

SENSATION!

MR. SMYSER HAS TO LEAVE THE RAUM COMMITTEE.

THAT CONGRESSMAN OWNS STOCK

In the Commissioner's Universal Refrigerating Company.

HE TOOK PART IN THE INVESTIGATION

Until Mr. Cooper Brought the Attention of the House to the Matter—Allowed to Resign.

In the House this morning, on motion of Mr. Stockbridge of Illinois, the bill providing for Government inspection of coal mines in the Territories was passed. Mr. Cooper of Indiana, rising to a question of privilege, stated that one of the charges made in the resolution offered by him for the investigation of General Hanson, Commissioner of Pensions, was that the Commissioner was selling stock in a refrigerator company to an employee of the Pension Office. He had in vain attempted to obtain the names of the stockholders in the concern. Today he had learned (and this knowledge was borne out by the testimony that one of the members of the investigating committee (Mr. M. L. Smyser of Ohio) was one of the stockholders. He (Cooper) therefore offered a resolution discharging Mr. Smyser from the committee, and directing the Speaker to appoint his successor.

Mr. Sawyer of New York said the question which the committee was appointed to investigate was whether Commissioner Raun had promoted employees under him for the reason that they became stockholders in the refrigerator company. There was no reason why the fact that Mr. Smyser was stockholder affected his qualification to decide whether Mr. Raun's official conduct had been wrong.

Mr. Outhwaite was surprised that any gentleman of honor and integrity should raise any question as to the propriety of the gentleman from Ohio immediately withdrawing from the committee.

Mr. Smyser said he had no information he was going to be appointed on the committee until the announcement was made by the Speaker. As a member of the committee he had entered upon the discharge of his duty and he had done it faithfully and well. He did own some of the stock, but that fact in no measure could affect the integrity or honor of an honest man. Friends who knew him would never impute to him a want of honor or a want of integrity.

While he did not understand why the fact of his ownership of stock should affect his standing as a member of the committee, if his colleagues on the committee were of the opinion he was so affected, he would yield willingly and resign his position.

Mr. Morrill, chairman of the committee, said it was due to the Speaker and to the members of the committee to say that the first intimation they had that one of the members had stock in the refrigerator company was when the books were produced on the conduct of the gentleman from Ohio had been perfectly honorable. He should be desirous of arriving at the truth and the whole truth. He did not expect the gentleman's motives in the least. But he hoped now, in order to relieve other members, he would promptly withdraw from the committee.

Mr. Sawyer said there was nothing in the charges against General Raun that in any way affected him. But in order to satisfy the other side of the House and country, in duty to himself, he most respectfully asked to be relieved from further service on the committee.

In view of Mr. Smyser's withdrawal from the committee, Mr. Cooper withdrew his resolution to expel him. The Speaker explained that when he appointed Smyser on the committee he did not know he was a stockholder in the refrigerator company. He had made the special committee from the Committee on Pensions and Invalid Pensions because they were familiar with the Pension Office and its workings.

There was no objection to Mr. Smyser's withdrawing, and he is a member of the committee.

OVER THE HEIGHTS.

Something About a Street Railroad with Feltre Conductors.

By Saturday next it is expected that the cars of the Georgetown and Tenallytown Electric Railroad will be running to the District line. The work has been rapidly pushed, notwithstanding that every precaution has been taken under the eye of Manager John Sullivan to lay the track in the most efficient manner. When the track is completed and the additional rolling stock arrives, the District of Columbia will be able to boast of the electric railroad in the country, running from its most ancient part, to its most picturesque and beautiful suburb. The road has been given an immensely popular aspect by the fact that it will carry its stock one of the most valuable in the market. It has also led to a thorough knowledge of the natural advantages of the route, and now the shanty buildings along it may daily be seen in a dreary and on Sundays thousands of pedestrians where a year ago scarcely a single person would be seen on foot.

The subdivisions along and adjacent to the Tenallytown road or Wisconsin avenue, as it is now legally known, are booming and workmen are to be seen in all directions giving artificial touches to the nature of the soil.

It is a subject for agreeable comment that, from the manager down, no road in the country possesses a more polite corps of officials. The conductors, in their quiet but firm insistence on compliance with the rules and their uniform solicitude for the comfort of passengers, remind one sometimes of those seen in the aristocratic cities, without the latter's servile cringing. It is a relief to be able to so write, considering the general complaint of the degeneracy of conductors as a class. Occasionally on this pretty road a cause for complaint, as when some dynamo cleaner or armature worker, in riding to or from his work at the power-house, takes it into his head that the conductor does not know how to run his car and proceeds to run it for him. Then, as is usual with persons dressed in a little brief authority, real or imaginary, it is not pleasant for those around. It is only necessary to call Manager Sullivan's attention to this.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

Beneficial to Railroad and the Travelling Public.

Editor Critic: Standing at the train entrance of the Baltimore and Potomac depot a few days ago I noticed the train-dispatcher with an open telegram in his hand each man that was about to take a train. "Are you Mr. Blank?" was the question asked. It appears one of the gentlemen from Ohio immediately withdrawing from the committee.

Mr. Smyser said he had no information he was going to be appointed on the committee until the announcement was made by the Speaker. As a member of the committee he had entered upon the discharge of his duty and he had done it faithfully and well. He did own some of the stock, but that fact in no measure could affect the integrity or honor of an honest man.

JEALOUSY AND SUICIDE

PARITY MRS. FLORA L. LANGLEY TRIES TO KILL HERSELF.

The Green-Eyed Monster Once More Leads to Unhappy Fate in a Family, With Nearly Fatal Results.

Mrs. Flora L. Langley is a pretty, dark-eyed lady, who, with her husband, resides at No. 425 Eleventh street north-west.

Her life, so the lady says, would be a happy one but for the jealousy of her husband, and his reproaches because so frequent and violent that she resolved to end her trouble and early yesterday afternoon she went to her bed-room and lay upon the bed drank two ounces of laudanum. She was not missed until nearly five o'clock, and then some one went to her room to call her.

She was by this time unconscious and her failure to respond to the repeated calls and the odor of the drug, which pervaded the entire room, aroused the suspicions of her friends, who hastily summoned a physician from the Emergency Hospital, Dr. E. C. King, who responded to the call and found the lady in a very critical condition. On a mantel near by stood the empty laudanum bottle, while several spots on the front of her dress marked where she had spilled a few drops of the poison. Dr. King administered a hypodermic injection of morphine and worked with Mrs. Langley for upwards of an hour before she regained consciousness, and had it not been for his prompt and efficient treatment she would have undoubtedly died.

It seems that Mrs. Langley had a disagreement with her husband early yesterday morning, and it was in consequence of this quarrel that she made the attempt upon her life. This morning she was resting quietly, and in a few days will have fully recovered from the effects of her unfortunate experience.

SWAPPED PIPES WITH BISMARCK. An American's Memento of the Iron Chancellor's School Days.

This is all that I have left of a pipe which Bismarck used in his school days.

The speaker was Judge J. Galabin King, who leaned far back in his easy office chair as he spoke and held up in his hand a plain cherry pipestem about a foot long.

"How did I come into possession of it?" the Judge said, repeating my question. "It was in this way. You see my brother, Mitchell C. King, went to school to Bismarck, when he was a student at Dr. Becker's famous school at Frankfurt-on-the-Main. They were classmates and roommates—altogether very intimate friends. Now, when they were about to leave college they exchanged pipes—for you know every German student has his pipe. Well, Mitchell brought the pipe which the future Chancellor gave him in exchange for his own to America with him, and it fell into my hands, for I am a great smoker.

"The pipe," Judge King continued, "was quite a pretty one. The bowl was made of fine china and had a resemblance of Bismarck on the front of it. The stem was about twice as long as it is now, for it has been trimmed very often.

Mitchell and Bismarck were very warm friends, and corresponded with each other for years; in fact, they do now, I think. Some time ago somebody wrote to Bismarck, when he was a doctor, asking him if he knew anybody on this side of the water. He replied that he knew and corresponded with two men in the United States—one was Mitchell C. King and the other Dr. Emory Coffin of Alton, S. C. Mitchell's brother, is now 76 years old, and is living at Flat Rock, N. C.

"How old is the stem?" I asked. "Well, it is hard to say," the Judge replied. "Let me see. Mitchell brought it over with him in 1835; that makes it fifty-five years old, and I don't know how old it was then. It is an interesting memento, and I prize it very highly." The judge concluded, as he laid it carefully away in one of his desk drawers, and turned to pick up his every day pipe, which he had laid aside while holding the stem of Bismarck's school-day pipe in his hand.

The Branch is Widening. From the Louisville Courier-Journal. The leaders of the Republican party are displaying a great deal of energy just now, but as it is being expended in contests between themselves, which have approached the point of extreme bitterness and fury, the Democrats can afford to look on complacently and apathetically. The present state of internal dissension, which bores the overcast and dissolution of the party in power, is the logical and natural outcome of the grotesque union of elements which brought about its temporary success. The further and the more complete the dissolution of the party in power, the more complete will be the success of the opposition.

Every Man For Himself. From the Memphis Avalanche. There is no Administration party. It is a sort of contest between Blaine, Reed, McKinley, Chandler and Quay. They are all playing for points, and the President is more of a spectator than a participant. By this time it has come to be understood that he is out of the question as far as the leadership of the party in '92 is concerned, and nobody thinks it worth while to inquire what his position is on any point. This is melancholy, but none the less true.

Naturally. From the Terre Haute Express. "Well what do you want?" asked the assistant of his assistant, who had taken to whistling. "I want the earth," wailed the young man.

LOBSTERS ARE SCARCER.

The Freshwater Crustaceans Have Crawled to Deeper Depths.

"We haven't been able to get a lobster today," a prominent restaurateur of Boston told a Globe man yesterday. Down on Hanover street, where there are several lobster dealers, some of the shops closed at an unusually early hour, and in those that remained open until the regular closing time, it was impossible to supply an order. At two well known cafes it was said that everybody had been fighting for lobsters, and nobody had seemed satisfied with the supply.

It is not unusual for the lobster to be scarce at this time of the year. This is naturally the fall season. And when the weather of July this year got ready for a decreased supply. But since the Fourth of July this year the supply has been more noticeably deficient.

The Nova Scotia market has been closed, and it is every year by the law that prohibits catching after a certain season, but usually the harbor fishermen and the Maine market, with what supply has been obtained from Massachusetts and Plymouth, have kept the demand here pretty well satisfied.

However, the Maine market and the harbor have both failed this year, and one dealer closed his shop yesterday that it looked something like a lobster famine. About a dozen dealers supply the Boston market. There are twenty-five or more fishermen down the harbor, and they average a catch of from seventy to 100 a day. One of these fishermen told a Globe man yesterday that he had never seen lobsters so scarce before as he has seen them in the city.
