, is an unanswerable argument in favor of the construction of the Pacific Railroad on or near Lieut. Whipple's survey. But suppose the Pacific Road should never be built on any route, let me ask again, what is the course for Memphis to pursue? Spread out the map of the United States before you and you will not be at a loss to see that it is your true interest to direct the Memphis and Little Rock Road towards our Western border. To say nothing about the mineral and agricultural resources of this portion of Arkansas—to say nothing about the coal, lime, lead, zinc and copper, and other mineral wealth which exist in abundance in the mountainous regions of Western Arkansas, and the inexhaustible pine forests which will furnish in abundance tar, pitch, turpentine and lumber, the sale of which some day will be as profitable as the lumber trade of Maine—to say nothing about the beef, pork, corn, wheat, oats, peaches, apples and tobacco, and other agricultural productions, which would be produced in great abundance in Western Arkansas if we had any means of getting our surplus produce to market, together with all the accumulated wealth which the future growth of our State must, in time, produce. Still we have an empire west of us which, in a very short time, will compose four or five large States.

The tributaries of the Arkansas and Red rivers afford fine agricultural regions, equal to any portion of the Union. This will be soon settled with white men, and even the plains, which are still beyond, will be settled with herdsmen, who will raise great quantities, mules, horses, and buy cattle for market, while the Rocky mountains will be covered with flocks of sheep. When all these things are considered, I think you will agree with me that it is your interest to point and direct the Memphis road toward the western portion of Arkansas, on or near the 35th parallel, and complete it to Fort Smith, in Sebastian county. But you say, why don't Arkansas turn her attention to this? Ah, why has she not? But it is hoped she will do so in earnest. But we want your aid and political influence; you will share in the ultimate profits and benefits of this enterprise; the very hopes of its completion will add greatly to the future growth of Memphis.

A resolution was passed at this session of the General Assembly of the State of Arkansas, by a vote of two to one in each House, instructing our representatives in Congress to use all their influence to procure the construction of the Pacific Railroad on the 35th parallel, and so far as our State is concerned, her representatives will take a position in favor of that route.

I do not know your feelings on the subject, but I think that it is for the interest of Tennessee to do so too.

We have in Sebastian county, near Fort Smith, as fine coal as there is to be found in any part of the United States, and in great abundance, and could compete with Pennsylvania in the coal trade, if we had any way to get it to market, but which must remain useless in the bowels of the earth, for the want of a railroad to carry it to market. There is also an abundance of fine productive land in all western Arkansas, which is being settled rapidly with an industrious and enterprising population, which would be quadrupled in a short time if we had a railroad to the Mississippi river. With sentiments of high esteem,

I am, very respectfully, yours, &c.,

GREEN. J. CLARK.

A BILL. To be entitled an act to aid in the construction of the different railroads in the State of Arkansas.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Arkansas, That the surplus revenue now in the State Treasury, not otherwise appropriated; and also all such surplus revenue as may hereafter accumulate in the State Treasury, not to exceed the amount of principal and interest of the bonds of the State of Arkansas, issued to and sold for account of "the Bank of the State of Arkansas," and which are still unpaid, be, and the same is hereby appropriated to the following purpose. viz: That, whenever "the Cairo and Fulton Railroad Company," "the Memphis and Little Rock Railroad Company," "the Mississippi, Ouachita and Red River Railroad Company," or "the Little Rock and Fort Smith Railroad Company," shall have ten continuous miles of either or any of said railroads graded, bridged and fully prepared for the reception of the rails, and shall present to the Governor the written affidavits of the President and Chief Engineer of such railroad company, that the said ten miles be the duty of the Governor to issue a certificate in favor of said company having prepared ten continuous miles of any of said roads, as aforesaid, for the sum of ten thousand dollars for every mile of such road so prepared, and ready for the rails, which certificate shall authorize and require the Auditor to draw his warrant on the Treasurer in favor of such company, for the amount specified in the Governor's certificate.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, That on the presentation of the Auditor's warrant, mentioned in the preceding section, to the Treasurer, it shall be his duty to pay the same out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, and upon the payment of the money by the Treasurer to said company, the State of Arkansas shall be invested with a lien without a deed from said company upon the road so prepared, and upon the rails and equipments put upon or to be put upon the same, and upon the capital stock subscribed.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, Whenever any of said companies shall have graded, bridged, and fully prepared, ready for the rails, another section of ten continuous miles of any of such road, as in this act specified, it shall be the duty of the Governor to give such company another certificate for the additional sum of ten thousand dollars, for such additional mile of road so prepared, and so on from time to time, until the whole amount herein appropriated shall be exhausted.

Sec. 4. Be it further enacted, That the whole amount of the indebtedness of such railroad companies to the State of Arkansas, by the provisions of this act, shall be paid by said companies to the State, in the bonds of the State of Arkansas, issued to and sold for the Bank of the State of Arkansas, on or before the maturity of said bonds.

Sec. 5. Be it further enacted, That the said railroad companies shall pay six per cent. per annum interest upon each amount received by them, respectively, from the time of such receipt until repaid to the State as aforesaid.

Sec. 6. Be it further enacted, That if any of the aforementioned railroad company or companies, shall have prepared or completed any portion of said railroad, or railroads, according to the provisions of this act, before its passage, such company or companies shall be entitled to the benefit of this act, and shall be entitled to receive ten thousand dollars for each mile so prepared or completed on the terms and conditions hereinbefore specified.

Sec. 7. Be it further enacted, That this act shall be in force and take effect from and after its passage.
