POETICAL.

THE KISS.

1. Admit the Senses tell me this
What is the thing we call a kiss?
2. I shall resolve ye what it is:
It is a creature hot and hot
Between the lips, all cherry red,
By love and warm desires bed.
Chorus—And makes men at the bridal feet
2. It is a spiritual dew that dies
First to the lover, then the eyes,
And charms them blind with lightning
Chorus—Let sighs the bride, to whom she cries.
3. Then to the rich, the cheek, the ear,
It trickes and flies: now it is here,
Then now it off, and then 'tis gone:
Chorus—And here, and there, and everywhere.
1. Has it a speaking virtue? S. Yes.
2. Her speech it, sir? S. Do you ask
First your mistress, then speaks you: Kiss
Chorus—And ravishes the rational language is.
1. Has it a body? S. Ay, and wings,
With choice of very excellences;
And as it flies, it passive sings.
Chorus—Love music yields, but never stays.

THE ITALIAN QUESTION.

THE PROGRESS OF NEGOTIATIONS FOR PEACE.

Translated from the Journal des Débats, Paris, March 8, for the New York Herald.

Two days ago we alluded to what was something more than a supposition that Lord Cowley was instructed to present to Austria on the part of his government, whose active and sincere efforts for the maintenance of peace will be properly appreciated by the whole of Europe. We do not wish to return to the consideration of all these propositions. What we have already stated leaves no room for the supposition of Austria may be made to disappear from Central Italy, without containing any stipulation either irreconcilable with Austria's security or honor.

In ceasing to rule the Italian princes who have made treaties with her, and would not cease to protect them; but that protection, combined with that of all Europe, would no longer be considered by any one as a source of danger for Piedmont, or as a subject of umbrage for France. In return for this concession, Austria receives by the adhesion of the rest of Europe to this arrangement the indirect assurance that her position Italy can no longer be thought lously menaced. And she would have besides less reason for complaint, as this position would be found in free her from everything that might render it incompatible with the security or the respectability of her neighbors.

There would, the above, be no reason for concerning fears on the account of result of the congress of Zurich. We have not always forced to take into consideration human passions and to be expected to see States bind on in every circumstance by the sentiments of their own particular interest. Now if there have been no lack of evil counsels presented to the French Government—who has rejected them with a firmness so honorable to it—they have not the less been presented. We know that we are convinced that she also will reject them. It is not only on this side of the Rhine that sound and moderate minds and scrupulous instincts. The American Government is no more than any other protested against unenlightened counsels and belligerent suggestions. It is impossible to be indifferent to the idea that it is not too much to her interest to avoid war, and that she would perhaps do better to prevent it if it has no wish for it.

These are fatal counsels, and we earnestly hope that they will not carry away Austria. We hope it the more from the fact that Austria must be equally sensible of two things. The first is that the French government wishes peace, since it has willingly accepted the intervention of England, whose attachment to peace is expected by no one; the second is that public opinion, which has been so unmistakably expressed for peace, would not be indulgent to the government that would accept the grave responsibility of having rendered it impossible, either by its natural pride or by its legitimate and justifiable susceptibilities.

With these two truths before her eyes, Austria ought to be disposed to lend her ears to the exhortations of England, and we will experience no more than a few days of the confirmation of the dispatches that already represent to us in a favorable light the progress of negotiations entered upon by Lord Cowley. Only a few days more of expectation and we will doubtless see dissipated the last traces of this wintry aspect which has weighed heavily during the last two months upon the mind of Europe.

It is then that, more than ever, will be appreciated the attitude of the peace party. Long but I has rendered to sometimes insinuate, and when narrow minded persons, in their delusions, pride, ignorance. It is not only to some too often called to believe, in material interests that peace is necessary and profitable; it is necessary to the most cherished and exclusive interests of the people. Riches and security are great things, but it is not only those that a long peace matures time—more noble fruits cannot fail to spring from the peaceful fertility. Everybody knows, it did not strange in the given the most salutary enterprises, it would be sufficient to remember that liberty will never been established in Europe, if Strike wish for peace to our country as the condition and source of the greatest blessings.

Love—Elopement—Marriage—Pike's Peak.

About 5 o'clock, Monday evening, two young persons, dressed in a very gentlemanly manner, walked into the office of Justice Herckenwith, on Walnut street. The oldest introduced himself to Samuel A. Patterson and said that for several years he had been paying attentions to Miss Louisa Chambers, daughter, in one of the border towns of Indiana. He said had been well received by the young lady, and they were engaged to be married; but her father of late had expressed his objections to the proposed nuptial connection, and declared will great positiveness) that they were should not be made one flesh. Finding Chamberlain, Esq., inexorable, Mr. Patterson had concluded to go to Pike's Peak, hoping to very golden treasures as the result. He had come to Louisville, and his return expressive lies difficult "to exercise his sweetheart's obdurate parent." So, about a week ago, bidding good bye for a while to his native town, and indulging in a kiss or two, together with a tender embrace, in which Miss Louisa was a participant, he steered his course for St. Louis.

The thought of a long separation from her dearly beloved, but none than all the fear that parents might drive her image from his heart, was too much for the fair Louisa. She took a younger brother into her confidence, and proved into his sympathetic ear the story of her grief. There was a flash of resource in that younger brother, and said he, "Louisa, run out—meet Tom—marry him—and the devil take the consequences. Or that last also spoke. That, indeed, she had resolved upon.

The above narrative, perhaps not in the same words, but in substance was all, was told to Justice He closed it night before last, at 5 o'clock, p. m., precisely.

The Sequel is soon stated. At length he said he would rather not perform the ceremony.

"But you must," said Mr. Patterson, "and besides, if you don't some other negotiate will, and you might as well have the money as any other."

The last was a wise thought for the young anticipatory husband.

"Will I?" observed "Squire H., bring the lady here—I'll tie the no."

Mr. Patterson walked to another portion of the room where his genteel companion had taken a seat.

"Here she is," he announced, as they both advanced to the Justice's desk.

He will add not that the functionary who presides over the Fourth Ward Court was dumbfounded, struck aghast, for he was not. He was simply astonished. He shook his head and remarked that if the lady would retire to her boarding house and prepare in the costume of her sex, he would gladly accede their wishes.

A short hour passed by. Miss Chamberlain, attired in all the paraphernalia of hoops and other feminine et cetera, now a blooming, blushing young bride, received sweet sweetness, entered the office, accompanied by the smiling and alias the happy Mr. Patterson. Five minutes served to place them in a new relation, and after receiving the congratulations of the peace officer of the State, they departed on their way, rejoicing, of course.

Yesterday morning the identical pair were seen in a buggy—both the bride and groom visiting an ordinance of the city by which dressed in male attire. In the afternoon she started back to her home in Indiana, and on Saturday her husband left for Louisville, bound for the orange colored Peak of Pike.—St. Louis Republican.

The Emperor of the French on the European Complication.

Special Dispatch to the New York Herald.

BALTIMORE, March 29.

The following is the parallel article, in lieu of the appearance of which in the Paris Moniteur, the Emperor's organ, caused a general rise in the funds of London, Paris and Vienna:

The state of things in Italy, although of old date, has in these latter times assumed in the eyes of all, a character of gravity which naturally struck the mind of the Emperor—for it is not allowable for the Chief of a great power like France, to isolate himself from what concerns the interests of European order—animated by a prudence which it would have been culpable not to have felt.

The Emperor has nothing to disguise or dissemble, either in the objects of his anxious deliberation, or his alliances, and the French interest guides his policy and just fies his vigilance.

In the present disquietudes, which have agitated public opinion in Piedmont, the Emperor pledged the King of Sardinia to defend him against any aggression, and to remain neutral in the war, if it will known to keep his word.

It that to be considered as evidence that he dreams of war? Since what period has it not been its fault rarely with the rules of prudence to forecast difficulties, more or less near, and to weigh all their consequences?

We have just indicated what is really in the thoughts, duties and tendencies of the Emperor, and all that the exaggerations of the press have added thereto is pure imagination, feverish and raging. Rumors, in a word, are making considerable warlike preparations. That is a completely marvelous imputation. The regular effective of the peace footing, adopted two years ago by the Emperor, has not been exceeded.

The regular artillery is purchasing four thousand horses to attain the regimentary basis of infantry regiments, which are two thousand strong.

It is affirmed, also that the French arsenals are displaying extraordinary activity, but it is forgotten that we have all our army to change, and all our fleet to transform; this last undertaking was but since decided on in order to give our fleet its normal strength. It is sanctioned by the annual votes of our legislative body, and accordingly the most praiseworthy activity, several years will still be necessary for the accomplishment of the operations. Lastly, it is said to sell at the preparations for our Navy. All the preparations, however, consist of the fitting out of four frigates for the conveyance of troops, and of four screw transports, destined to provide for the ordinary requisitions and especially for the service of Civita Vecchia, and for re-victualling the ships of Admiral Rigault de Genouilly in China.

Such are the facts, and they should fully reassure men as to the projects ascribed to the Emperor, and to treat as they deserve the allegations of those who are interested in casting doubt on the most unobjectionable measures, and flinging clouds over the clearest situations. Is it not time to ask, when will be the end of these vague and absurd rumors, spread by the press from one end of Europe to the other, representing everywhere to public credulity, the Emperor of the French as exciting to war, and throwing on him alone the responsibility of the disquietudes and warlike preparations of Europe?

ANOTHER FRIGHTFUL INFANTICIDE.—DELIBERATE MURDER OF A NEW-BORN CHILD.—Teresa Bunzer, a Swiss, seventeen years of age, has, for little over a month past, been a servant in the family of Peter Vogel, a baker, at No. 109 South Second street. Her condition was such as to lead the neighbors to suspect that she was advanced in the period of maternity, but this she denied, with much earnestness and with much apparent sincerity. On Saturday morning last, she was called, as usual, to open the baker's shop, in which she slept. She responded to the call by opening the door, and went out into one of the adjoining houses, where she was followed by Mrs. Vogel, who found her weak and exhausted, leaning against a wall. On the floor of the room where she slept a pool of blood was found, six feet by two. The girl's appearance was greatly changed, and it was at once conjectured that she had been delivered of a child. Yesterday morning the body of a newly-born babe was found in the vault, in the cellar of the house. The head was almost severed from the body, only being connected by a piece of skin. One arm was also broken. A policeman was called, who took the unnatural mother to the lower station house, where she was incarcerated. She at first denied that the child was hers, but afterwards confessed to Assistant Captain Klunk and the coroner that she cut the babe's throat with the cake knife, broke its arm, put it in the vault and covered the corpse with bills. A post mortem showed the applications of the hydrostatic test revealed that the infant was very healthy and had breathed. The girl stated that she was seduced in Chicago, by a hall room partner, who has since died.

The verdict of the jury was that the deceased child came to its death by having its throat cut by its mother, Teresa Bunzer.

FIRE, FIRE!
ANOTHER
OF OUR
FIRE-PROOF
SAFES, Tested!
Stearns & Marvin's Safe Triumphant.
The following letter from the Editors of the Daily and Enquirer shows how satisfactorily their books, papers and money were saved from destruction in the great fire of the 2d instant:
MEMPHIS, March 19, 1859.
Messrs. Lowman, Orgill & Co.:
GENTS: Your note of the 7th instant has been received. We thank you for the kind sympathy expressed for our losses, and in reply to your inquiry as to the fate of the Stearns & Marvin Safe, No. 9227, sold to us by you, we have to say that it contained our Books, Papers and about Three Hundred Dollars in Bank Notes, which was INJURED except the binding of one or two of the books, although the safe was exposed to the intense heat of the burning house, and remained buried beneath the ruins for twenty hours. We believe they had sufficiently cooled to enable us to remove it.
Very respectfully, yours, etc.,
(Signed) EDWIN CLEMENS,
L. D. STICKNEY.

AND STILL ANOTHER.
Bank Checks, Money, Papers and Books, all saved from destruction or damage in the same terrible fire:
MEMPHIS, March 17, 1859.
Messrs. Lowman, Orgill & Co.:
GENTS: We have your note of the 7th instant before us, asking particulars as to how our safe from of Stearns & Marvin's manufacture, stood the very severe test to which it was exposed on the morning of the 2d instant, viz: Being of a small size and falling directly upon a pile of coal, which of course, with the burning timbers, made a most intense heat, together with the fuel that we were adding, owing to the heat, to get at it for upwards of forty hours, we hardly expected that it would preserve our Books, Papers or Money; upon opening it however, we did find its contents safe and sound. Every paper of mark in our books was legible save the day written. Not a paper was destroyed or injured, even checks which lacked in this city but the day before given in, and which had been placed in the money drawer, were taken to the banks and paid on presentation without pulling on to the necessity of getting them renewed. Considering the great heat and the length of time our safe was subjected to it, we very much question whether three-fourths of the different makes of safes now in use, placed in the same position, would not have turned so finely as.
Very truly yours,
CLARK J. MORTON & CO.
Proprietors of St. Louis Floor Depot.

AND YET ANOTHER.
Messrs. Lowman, Orgill & Co.:
GENTLEMEN: Yours of the 1st inst., asking reply to certain questions touching the fate of our SAFE, No. 6561, made by Messrs. Stearns & Marvin, and purchased some time ago from you, is before me, and I cheerfully reply, as follows:
The fire you refer to, was the largest that ever occurred in Memphis, there being some thirteen houses consumed, and about as many families turned out in the street—on the morning of the 5th of January last.
My SAFE stood in my office on the second floor of one of the burning buildings, where it remained until the floor was intensely heated, when it fell down into the cellar among the stock of burning molasses, butter and merchandise there. I had previously taken from the SAFE my books and papers, leaving in it, however, all empty spaces in the safe, and a few bank bills and memorandums written on it, locked up in the SAFE. The fire in this building was very great, having burned everything but the brick walls. The SAFE remained in the cellar, buried in the ruins, for about twenty days, (for the fire had so burned and warped the SAFE as to render it impossible to throw the bolts back with the key,) the place of paper and specie bag were found in perfect order, where I left them, and, although I am aware of the free proof qualities of the SAFE as of all the papers had been left in it. The inside wood-work was also found to stand as it was previous to the fire, the varnish being slightly discolored by the steam, as I understand is usual in such cases.
I take pleasure in thus annoying justice to the manufacturers and dealers in Safes, to which the public at large are universally interested. Should I be placed in a similar situation, I would feel perfectly secure with one of the SAFES manufactured by Stearns & Marvin, for whose sale you are agents.
Very respectfully, etc.,
(Signed) WILLIAM PARK.
Memphis, February 14, 1859. mar22

☞ The three burnt Safes alone referred to, and two others similarly tested in Memphis fires, may be seen at our store No. 16 and 18 Front Row, where a large stock of the SAFES of Kinsley's manufacture may be seen at manufacturers prices, including cost of transportation.

Real Estate

Notice to Cotton Growers.
A Valuable Tract of Cotton Lands for Sale containing 1400 Acres.
I HAVE for sale a tract of land, containing fourteen hundred acres, situated in St. Francois county, Arkansas, in township north, of range four east, in sections three, four, five and twelve. This land lies in compact body, fronting the west bank of St. Francis river, two miles below Lonoke, and nine miles below Madison, the point at which the Memphis and Little Rock Railroad crosses said river. Upon this tract of land there are eighty acres in cultivation, and one hundred and sixty acres well deadened; said deadening is four years old. This land is unsurpassed in point of fertility and desirableness of location. For terms of sale, apply to D. R. Cantrell, near the premises, or to Wm. Park, or John Cantrell, Memphis, or to J. T. Moore, at Helena, or to me, at Louisville, Kentucky.

IMMENSE SALE OF TOWN LOTS IN HOPEFIELD, ARKANSAS.
THE Trustees for the Memphis and Hopefield Real Estate Association have determined to sell out the lands and close up the business of said company, and will, on the 12th Day of April, 1859,
sell out the town of
HOPEFIELD,
in bulk, at public auction, to the highest bidder.
Hopefield is destined to be one among the great cities of the Mississippi Valley. Its advantages are
CITY OF MEMPHIS, TENNESSEE, on the West side of the GREAT MISSISSIPPI RIVER,
at the eastern terminus of the
MEMPHIS AND LITTLE ROCK RAILROAD and connecting with the GREAT WORLD
west of the Mississippi river, and the road which will in a few years connect HOPEFIELD
with the
PACIFIC OCEAN,
and the southern terminus of the
ST. LOUIS AND IRON MOUNTAIN R. R., which will be completed to Hopefield in the spring, now actively being opened and put into partial cultivation. The river farm shown it expressly for them to use a week to show the public that HOPEFIELD
is bound to be the connection where the commerce of the GREAT WESTERN WORLD
will centre.
The Trustees will also sell all the lands belonging to said company, consisting of about 3000 acres, within a few miles of Memphis.
