THANKS.—For late papers, we thank T. F. Fuller, of the Fairchild.

LITERARY.—Hite, at his stand at the Worsham, has all the literary papers—Harper, Leslie, the New York Ledger, etc.

☞ The Rev. R. Burrow, Sr., will preach at the First Cumberland Presbyterian Church this day. Services at 10½ o'clock A. M.

INDICTED.—The Grand jury has indicted a true bill—for being guilty of the murder on a flat boat on Wolfe River a few days ago—against Calvin Rencrans.

☞ Rev. Wm. Carey Crane, President of Sample Brooks College, will preach at the First Baptist Church this morning and tonight, at the usual hours.

TAKE BOLD.—Isaac and Spencer, the two negro slaves charged with shooting and killing Mr. Lonsdale's overseer in the woods at Fort Pickering, were yesterday indicted by the grand jury.

HOPEFIELD.—The frequent firing heard yesterday afternoon took place in Hopefield. It was on the occasion of locating the county seat building site there, according to the vote of the people at the recent election.

SENTENCED TO THE PENITENTIARY.—Since the opening of the present term of the Criminal Court, eighteen persons have been sentenced to the penitentiary. Three of them have appealed.

NO LICENSE.—Augustus Echelli was fined six dollars for peddling watches without license. He proved, however, that he was merely showing sampler to wholesale houses, and taking orders; and the fine was remitted.

BIBLE REVISION.—A lecture on the revision of the Bible will be delivered on Sunday morning, the 20th inst., at half-past ten o'clock in the Christian Church on Linden street, near the corner of St. Patrick, by Elder Jacob Creach of Missouri.

DISCHARGED.—W. J. Bennett, who was arrested on Friday, on the charge of barbering runaway slaves, was yesterday discharged by "Squire Horne. A neighbor of his named McNamee has been held to bail, on charge of being concerned in the same offense. The parties reside on the Hernando road, near the toll bar.

DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION.—The attention of the reader is invited to the proceedings of the Democratic State Convention, which assembled at Nashville on Thursday last. The utmost harmony characterized the action of the convention. "How pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity!"

THE BOGUS SCAM.—According to announcement, the Daniel Boone was put up at auction yesterday morning by U. S. Marshal McClanahan. It was bought by J. R. Archer, for the Memphis and New Orleans Packet Company—who will run it in the summer trade—at the price of $11,100.

LETTER LIST.—An unusual, the LETTER LIST appears in this morning's paper. It is published in the paper alone, owing to the fact that it has the largest circulation within the delivery of the Memphis post-office. Copies of this day's APPEAL can be had at our counting room up to 10 o'clock this morning.

SERENE JUSTICE.—James Goulding and Richard Wilmston, who stole a sum of money from the pockets of Singleton's pantaloons at Richard's chicken roost, as stated by us yesterday, were yesterday tried at the Criminal Court, found guilty, and sentenced to five years each in the penitentiary.

MORE GRAVELING.—Although the fact is now demonstrated that graveling streets is an utter failure, and has so been officially announced by the Mayor, it is still being laid down on our streets. Council passed a resolution on Tuesday night that the plank which has lately been laid down on Union street should be taken up again, that gravel may be put down in the place of it.

A WIFE WHIPPED.—Barney Dunn's wife, being sick and obliged to keep her bed, Barney missed some of his usual comforts; and, feeling vexed on that account, he set on and whipped his wife with a degree of knavery few men are capable of exhibiting. Barney was taken before the Recorder; he had been before him previously, for a similar offense. The Recorder sent him to the chain gang for a hundred and three days.

LECTURE AT ONE FELLOWS' HALL.—Rev. Dr. Baird will deliver a course of lectures at Odd Fellows' Hall, commencing on Thursday night the 24th instant. The introductory lecture will be free. Parties there is no other accession of which it can with so much truth be said, "he has raphatically stood before kings," as Dr. Baird. During a sojourn of nearly eighteen years in Europe, he has obtained a thorough knowledge of the institutions, customs and specialities of the different people of the Eastern continent, and his lectures upon these topics are of thrilling interest.

EDITORIAL CHANGE.—Mr. J. J. Dudley has disposed of his interest in the Bolivar Bonanza to Mr. J. E. Bowers, and retired from the paper. His place as editor will be taken by our old friend, Mr. George W. Talbot, formerly of the Jackson (Tenn.) Republican. Mr. Talbot has both experience and ability as an editor, is of gentlemanly demeanor, a well-posted politician, and we congratulate the Democracy of old Hardeman on his accession to the post. Mr. Bowers, the proprietor and publisher, is an enterprising business man, and we commend his paper to our business men as an excellent advertising medium.

A WASHERWOMAN ON A SPREE.—Hannah Shelley is a washerwoman at one of our principal hotels, and an Irish washerwoman at that. The day before St. Patrick's, she got drank in anticipation of the day; and, entering the dining room, she cut up several capers not set down in the bill of fare. Her extraordinary enthusiasm was kindly overlooked; but the next day she got drunk in honor of St. Patrick, and repeated the previous day's performances, with a few extras. The Recorder had her before him yesterday, and she was sent to wash in jail, with moderate fare and no pay, for the next twenty days.

MORE FRAUD IN COTTON PACKING.—Yesterday, as Capt. Wormeley was having some cotton weighed that had been sold, he noticed one small bale of very nice cotton, that had bought twelve cents a pound, drew a much greater weight than he would have judged by the size of it. This led him to an examination, which disclosed the fact that the good cotton was very thinly plated on the outside—so thinly that it was suggested the outside was more by calculation with the good cotton, while the interior was clay, and dirt, and targeted cotton; that looks as if it had been scraped from the surface of a field (and had been well raised over, before the operation was performed. Here is another instance of shameful, deliberate, thievish fraud, committed by persons who are no better than the utterers of forged bank notes. This bale came from the neighborhood of Salisbury, Tenn., and the planter there will soon be compelled to pay back the money he has gained by cheating and swindling. He may be thankful if he gets off so easily, for a worse fate will overtake some of these cotton swindlers. We asked Judge Brown yesterday what legal position such delinquents stood in? He replied that they are liable to a heavy fine and imprisonment, and he felt sure that no court in Tennessee would sentence a man who would pack such a bale as the one in question, to less than twelve months' imprisonment. Let the cotton swindler in the neighborhood of Salisbury reflect upon that.

The Spiritual Debate.

Last night, very early, the entire area of Odd Fellows' Hall was densely packed with persons anxious to hear the debate between Prof. Britten and Dr. Barber, upon spiritualism. The proportion of ladies was quite large, and no portion of the audience appeared more interested in the proceedings than they.

Prof. Britten commenced by paying a compliment to the absence of intolerance and the urbanity of manner of his opponent. He then criticised an expression of Dr. Barber's on the previous evening, when he said he knew not in what condition a man's spirit remained, from the time of his death to that of his resurrection. He contended that the subject was one for legitimate inquiry. Nature invites investigation into all her secrets, and this was not excluded. The Doctor had accused spiritualists of desiring to be wise beyond what is written. They did so, for the Bible told nothing of anatomy, physiology, psychology, and other things. If the Doctor knew anything about the condition of the spirits of men after death, how did he know they could not do the things spiritualists attributed to them?

The Professor put in an eloquent plea for man's right to investigate in anything and everything, and delicately insinuated—for with the delicacy of a true knight he avoided all harsh expressions—that ignorance was the mother of devotion. He then defended the memory of Baron Swendenborg from the supersition that the reversed Doctor had cast upon his sanity. In this connection he read some passages from the Baron's writings that showed him to have had quite a comfortable gossiping acquaintance with dead men's souls, and ghastly creatures generally. We have certainly heard men in asylums make claims very much of the same kind.

The speaker said that the prophets of old, the shepherds who received the tidings of the Savior's birth, and Jacob, when he had the vision of the ladder, saw same wonderful things; and he did not see why the introduction to spiritual company should be so very select. He claimed for himself and his co-believers a little acquaintance in the same line. Moreover, these men were not called insane, and why should Swedenborg?

The Professor then objected to the Doctor's calling spiritualism St. Vitus' dance. He told how three physicians set over a young lady in New York, and pronounced her under the influence of something supernatural. She came to herself in spite of them, and spirits, and gave some very wonderful accounts of the spiritual company she had been in, which, it is to be hoped, was such as a modest girl might properly keep. The story of the Rev. C. Harvey being knocked ten feet from the desk he was going to speak at, was next re-peated, and enlarged upon. The speaker contended that the phenomenon was due to no mere condition of the brain. Was Paul's brain in a morbid state when he had the spiritual vision on his way to Damascus? It was well certainly not to account for the Bible facts one way and the spiritualist's facts in another.

Dr. Barbed here took the floor, the half-hour being up. The Doctor was evidently on his mettle, and determined not to let his adversary off so easily as he had done the night before. He gave the Professor a first-class certificate for rhetoric, he was certainly a capital declaimer, but he (Dr. Barbed) had not as high claims to logical skill, and he was going to show it. He should call attention to two principles: the first was that in controversy the proof must be homogenous with the proposition; the second was—we never heard what, and believe the Doctor forgot to say. He claimed that a proposition was under discussion; he doubted if three-fourths of the audience knew what it was—we doubted it too, and we are satisfied that if the debaters knew they forgot it three-fourths of the time. The Doctor stated what the proposition was, but the debate had so little to do with it that we will not trouble the reader by repeating it. The Doctor then very unceremoniously accused "his friend" of not having brought forward any proof to show that dead people's souls go to neighboring planets in two ones. True, he asserted that chairs danced, tables tipped, and pianos played universal smash, and laid all the disturbance to the doings of dead men's spirits, and beyond that, if Dr. Barbed contradicted the assertion, it was for him to explain how the babbery was kicked up. But the Doctor declared that the Professor might make what assertions he pleased about things being tumbled over and played upon, but why should he say dead men's spirits were the cause of the mess? Asking to have such a grounless proposition defined, and how much like asking if half a dozen eggs cost twenty-five cents, how long will it take for a man to walk from Boston to Philadelphia?

He was ready to go an agate pebble, it falls down again. Why? Nobody knows. The speaker asked the audience sitting three—philosophers say, and the speaker knows, that they all appear on the retina of his eye inverted. (Sensation among the ladies and some blushing.) Yet he saw them upright (signs of relief among the aforesaid), here was their? No, body knows. The Professor says spirits have intercourse with the flesh; so, perhaps they have something to do with it, and—perhaps they have not. The Professor's speech put the Doctor in mind of the harp of a thousand strings, in the sermon upon which the preacher spoke of many kinds of spirits—black spirits and gray, and spirits of wine, spirits of turpentine, and of raw spirits—for "he played on a harp of a thousand strings, spirits of just men made perfect." Just as the negro brought in the harp of a thousand strings, so did the Professor bring in spiritual agency, without rhyme or reason. (The Doctor hit him that time.)

The Doctor then related how he once attended a spiritual circle. He called for all his live sisters, but not a responsive affirmative tap came from the table. He then called for the spirit of his brother John; the table intimated that John was present. The Doctor asked John a good many things, and the spiritualists were delighted with the way John tipped himself into the table, but the table, "And now," said the Doctor to the audience, "I will tell you a secret I have never told before; but it is too good to be lost, and here it is—I never had a brother John." (Immense roar of laughter from the audience—a small shower of he, he, hes, then another roar, and so on. This was a decided hit for the Doctor.)

One of the circle then asked the table to move toward the Doctor, and to sit in his lap. (Very naughty, for in French a table is of the female gender.) The table began to move, and the lady took it! (We have heard there are strange things in spiritual circles—a lady medium moving toward the lap of a gentleman divine!) The Doctor saw this would not do, and he willed that the table should stop at a certain spot, and it did, and could get no further. We are by this that if the Doctor is free from spiritualism, he is full of some other isms, and that is animal magnetism, in which he avowed his full belief, and to which he attributed many of the facts in spiritualism; he had indeed subdued other minds by his own will. It was not for him, however, to account for the strange things in spiritualism; the Professor said all was done by dead men's souls, and he must prove it—if he could.

The Doctor then read one or two of those odd kind of narratives the spiritual papers contain in such profusion; especially he read two verses of execrable doggerel, one of which the medium ascribed to George Washington's spirit, the other to Dr. Franklin's. These alleged communications with spirits the Doctor attributed entirely to animal magnetism. He was ready to grant most of the facts, all might occur, but some he doubted, as they took place only in the d-a-r-k, and that was suspicious. (Here the Doctor virtually gives in; he allows the premises, the "facts" a little "intuitive" must lead the Doctor among the table, tipping ghost-seers after this admission.) He thought tables could be moved as easily by spiritualists the flesh as by spirits out of the flesh. (He had shown in the sitting he had, that a table could be stopped by a spirit in the flesh.) This by-the-bye, the Doctor thought was quite as good as that of his friend; still he did not know how all the strange things were done, neither did his friend. In the times of the Apostles miracles were wrought and tongues spoken, that thereby men might be convinced of the truth of Christianity.

In speaking of "being wise above what is written," he had not intended to refer to the sciences, but to theological knowledge. If the Scriptures will make us wise to salvation, what more do we want from the spirits of dead men? The speaker next accused his opponent of "begging the question." He finally contended that his friend could not prove that the spirit, after it left the body, had any other body given to it until the resurrection. In conclusion, he remarked that he was still of opinion that Swedenborg was insane.

Professor Britten then commenced his second speech, and was succeeded by Dr. Barbed who closed the debate. We have taken notes of the concluding speeches; but the above, with what we gave yesterday, will show how little attention was given by either of the speakers to the question professedly under discussion, which was—Do the spirits of departed human beings with the bodies? Prof. Britten, of course, should have taken the affirmative, proving, let, that unusual occurrence had taken place; 2d, that the authors of these events were disembodied spirits.

His course was really to name a number of facts which he asserted had occured, and then to assert that spirits were the authors of those occurrences. Instead of proving the latter assertion, he illogically threw it upon his opponent to prove the negative, saying, if you say spirits are not the authors of these events, then prove to me what is. The point of Juggernaut could say with equal reason, or rather equally without reason, such and such cures have been wrought, and other wonders performed at this temple. I say Juggernaut did them; if you say he did not, then prove what did.

Dr. Barbed admitted the asserted "facts" of spiritualism; he only differed with the spiritualists in attributing them to a cause styled "animal magnetism." He also asserted a peculiar theory of insanity, one that would include all men among the mad—and by the aid of these two things he strove to stem the torrent of assertion which fell so confidently from the lips of his opponent. Where such was the course of debate, the question of course was lost; where the scales been were when a pound of feathers was put in one scale, and a pound of sponge in the other. The spiritualist Professor has gained the only tangible advantage that fell to the share of either; for the opposition of a reversed divine to his doctrines brought him a crowded audience where he would have been left with empty benches.

River News.

The river, yesterday evening, stood at ten and a half inches below high water mark—two inches lower than on Friday, one foot and a half inches lower than the greatest light of the present rise. The boats arriving from below speak of new breaks in the levee, and continued alarm and distress among the people by the river bottoms.

The famous Philadelphia, the regular Monday St. Louis packet, commanded by Capt. Marshal—Technoli, clerk—will leave to-morrow at 4 o'clock. This is a fine boat, and the officers are experienced and kind gentlemen. A trip to St. Louis on the Philadelphia will prove a very agreeable occasion.

The Moses McLellan, Capt. Erwine, will leave at 4 o'clock to-morrow evening for Louisville. The superiority of this packet is undoubted, and a run up the Ohio on board her will be found a most charming occasion.

The Nebraska, the splendid New Orleans Monday packet, will leave to-morrow evening for its down trip. This is a great boat, and its passengers never fail to be well attended to.

The New Orleans Crescent of Wednesday last reports:

There was some talk about the river, and the apparent great stage of water. To remove all apprehensions, we have to state that the river is not so high at this time as it has been a dozen times in the month of March during the present century. There is no doubt the levees have been neglected, and fears are now entertained that crevasses may occur. The levee near Carrollton created considerable alarm on Monday and yesterday by breaking or weakening in such a manner as to let the river trickle through and threaten a crevasse. The Street Commissioner, by direction of some of the Aldermen to whom the matter had been reported, sent up a gang of men with spades and wheelbarrows to put a stop to the leak. Capt. James Roberts, of the steamer Saracen, was dangerously stabbed on board the boat on Monday evening, by John White, the clerk. How the affair came about we did not learn. The captain's wound was a ghastly gash in the abdomen. He was put under the care of Drs. Berthelot and Drew, who are doing their best for him, and expect him to recover. White was arrested. The papers are becoming alarmed on account of the high state of the river, and are calling attention to the condition of the levees.

The following we copy from the Louisville Courier:

We learn that while Mr. Frank Matheny, of this city, pilot on the N. W. Thomas, was asleep in his berth, at Cincinnati, he was obliged to leave his room on the second story with an iron poker. He was very seriously wounded, though luckily not crippled. We did not hear the names of the men, but believe they are Cincinnati pilots.

The levee above DeSoto City gave way on the 16th, making a crevasse some five or six feet deep and twenty feet broad. Several hands were at work near the "break" at the time of its giving way, but in consequence of the rapid rush of the water from the river through the crevasse, they were compelled to abandon their work. The river is still rising, and there is no telling whether it can be stopped or not.

At Bayou crevasse the work done since the flood of last year seems to stand the heavy pressure of the present high water without difficulty.

The Yazoo river, says the Yazoo American, of the 10th, is rising rapidly at that point and above.

RECORDER'S COURT.—At this court yesterday there were nine cases, all of which were found guilty. For being drunk, John Cashlen, John Davis and John Bain were sent to the chain-gang. Drunk and disorderly: John Summers was fined, Hannah Shelley and Barney Dunn were put on the chain-gang. For peddling without license Augustus Echelli was fined. For misdemeanor, E. D. Kennedy's case continued. For being drunk, Adam, alias of R. B. Hawley, was ordered thirty-nine lashes.

BETTER THAN GAS LIGHT.—We saw, last night, one of Ambrose's large lamps, for burning coal oil, for offices, stores, etc. The light is unmingled with the red rays of the gas light; it is mild clear and agreeable. He has received at his store, on Monroe street, east of Main, a supply of elegant parlor, hall and office lamps. Give him a call.

MEMPHIS AND CHARLESTON RAILROAD.—We have been favored by T. H. Busch, Esq., Ticket Agent of the above road, with the following statement of its earnings for the month of February: Total number of passengers over the road, 18,572. Passenger receipts, $36,860.67; freight receipts, $47,619.27; express and privileges, $997.43; mail service, $4,397.81. Total, $111,055.98.

DEPARTURE OF UNITED STATES SENATORS. The Hons. R. W. Johnson and W. K. Sebastian left for their respective homes in Arkansas, on the Victoria, yesterday afternoon. During their sojourn in our city they were visited by a number of their warm friends, who took them in high estimation as good citizens and accomplished gentlemen.

DENTAL.—We wish to call the attention of the people generally to the card of Dr. Howcott, who is now getting a large practice and is well prepared to perform all dental operations in the most approved style, and guarantee satisfaction, at moderate prices. All the reference he wishes to give, is a fair trial of his work.

THE BELL RINGERS.—It should not be forgotten that to-morrow night the Swiss and Lancashire Bell Ringers, with the celebrated Peak family will be here, and give one of their stirring and fascinating concerts. It is seldom that such an opportunity of hearing music so rare is offered. Odd Fellows' Hall will be the center of attraction to-morrow night.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK.—Messrs. George Pattison & Co., have laid on our table Godey's Lady's Book for April. Like most of its predecessors, it is a most elegant number, and contains the Latest fashions, gotten up in the most elegant style, besides a large quantity of excellent reading matter.

☞ We are indebted to our friend, C. H. Whitmore, Esq., editor of the Nashville Democrat, for a copy of the Nashville Union of Friday morning, from which we copy the proceedings of the Democratic State Convention. We tender to him our warmest thanks for his attention.

☞ The Rev. Dr. Ross, of Huntsville, Alabama, will deliver the third in the series of lectures, before the Young Men's Christian Association this evening, at 7½ o'clock in the Second Presbyterian Church. Subject, "The Two Swords."

In Charleston, on the 16th, there was a good demand for cotton, which opened with sales of 500 bales in the City of Washington, 200 bales were sold, prices advanced 1 to 2 cents, and closed firm at 1 to 2 cents higher than 12 o'clock. The market closes at extreme prices.

James Hewett & Co.'s Liverpool Circular.

We are pleased to note from 96 to 9 Saturday, of the Liverpool market, by the Glasgow, Cleopatra, and steamer Arabia.

LIVERPOOL, February 25.—The demand for cotton has continued unremitting, and our accounts of the week have proved correct at London to an great, that the Bank of England, which usually acts as moderator, is compelled to raise its rate of discount. Advices from the interior continue very unfavorable to anything like easier money.

Breadstuffs have very steady all this week, and the prices have been consistently closing to-day at about 96s.

COTTON.—Notwithstanding more unfavorable political matters than for many weeks past, and larger receipts at the American ports than anticipated, there has been a steady demand throughout the entire week, and holders have firmly held for full prices. Sales of 10,000 bales have been established. Middling Orleans being now adjusted 7 7-16d, Mobile 6 15-16d, and Uplands 6¾d.

The Manchester market for yarns and varn remains very firm, and in some cases is slightly dearer; but business is but active in consequence of the inability of spinners to make deliveries to any reasonable time, their engagements for future delivery being very extensive. The aggregate sales this week amount to 22,400 bales, and the sales to 22,000, of which 2700 were taken on speculation, and 4000 for export. Today 2000 bales sold—the market closing steady. We quote:

REDUCED BY DYSPEPSIA TO A MERE SKELETON.—Cured by "Barkins's Holland Bitters." Mr. A. Matchett, a trader, probably as well known as any man in Western Pennsylvania, states as follows: "I met with a farmer in Armstrong county who was reduced by Dyspepsia to a mere skeleton. I prevailed him to buy a bottle of Barkins's Holland Bitters, believing it would cure him. Meeting him some months after, what was my astonishment at finding him a hale, hearty man; he told me he now weighed 200 pounds, and that this wonderful change had been produced by Barkins's Holland Bitters, to which he attributed solely his restoration."
