POETICAL.

ODE TO SPRING.

To the Memphis Appeal.

Forewell, Winter, cruel and blustering,
Still the cold and icy grasp
Of old Winter, with its freezing
Ingulfing frosts on tender grass.

Lo! the distant muttering thunder
Heralds the approach of Spring;
Hail! then beauteous Queen of Seasons,
Winter is no longer King.

Soft and sweet the balmy breezes
Of the South now fan the cheek;
And the zephyrs, full of wooing,
Rustlede of roses speak.

Now the young and tender buddings
Raise their tiny heads of green;
And the happy little warblers
Sporting in the grove are seen.

Nature all around, shows us,
Wreathed in mellow, smiles her Queen;
Come, thou mild and fair sphereress,
Occupy the throne of Spring!

SPRING IS COMING

Spring is coming! Spring is coming!
Hear the muttering thunder's way;
Bees are humming! bees are humming!
Thinky from the hives they pour.

Spring is coming! Hark! the chorus
Of the frogs by night and day,
As from every side they pour in
Forth their songs in joyous lay.

Spring is coming! Reptiles creeping
From their winery dens are seen;
Lizards, scorpions, shrill peeping,
Like the frogs, and soon the green.

Spring is coming! Tender buddings
Bursting thick on shrub and tree!
And the pretty, playful lambkins,
Gambling over the fields with glee.

Spring is coming! Mark! the warblers
Make the grove with joyous glee;
While the turtle dove, in mildness,
Coos her mate from yonder tree.

Spring is coming! See! the farmer
Turns the soil with glistening plow,
Knowing he that plows and sows not,
He can never "reap and mow."

Spring is coming! All around us
Nature's smile exhales her Queen,
While she over hill and valley
Throws her robes her color of green.

Scarlet Fever—Nitrate of Silver a Specific.

From Moore's Rural New Yorker.

MESSRS. EDITORS: I should not venture to risk my reputation, as a judicious and skillful physician, among my acquaintances, and to contradict Webster in the presence of the "million" readers of the Rural, by thus boldly stating the above proposition, did I not consider that the claims of humanity demanded it—and that I am abundantly warranted in giving publicity to it by my own experience of its truth for a number of years. I trust no apology is needed for asking the insertion of this article in the Rural, because par excellence the paper of the country, and who, if not friend of the lies of the land, are interested in knowing what will rob that dreaded scourge, the scarlet fever, of its terrors? But I will avoid further preface, except to say that the few and simple directions as to its use must be most "religiously" observed in order to secure the full benefit of the remedy.

Dissolve ten grains of Nitrate of Silver, commonly called lunar caustic, in one ounce of soft water; rain or snow water, or distilled water is best—hard water—water that contains lime and other mineral substances—will decompose the nitre and destroy its efficiency. Give of this solution from one to twelve drops, diluted with a teaspoonful of soft water, in a glass or tea cup, proportioned to the age of the patient and the urgency of the symptoms. It should never be put into a copper-plated, or German silver spoon.

If the symptoms are very urgent, and not alleviated in from two to six hours, repeat the dose. It is seldom, if ever, necessary to give more than one or two doses and the patient is up in a few days and certainly cured, if the disease has not been previously aggravated by bad treatment. Avoid irritating food, drinks and medicines, and give only mild diluent drinks, of which cold water is the best, being both food and medicine. Never give cathartics, even the most mild, in scarlet fever, or in any case where the tongue is red and has small bright points of a scarlet color, like miniature strawberries on the point and along the edges. Scarlet and erysipelatous fevers are always preceded and accompanied by this appearance of the tongue; and by this it may be known when cathartics and irritants should be avoided, and the nitrate of silver alone administered.

These are all called eruptive diseases—that is, after several days of fever, and various painful symptoms, usually attended by soreness of the throat, an eruption, more or less accompanied by redness and swelling, appears on the skin. But the disease is of a constitutional nature, and the eruption is only an accident symptom in its advanced stages. Its beginning is in the lining membrane of the throat, stomach, and bowels, and its presence or threatened attack, may be always known by the above described appearance of the tongue. This lining membrane is known by severe nausea. It is called the nervous, because it is abundantly supplied with nerves; the mucous, because its surface is, in health, always moist with mucous; and the villous, because it is a shaggy crop, or nap, or nap, or nap. It is merely a continuation of the skin which covers the body, "reflected," or turned in at the lips and nostrils, and lining all the cavities of the body which have no outward opening. In its nature it is very similar to the skin which sympathizes closely with it, and this accounts for the eruptive stage of the disease when it is suffered to run its course.

But this treatise on anatomy and physiology is long enough for present purposes, and what I ask of the readers of the Rural is, when the scarlet fever visits your vicinity, or you have reason to fear that it will, "throw physic to the dogs," or, if you prefer, go to an honest apothecary, ask him to give you an ounce vial—to cover it with a piece of gummed paper, so as to exclude the light, for exposure to the light will offer a time decompose and destroy the value of the medicine—to put into it ten grains of nitrate of silver. Tell him you do not want nitrate of tin or any other metal, but the pure nitrate of silver—fill the vial with rain water—and then you are armed with a remedy, which, if given with a careful observance of the above directions, in the earlier stages of the disease, will, I believe, never fail to check its career almost immediately. I have myself tried it in a great number of cases, and never yet knew it to fail; and a friend, to whom I recommended its use, remarked "it killed the disease" on trial in two cases in his family.

Now, I am not communicating this for the instruction of my medical brethren, although I have no objection to their profiting by it if they will, or even to their criticising to their heart's content. But I wrote "for home public," and after long consideration felt it to be my duty to do so, and after having been often reminded of that duty by paragraphs in the Rural and other papers, chronicling the death of whole families, consequent upon the sickness of children in a few days or weeks, by this terrible scourge. It is indeed a dreadful disease, among the lambs of our household. Often have I heard physicians in their hopelessness, express their dread of it, and call it a "horrible disease," and "worse than small pox." Under the usual treatment of the profession it is indeed so. What I ask of all is—for your good, give the remedy a trial.

W. D. COOK.

SOPHY, Wayne county, N. Y., 1859.

CLIPPINGS.

TYRANNY IN CUBA.—Vincent Castro, son of Dr. Castro, who is a naturalized citizen of the United States, was not permitted, recently, to visit Havana. He was born in Cuba, but his father was suspected of being a patriot. Young Castro proceeded to New York. Mr. Lathrop, who was recently arrested, has been released, our consul having demanded to know the nature of the charge against him. He was ignorant of an intention to abduct some Cuban damsel.

About 120 bbls. of Cuba molasses were sold in Petersburg, Va., on the 28th ult., (direct importation,) bringing an average of twenty-seven cents per gallon.

THE TROUBLES IN NICARAGUA.—The New York Express, referring to the late exciting news from Nicaragua, and the outrages on American property, says:

We do not know that there is any remedy for these grievances. The President called the attention of Congress to them a few weeks since, and asked for the necessary power to enable him to obtain redress. But the demagogues and politicians there, insensible to the honor and interests of the Republic, and only alive to petty schemes of party or personal profit, treated the message with contempt. The consequences are just what were predicted. The party States of Central America, knowing that they are not to be held to account, are evidently determined to "crush out," not only English and Yankee influence, but Yankee commerce, on the Isthmus, and the determination, it would now seem, is to be strengthened by English and French—but especially by French—support.

AMERICAN ENGINEERS IN BRAZIL.—Col. Chas. F. M. Garnett, of Va., engineer-in-chief, and W. S. Eilison, Esq., superintendent of the Don Pedro second railroad, in Brazil, have, it is stated, been dismissed for political reasons. It appears that two of the directors of the road were bitter enemies of the two Americans, and being men of great influence, nominated their candidates for the Congress of Brazil to secure their dismissal. If they could succeed in ousting Messrs. Garnett and Ellison, they hoped to succeed in seating themselves directors, and thus consummated the bargain. A former English contractor on the road is said to have been at the bottom of the affair.

THE NEW CENT POISONER.—It is stated that several instances have occurred in different parts of the country where children have died from the effects of pai on taken into the system by swallowing the new nickel cent. As the coin is small and easily swallowed, there is great danger in allowing young children to have them in their possession. The metal which composes it has had a fatal effect, and would seem to be poisonous.

A SUCCESSFUL STEAMER.—The steamship Isabel is now at pier port from Havana, and her return trips have averaged the two hundred and second round trip since her first being placed upon the line. She has been during this time, with few exceptions, under the command of Captain William Robins, well known North, South, East and West, for the urbanity of his manners and thorough seamanship. When the dangerous character of the shoals and reefs along the Florida coast is taken into consideration, the singular immunity from mishap of any kind that the Isabel has enjoyed, is truly wonderful, and can only be attributed to the staunchness of her build and machinery, and the competence and untiring vigilance of her officers.—Charleston Courier.

The anniversary of Mr. Calhoun's birth (18th March) was celebrated by the students of the South Carolina College, by public exercises.

THE SEASON.—According to the Detroit Advertiser, with the exception of the seasons of 1842 and 1848, there has not been so early an opening of lake navigation in twenty-one years as the present season.

POST OFFICE APPEAL.—A Washington correspondent writing on the 1st inst., says:

The failure of Congress to pass the usual appropriation bills for the post office service during the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1859, as well as to cover deficits in the present year, will embarrass the department but slightly in reference to keep up existing mail facilities, although it will deprive it of any ability to grant additional ones, (at least such as involve much expense,) through the lettings to contract for the routes established at the session of 1858, or the putting on of additional trips on those now in operation. Many of the contractors are men of means.

THE REVIVAL IN ENGLAND.—We have before chronicled for our readers the interesting commencement of the daily revival labors and prayer-meetings in Scarborough, England. We have now thrilling news of the progress of that movement of the Divine Spirit rising higher and higher. The daily prayer-meetings, both at noon and at night, appear, from the report in the London Patriot, to be multiplied and crowded, filling many several places of worship in the town daily and nightly. The exercises, in form and spirit, appear to be identical with those of our own meetings. All sectarian distinctions are lost and forgotten, and special prayers, in view of special requests, are the order of the hour, as with us. The town is districted and visited throughout, from house to house, under the direction of a union of the pastors and prominent laymen of the several denominations. All the ordinary week-day services of the different congregations have been suspended. It is impossible to say when these united services will terminate, as the interest seems daily deepening.—N. Y. Examiner.

☞ A Chinese widow being found fanning the tomb of her deceased husband, and being asked the cause of so singular mode of showing her grief, accounted for it by saying that he had made her promise not to marry again while the mortar of his tomb remained wet, and as it dried but slowly, she saw no harm in aiding the operation.

SALE OF THE "UNION."—General George W. Bowman, at present Superintendent of the Public Printing, has become sole proprietor of the Washington Union newspaper, and will take full possession of the establishment on the 15th day of April next, when he will make his own announcement of the course he intends to pursue.—Washington Union.
