☞ Whenever any of the members of the huge concern, the Great-Whig-American-Know-Nothing-Black-Republican-Double-Distilled-Opposition-Rock Action-Compound party, charge extravagance on the Administration, they ought to be reminded that under Democratic nurture and protection we now have a country worth spending money for. If the old Opposition notion of hostility to expansion had prevailed instead of the progressive ideas of Democracy, twenty or thirty million of dollars might yet suffice to carry on the Government. But from a mere patch on the earth's surface, the United States have grown, under Democratic rule, to the dimensions of a mighty empire, rivaling in productive resources, commerce and trade, all the countries of Europe combined. In territorial extent, the Union has more than quadrupled, while the public expenditure has very little more than doubled within the last half century.

Again we repeat, our country is now worth spending a great deal of money for, and so long as the Democracy continue to add to the glory, magnificence and prosperity of the Government, no true American will give much heed to the hypocritical harpings of the back-action Opposition.

TALLAHATCHIE, MISS., DEMOCRACY.

The Democrats of Tallahatchie county held a meeting at Charleston on the 11th inst. Gen. J. E. Tallaferro presided over the meeting. We regret that the press upon our columns prevents us from publishing the entire proceedings. The following are the principal resolutions adopted by the meeting:

Resolved, That the Democracy of Tallahatchie county, indorse with unabated ardor the great principles of the Democratic party, and cherish no sympathy with Opposition ideas.

Resolved, That we indorse in the main the administration of President Buchanan.

Resolved, That we approve the course of our Senators Davis and Brown in the present discussion in the United States Senate, wherever they repudiated the odious doctrine of Squatter Sovereignty.

Resolved, That we approve the course of our immediate representative in Congress, Hon. E. Davis, and warmly recommend his renomination.

Resolved, That as Tallahatchie county, a component part of this Senatorial District, has heretofore cheerfully surrendered the nomination of the Senator to the other counties composing the District, we now, after the lapse of a number of years, claim it as our unquestionable right to present to the Democratic party our candidate for the Senate.

Resolved, that the Democracy of this Senatorial District be invited to meet in convention, in the town of Charleston, on the fourth Monday in May.

A resolution was adopted recommending Gen. J. E. Tallaferro for the State Senate. William A. Bayliss, Esq., of Tallahatchie county, was recommended as the first choice of the Democracy for Auditor of Public Accounts. Another meeting will be held the fourth Monday in May next for the purpose of nominating a Representative to the Legislature.

JAMES GLOVER, ESQ.

An El Paso correspondent of the St. Louis Republican, speaking of the overland mail route, pays the following compliment to James Glover, Esq., superintendent of that section of the overland mail route which lies between Fort Chadbourne and El Paso.

The contractors express upon Mr. Glover a confidence in the section of the route between Fort Smith and Memphis. We could then expect to have justice done us on this end of the route.

The division named stretches of this place under the superintendence of Colonel James Glover, is probably the hardest division to properly conduct on the whole line. About 500 miles in length, running entirely through a country more barren by far of everything save rock, inhabited by naught but tribes of hostile Indians, who have sworn eternal enmity to the white man, together with the fact that each of the men under him is a sparsely populated country, makes Colonel Glover's division, while it is the most important on the line, the most difficult one to manage. I have expected to see Colonel Glover's division (from the reports that I have heard) destitute of almost everything, but I was most agreeably disappointed. Leaving Fort Chadbourne, we found the drivers, conductors, and, in fact, all the employees of the company upon this division, uniformly courteous and polite, the stations well kept, neat and comfortable, the food well cooked and good, while the animals drawn in the coaches were in fine order, the time being made in four days and three hours.

In fact, after having traveled over the whole route for once, and part of it twice, I am ready to accord the name of the star division on the line to Colonel Glover. The company is much indebted to Colonel Glover for his exertions in making this division what it is.

There are other divisions also entitled to special mention upon this line, and if Colonel Co. Glover is certainly the best one upon the road, and he, and his aides, is entitled to the credit out.

A SIGNIFICANT SIGN—THE POPE AT JERUSALEM.

European affairs are becoming daily more interesting, and the deliberations of the congress of the leading powers, seem to assemble, will be eagerly looked for by each steamer. Whether peace or war result, it is more than probable that some important changes will be made upon the map of Europe. The removal of the Pope from Rome to Jerusalem, and his deprivation of all temporal power, is hinted at in the following paragraph from the Paris Siecle, and no doubt desired by the Emperor of the French:

We cannot refrain from addressing a prayer to our diplomatists that the question of Rome, the deliberation of the Congress there should proceed, in a direct or indirect form, anything approaching to a ratification, even the least important part of the treaties of 1815. Nations are not always in a position to obtain the reparation due to them, but it is essential for the sake of their honor that they should preserve, under all circumstances, a dignity which is the security for the future.

The same journal insists on the abolition of the temporal power of the Pope, and considers that Jerusalem would be as favorable a spot as any for the Papal Court to withdraw to, confined by a civil law to which all Catholic countries would contribute.

If, however, little matters where the Pope resides. Wherever he may dwell, it will only deprive him himself of gain the admiration, sympathy and respect of the world. He would merely have to return to the spirit of the gospel, to humanity and charity.

In order to regulate the State of Italy, and consequently of Europe, it is necessary that the treaties which at this moment rule the existence of European nations should be modified, and that Papacy should cease to exercise, in addition to temporal power, and exercise the plenitude of its spiritual power under the protection of France as the general and of the Catholic powers in particular.

We should then no longer behold the anomalies we behold at all times, and which our century has witnessed in the exile of Pius VI, Pius VII, and of Pius IX, provoked alone by the possession of their temporal power.

Pope John VIII, who was supposed of the sex he and gave it a Cardinal, John XIII, John XIII's pontificate, and John XIII, John XIII was himself condemned to die, and John XIII was himself condemned to die, John XIII was himself condemned to die, John XIII was himself condemned to die,
