CLIPPINGS.

The yellow fever has broken out in Havana.

The bones of birds are hollow, and filled with air instead of marrow.

The cannonading at Solferino was heard at Trieste, a distance of one hundred and fifty miles, in the town first.

Kossuth's fluency in Italian is admired at Genoa and Turin, as much as his English orations in America.

About thirty fresh-water springs are discovered under the sea, on the south of the Persian Gulf.

A fellow who was caught beating his wife excused himself by saying, "The treasure which we value most, we hide."

Fish are common in the seas of Furinam with four eyes, two of them on horns which grow on the top of their heads.

Gen. Sam Houston, in a letter published in the Galveston News, declares Americanism in Texas to be dead and buried.

A person being asked why he had given his daughter in marriage to a man to whom he was at minority, answered: "I did it out of pure revenge."

Five wolves were recently captured alive, on the Hillabee mountain, Ala., and two of them taken to Talladega. They are described as fine fellows.

With a view to collect their webs for silk, four thousand spiders were once obtained, but they soon killed each other. Manufactures and war never thrive together.

Greeley writes from Denver City, Pike's Peak, says: Public religious worship, a regular mail and other civilizing influences are being established.

The Austrian lieutenant colonel Salomefeld, who fought so bravely at Magenta, is an Israelite, the only Hebrew staff officer in that army in which 12,000 Israelites are in active service.

A young Israelite of Paris, M. Jules Cohen, has just achieved an immense success as composer in the Theater Francais, having set to music the choruses in Athalie, full of harmony and religious poetry.

The captain who had charge of the slave yacht Wanderer is about to tell the public "all about it." His name is Farnham, and his book is promised forthwith.

Paul Murphy proposes, we are told, to make New York City his permanent place of residence. It is said to be his intention to take a standing room in Sing Sing. The legal fraternity, no doubt, will welcome him.

The merchants of New York have presented Lieut. Maury, U. S. N., with seven thousand dollars, as a mark of their appreciation of his labors in behalf of commerce and navigation.

The Hamburg papers notice the arrival of five hundred tons of Cincinnati salt pork, to provision the garrisons of Mayence, Ehrenbreitstein, Rade and Cologne.

The City Council of Springfield, Ill., has appropriated two thousand dollars to continue the boring of the artesian well in that city. The well is now 1100 feet deep, the last 300 feet being a compact stratum of limestone.

The Grand Duke Constantine, brother of the Emperor of Russia, has been on a visit to Constantinople, and dined with the Sultan—which is an instance of Muhammadan etiquette.

A war was once heard to say, that the only difference between the Southern and Northern people is, those in the South never sell anything they can eat, while those in the North never eat anything they can sell.

A dispatch from Watertown, N. Y., says: Mr La Montaine is here reconstructing the Atlantic for an ascension from this place August 11. Parties from New York are here, and propose to place in his hands any amount not exceeding $20,000, for the immediate construction of a new balloon for the trans-Atlantic voyage this season.

A resident at the Red River (of the North) settlement writes, in the Toronto Globe, that they have a population of 5,500, but no newspaper, the Hudson Bay Company having opposed the settlement of one. They have no hotels or boarding houses, have had no travel. They have but two doctors, one belonging to the Company, the other still and feeble. Land sells at $1 50 cents an acre, paid in small instalments.

Charles S. Price, of Alexandria, has gone down to Mount Vernon for the purpose of making some repairs needed by the premises. These repairs are preliminary to the delivery of possession from John A. Washington, Esq., to the agent of the Ladies's Mount Vernon Association. The Alexandria Gazette says: "The carpenter's tools imported from England, by Gen Washington, during his life time, have been preserved, and, if proof-bill, by he used now in making the contemplated repairs."

The Detroit and Milwaukie Railroad Company have authorized the erection of a force pump and convenient tension in a building near their depot in Detroit, for the purpose of accommodating passengers with gratuitous ablutions where they may bathe and cleanse themselves with pure and refreshing water, after a long ride in the cars. Dressing rooms are soon to be added.

The Ladies of Paris are now all for their extremely small feet, the secret being that inflesh of the female sex undergo, as a rule, amputation of the little toe of each foot. So general is this custom that many women think that the toes on each foot is a state of things peculiar to the male sex. It is said that a Provence surgeon is coming over to London and Paris, where he expects to make a fine fortune. He warrants to ladies the tiniest and most graceful feet by means of the above named amputation, and confirmed to the house of only one week. A process of the kind was lately pretty generally in Paris some years ago, kept up by the very reputable compliance of a surgeon, who had acquired some celebrity touching the like silly notion.

Among the wounded conveyed to Vercelli recently, was a young German, a scientifiner, being in one of the regiments, who received a ball in the chest in the affair of Turbigo. Being unconscious of the French soldiers fall about him, she seized a musket, charged with the balls from her cartridge box, and continued to fire at their rear. He conducted himself so gallantly mentioned to the Emperor. It was at first feared that it would amputate the limb, but she refused, saying, "I can not bear the operation, but it will give me more pleasure following my regiment." She is now considered in a fair way of recovery.

The hoops should be near together—say two or three inches apart, and come to within as many inches of the feet or the bottom of the dress. A word about the management of dresses. In the first place, in getting up stairs, you need only lift the front of your dress, and in descending, the back of your skirts. The front part of your dress can be no effort be added to descending, and the back part by ascending a pair of stairs. So, therefore, have a reform in the immediate way you have needlessly gotten into of dragging your dress behind going down stairs, and lifting it up in front instead.

Parisian Fashions—What the Empress is About to Do.

As hoops are out of fashion, so they will again fall into disuse. The latest Parisiens' bulletin from Paris, which exhibits and describes the modes for July, announces two facts, highly interesting to the female portion of society. The first of which is to be discontinued, in consequence of the change of mode just beginning, which only permits a great width to the lower part of the dress, thereby diminishing the proportion of the upper. "Perhaps," the reporter adds, "this modification may already be looked upon as a sort of heresy on the part of the Empress, the traditional principle." The fact is, the Empress Eugenie, who rules the fashions in Paris, has set her face very decidedly against the excesses of crinoline, and, if insurgent is to be credited, intends having them wholly abolished by the time the next season commences. It is her manifestation against the double-skirt which has already substituted flounces, of which three or four seem to be worn, but none above the knee. Indeed, Eugenie seems to be inclined to bring back the female fashions of the early part of the 1st Empire, when Josephine was the autocrat of dress, and restore the figure to its natural shape. The impression in Paris, where all other fashions run into extremes, is that even short waists will be revived. Think of that, Master Brooks! Think of ladies' waists directly under their arms.

To this was the fashion worn in 1804, by Josephine the graceful, and by Madame Recamier, then the acknowledged Queen of beauty.

The short, stumpy women will cling the most tenaciously, we predict to extraordinary crinoline, remarkable double skirts, mutilated flounces, and wonderful hoop skirts. They do not know what best becomes them, and fancy that because a certain shape, style, and quality of dress seems to become others, who happen to be tall and graceful, this must also suit themselves, who are only dumpy. If little ladies could only comprehend how much crinoline shortens and widens them, it would immediately be abolished. Meanwhile, if Eugenie really does abolish crinoline, or even abridge it, she will thereby vindicate her claim to be considered mistress of the mode.—Philadelphia Press.

A New Abolition Project.

Perhaps the fastest project for abolishing the natural supremacy of the white man over the negro is a recent one "invented" by the "Hon. Miss Murray, of the Queen's Household to her Majesty Queen Victoria." It will be remembered that this lady traveled quite extensively through the United States a few years since, and happening to fall in with people who were pleased to pound in regard to the character of the negroes, and American politics in general, she is proud to "glean" and published a book which, on the whole, contained many excellent points. It was too much anti-free negro, however, to suit the spinsters of Exeter Hall, and the Queen, a very old-fashioned Christian lady, so far as negroes are concerned, found it necessary to tell her "household of an rule a pro-slavery woman as Miss Murray. The consequence seems to have been that Miss Murray having been on the stool of repentance for a year or two, has now come out with a "friend to Negroes" book, published in pamphlet form. This remarkable lady thinks that "slavery ought to be abolished," but she desires it done in a most discreet and conservative manner. Her plan is simply this: She wants the contrabands, Scotch to petition Congress to pass an act giving "freedom" to all negroes born after a certain day, and pay ding for "emancipation" out of the United States treasury. It is difficult to see how Miss Murray can be recommended, but we hope she will be rewarded by Queen Victoria making the taking those ears, especially in so important a matter as the cook.

DIFFERENCE BETWEEN ENGLAND AND FRANCE.—The New York correspondent of the Washington National Intelligencer writes, that something like a speck of difference between the French and British governments shines in respect to the alleged violation of Turkish territory by a French frigate on the Abyssinian coast. The commander of the frigate tended somewhat very and time for the use of some pay ice in the interior, neighbors to Asiatic, and the French had additionally employed four English merchant vessels to land coal and munitions of war. It looks as if the French intended establishing a depot at the spot. The Porte has protested against the occupation of its territory by the French.

Co-Partnership.

THE undersigned, having purchased the interest of Mr. Lowne, in the late firm of Lowne, Orgill & Co., have this day entered into co-partnership, under the firm of ORGILL BROTHERS & CO., and will continue the Hardware business in all its branches, at the well-known stores of their predecessors, Nos. 13 and 14 Front Row.

EDMUND ORGILL, Memphis.
WILLIAM ORGILL, New York.
T. D. WILDER, Memphis.

Memphis, July 1, 1859.

CARD.

REFERRING to the above, from which will be seen I have withdrawn from the hardware business, I feel it due to the numerous friends and customers of our several firms with which my name from time to time has been connected, to return them my thanks for their liberal patronage and confidence.

And I further take pleasure in commending to my friends the new firm of ORGILL BROTHERS & CO., whose sound discretion and unlimited facilities render them eminently worthy of your most liberal patronage.

J. HENRY A. LOWNES.

Memphis, July 1, 1859.

NOTICE.

ALL persons indebted to the late firm of Lowne, Orgill & Co., are hereby notified that the affairs of that concern will be closed up as speedily as possible. The book will remain in the hands of Messrs. Orgill Brothers and Friend Wilder, where such parties are requested to call and make immediate settlement or arrangement for their debts.
