

OLD FOXY SENATORS.

SOUTH CAROLINA THINKS HAMPTON SHOULD RETIRE.

Growing Power of the Farmers' Alliance—Governor Richardson a Favorite—Senator Butler's Enlargement Bill Unpopular.

Special Correspondence of THE CRITIC.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Feb. 15.—Senator Wade Hampton is likely to have trouble in retaining his seat in the Senate at the expiration of his present term, which is soon to expire.

The people of this State would not like to see Hampton out, for they are so grateful to a people to forget his great services to the State during the reconstruction times.

However, they would be very glad to see him go, and the Senate, come home and not ask to be sent back when his term expires next year.

I find the people who are controlling the affairs of this State rather than those who will control them in the future, want a vigorous and aggressive man to represent them in the Senate.

One who is thoroughly imbued with the spirit of the New South, Senator Hampton, they think, is not what they want, but too old foxy, and that his days of usefulness in the Senate are past.

As a man, they love and respect him as much as ever, but they cannot see how he can do any more for the State by remaining in Washington, and as he cannot attract the attention of his State that these proud people would like, they cannot see why he should wish to be continued in the Senate.

South Carolina is one of the last States in this section to become thoroughly aroused to entering actively into the progress that is now being displayed over the Southern States.

She is now not only awakened regarding commercial and industrial affairs, but also in her politics. The people who are doing the most in pushing the State forward believe that they should be represented in Congress by men of modern ideas and of push and energy.

Hence they are tired of keeping men in office whose days of usefulness are gone, and whose ideas are a quarter of a century behind the times.

For many years the State has been controlled by half a dozen men. This condition of affairs will not continue much longer, for these men must now step aside and let younger men take their place.

The Farmers' Alliance has become very powerful during the last few months. In every part of the State which I have visited it is generally conceded among all classes of people that the farmers will control the next election here.

However, they do not expect that the control will be a permanent one. They think that it will be like the Grange craze that sprung up a few years ago in the Southern States, which was followed by a Greenback craze.

Anyway, it would not injure the Democratic party, because the members of the Alliance are all Democrats. Benjamin Tillman was one of the leading spirits in the Alliance, but they say he has injured himself, and now Colonel Stockhouse is the man who will be most highly honored by the farmers.

Should the farmers take control of the State, and although 60 years of age, he is still a very vigorous and aggressive person. He is known as the silver-tongued orator of South Carolina, and his admirers think that he would be able to control the Senate, and reflect great credit upon the State.

They say that he would be better able to answer Republican Senators like Ingalls and Chandler than any other man in the Senate, with the possible exception of Senators Vest and Blackburn.

Senator Butler has considerable time yet to serve, so that there is not much talk yet as to his successor. He, too, is tired of the old foxy men who would suit the element of the Democracy here that is slowly but surely pushing itself to the front.

I have been in many parts of the State, and have conversed with all classes of the people, at their homes and on the railroad trains, and with very few exceptions, they do not believe in Senator Butler's now famous bill, which proposes to appropriate money to aid the negroes in their struggle for the right to vote in the State particularly, which is rapidly being developed, both in railroad facilities and its mining resources, and where towns are springing up and large factories are being built.

Every body agrees that the best way to the bill particularly great. Every body agrees that the negro is by far the best laborer, and that they need him in the South. I have a friend who is operating a large mine and employing negroes, and he tells me that the negroes make splendid miners, and that he would not give one of them for three Southern white men for the use to which he puts them.

There are many who are more favorable, and can be depended upon to work six days out of the week. The poor white man down here only works when the whim or need takes him, and he is very hard to discipline. There is quite a feeling of revulsion against the negro, and they prefer making slow and few sales with a large profit to quick and many sales with a small profit.

I had a personal experience, which I think is a good illustration of this. I am a stenographer, but nobody could tell me where I could find one. Everybody I met said they thought there was one in town, employed by some legal firm, but I was unable to find one.

I was then told that the certain one, who I presumed that one of the large wholesale houses had one, and that I might engage one after business hours, so I made a tour of all the business houses, and I found one who had one, but when I went to discover what type-writing machine he had, he told me that he had none. The houses seemed to prefer to employ five or six corresponding clerks, which must cost them $100 a week and over, when a good stenographer and type-writer would have been glad to do the work for $20 a week.

What Horace Greeley once said of St. Louis is certainly true of Charleston. What it wants is a number of first-class talents. There has been a slight improvement in the condition of affairs during the last year or so. A number of the younger element of the business community are working like beavers to infuse new life into the old city, and nobody who knows Charleston can help but hope that they will succeed, for in many respects it is a delightful place.

The leading men among this enterprising element, among whom is ex-Mayor Gordon, have formed a stock company, and started a very vigorous daily newspaper called the World. The paper does not hesitate to point out the shortcomings of the business people of the city, and warn them of their danger. A gentleman, who is a member of this circle of citizens, said that even yet Charleston had her future in her own hands. He said there were $7,000,000 of $8,000,000 lying idle in the banks; that some of the banks were so full that they had to cease opening accounts with new depositors. If this money should be invested in railroads the city would come out all right.

It is conceded that the money is a large city somewhere near here, on the coast, and there is great danger now that Port Royal will be that one. It is about sixty miles south of Charleston and has a magnificent harbor. The largest ship outfit could come up there at high tide, and there is a belief that some of the trunk lines that are now building in this direction have their eye on that point as a terminus. Should they decide to make it such it would be a severe blow to Charleston, and even Savannah might suffer some.

The Chicago, Cincinnati and Charleston road, which is owned, principally, by New England capital, may be here if she does not get a proper inducement from Charleston. The Kansas City, Springfield and Memphis Railroad, which intends to terminate on the Atlantic Coast, would also be likely to go there. In that case, the trunk lines would terminate there. There is a belief here that the Plant system, through some Pennsylvania parties, have purchased a lot of land at Port Royal, and they are not sure that they will sell another Chicago or Kansas City to spring up at that point.

HARRY WALKER, PETER JACKSON ARRIVES.

Parson Davies Discusses His Protest and Pugnacious Matters.

Peter Jackson, the colored pugilist, who is to fight John L. Sullivan, provided the California Athletic Club and Sullivan agree upon the amount of the purse, has arrived in the city. He attracted little attention, save from the people about the depot, who eyed the stalwart, well-dressed colored man with considerable curiosity. Jackson is in the hands of Parson Davies.

"Jackson," said the Parson, "is willing to fight Sullivan or anyone else, but he is not issuing any challenges. Jackson is a very good man, with the California Athletic Club to meet anyone they match him against, and if the club makes a match for him with Sullivan, or any one else, he will fulfill his duty to make it such it would be a fight between them. But I will say that Jackson is a very good man, and his fight with Smith in England, and from the start Jackson showed himself to be the better man. Smith is big, enough and strong enough to make a good fighter, but he is not nearly so good as Jackson. Jackson is clever and could hit harder and had little trouble in defeating him. Jackson is not afraid of Sullivan, but he is not looking for a fight, still, if the California Athletic Club meets him, and his views regarding a purse, why Jackson will be on hand to meet him. As the matter stands at present the club has agreed to give a purse of $15,000 and Sullivan has avowed his intention of accepting the conditions offered."

A Fair Trial is all that is asked for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in all blood taints, or skin diseases, eruptions, blotches, pimples and scurfous sores and swellings. It is the best remedy for all these troubles. It is the best remedy for all these troubles. It is the best remedy for all these troubles.

Looked Like a Chinney-Sweep. Abraham Johnson was charged in the Police Court this morning with being a vagrant, and he looked like it. He has been sleeping around hallways and freight cars for several weeks past, but judging from his appearance he has been a vagrant for a long time. He has a white man and a negro. He was originally white. He will sleep in the workhouse for the next three months.

CITY SPECIALS.

Boy Tutor Merchants at Home.

There is no good or justifiable reason why any one residing in this city should go to New York to buy the same class of goods as you can find here. The furniture line, upholstered decorations, etc., go direct to Houston & Co.'s representative establishment, at 324 and 326 street, northwest, and there you will find the same class of goods that will be shown you in New York, and at the same prices, and there is no need of money and vacation of spirit, and at the same time assisting to build up one of the best concerns in the world.

Rodden's Representative Installation House. This reliable installation establishment, at 500 and 502 Seventh street, has a complete stock of all kinds of merchandise that is required for a well-regulated household at cash prices on the installment plan, and dictate your own terms.

John Fairfax's an incorrigible colored youth who refuses to live in the comfortable home his father has provided for him, but spends his time working the growler and loafing around with a gang of young loafers. His father therefore had him arrested for vagrancy. Judge Miller took his personal bonds upon the young man's promising to stay at home and obey his father in the future.

Effects of Five-Cent Whisky. When Ella Price, a young colored woman, alarmed the residents of I. street southeast on Saturday night by shouts of "murder," it was only five-cent whisky that had attacked her. She was arrested and had to pay $5 this morning for her fun.

Infants Strangled. Two dead colored infants were picked up yesterday. One, which had been strangled to death, was found by a park watchman in Judiciary Square, and the other was found in a vacant lot on Second street northeast. Both were taken to the morgue.

THE APPROACH OF catarrh is most insidious; and the more slowly it comes the longer it will last. Old Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People is the simplest and surest remedy known. 50 cents.

Miss Tillman's Little Sister.

Ten colored boys, whose ages ranged from 10 to 17 years, were in the Police Court this morning charged with creating a disturbance at a birthday party at the house of Lizzie Tillman, in Getting's alley, last Monday night.

They bustle down in Judge, and one of them heaved a brick in and I cotched it in my mouth. Der a bad judge, Judge, indeed dey is. Dey is called de 'Lousy Ten.'

The police showed Miss Tillman to be in the habit of giving parties about every week, an admission fine of 10 cents being charged, and a good deal of drinking and fighting being indulged in. These "parlor socials," as they are called, give a good deal of trouble to the police and have resulted in a number of homicides.

Judge Miller, while agreeing that these parlor socials were unwholesome and should be put down, imposed $5 fine on each of the prisoners for disturbing the peace.
