Daily Appeal.

Romance of a Maid Servant.

The New York correspondent of the Charleston Courier writes: Almost everybody that is anybody, is now out of town. The business streets are less crowded than usual, while the fashionable ones are entirely deserted. The young men in the down town wholesale stores have nothing to do but be lost, read the papers and try to keep cool. The splendid residences in the Fifth avenue, and other similar streets, are barred and bolted, and even a procession with a band of music brings no one to the windows as it passes but the servant girls who remain at home. They have a good time playing the lady while their mistresses are dancing at Saratoga and bathing at Newport. But I would have you know that some of the maid servants here are a very good lot indeed, well behaved class. A most amusing illustration of the attractiveness of certain people, and of the infatuation of others, occurred the other day. A young man from one of the interior States, having come to town, thought it but right and proper that he should pay his respects to a family with whom some members of his own had been well acquainted. He got himself up regardless of expense, and having shaved and been shampooned at Phalon's, and having dined at the St. Nicholas, he started to call upon his aristocratic, but unfamiliar, friend. Ringing the bell, a very handsome young woman came to the door and let him in. Upon inquiry as to whether the "folks were at home," he was informed that they were not, but that they had been out of town some time, and would be absent all summer. The young man was fresh from the country, and could not distinguish the difference from the lady's maid. Having heard his sister describe Miss Bloodmade up his mind that the person before him was none other than she whom he had called to see. The maid servant denied the soft impeachment, but he would have it that she was only playing off. He had, a night or two before, been to see "She Stoops to Conquer," at one of our theatres. The maid servant finding it impossible to undeceive the young man from the country, invited him into the parlor. They spent the evening very pleasantly together, the rather lively and spirited conversation of the servant convincing her visitor that she had been playing an assumed part. He thought that she was intelligent and handsome enough to be the daughter of the proprietors, if she were not. Under this conviction, he went to his hotel, not, however, until he had assured her that he would call again, and his sleep was of course sweetened by pleasant dreams. His visits were frequent and constant. And although he has since satisfied himself that the young woman whom he saw was a maid servant, and not the young lady of the house, his interest in her has increased to such an extent that he has formally proposed marriage. He is honest in his intentions, and well-to-do in the world, and of course she will have him. This marriage will or should create quite as much talk as that which took place between the millionaire Spaniard and the daughter of a gentleman late a lieutenant in the navy.

Power of Imagination.

Dr. Noble, in a very able and analytic lecture at Manchester, "On the Dynamic Influence of Ideas," told a good anecdote of Mr. Bouthbouse, a French savant, in illustration of the power of imagination. As Dr. Noble says:

Mr. Bouthbouse served in Napoleon's army and was present at many engagements during the early part of the last century. At the battle of Wagram, in 1809, he was engaged in the fray; the second him had been terribly thined by shot, and at sunset he was nearly isolated. While reloading his musket he was shot down by a cannon ball. His impression was that the ball had passed through his legs below his knees, separated them from the thighs; for he so plainly sank down, shortened, as he believed, to the extent of about a foot in measurement. The trunk of the body fell backwards on the ground, and the senses were completely paralyzed by the shock. Thus he lay motionless among the wounded and dead during the rest of the night, not daring to move a muscle, lest the loss of blood should be fatally increased. He felt no pain, but this he attributed to the stunning effect of the shock to the brain and nervous system. At early dawn he was aroused by one of the medical staff who came round to help the wounded. "What's the matter with you, my brave man?" said the surgeon. "Ah! touch me tenderly," replied M. Bouthbouse, "I beseech you, a cannon ball has carried off my legs." The surgeon examined the limbs referred to, and then, giving him a good shake, said, with a joyous laugh, "Get up with you, you have nothing the matter with you." M. Bouthbouse immediately sprang up in utter astonishment, and stood firmly on the legs which he thought lost forever. "I felt more thankful" said M. Bouthbouse, "than I had ever been in the whole course of my life before. I had, indeed, been shot down by an immense cannon ball; but instead of passing through the legs, as I firmly believed it had, the ball had passed under my feet, and had ploughed a hole in the earth beneath, at least a foot in depth, into which my feet suddenly sank, giving me the idea that I had been thus shortened by the loss of my legs." The truth of this story is vouched for by Dr. Noble.

The Late Queen of Portugal.

The Lisbon correspondent of the Daily News writing on the 17th, says:

The death of the young and beautiful Stephanie, Queen of Portugal, which took place this evening at 8 o'clock, has plunged the capital into grief, and has created a universal sympathy and regret are heard everywhere in the streets and coffee houses nothing else is talked of. For the young Queen, by the simplicity of her manners, her condescension, and her great charity, had won the hearts of all classes, from the noble to the cottager. We all remember how she passed along the streets but twelve months ago, a blooming bride; how her gentle as winning ways immediately gained her the affections of the people, and softened and cheered the gloomy and moody habits of the King. The Cortes illiberally commenced on Monday last, when her Majesty accompanied the King to Vendas Novas to inspect the proving of new rifled cannon. The day was burning hot, and not a cloud in the sky, there was little or no shade. Shortly after returning home her Majesty complained of an indisposition, which at first was considered to be the result of a slight sunstroke, but which at last was recognized as diptheria. The fatal disease ran its course despite the able attendance of Dr. Gomez and the Baron de Silva, who tried every means known to the medical art to save the royal sufferer. Yesterday morning, I believe, dangerous symptoms set in, and slight mortification appeared in the throat.

At this position, Dr. Nassa, of the Misericordia, who has a high reputation for the treatment of this class of complaints, was called in, but he at once gave up the case as hopeless. Towards evening it became known about the Palace, and was reported out of doors, that the Queen could not escape. As a last resource, however, an operation commonly had recourse to in desperate cases was performed on the throat by the eminent surgeon Barbosa; but it was all of no avail, and shortly after 8 o'clock the mystery of the disease of her Majesty, the Rev. Joseph Daley, President of the English College, was in attendance, and administered the consolations of religion and the last rites of the Church. The last was surrounded by the sorrowing King and the royal family, to all of whom the Queen had endeared herself as much as if her relationship with them had been closer, from intimacy, and the English court will mourn for the royal lady whose grace and beauty was the admiration of all the parties given in her honor before she came to this country."

Success of the Worcester or Mr. Lyon, or New York.—The Galveston News, July 26, says: Sunday morning last, upon the jailor's visiting the cell of the prisoner Hill—confined for the murder of W. W. Lyon, of New York, and who was lately convicted of the crime, and a new trial granted by Judge Watrous, on account of informalities in the jury—he found his stiffened corpse in place of the living and healthy man he had left the night before. He with two other prisoners had for some time worked together in making desperate endeavors to escape from their cell, which was shut of brick alone, now stood between them and liberty, and the attack was made upon this beneath the grated window, and near half the labor of penetrating to the outer air accomplished when daylight came upon them and the work was abandoned. Hill returned to his cell, undressed and battled himself, and put on a clean shirt, drawers and stockings. A moment after this, one of the Irishmen looked into his cell and saw him in the act of hanging himself, and so informed his companion, who stated that he entered cell as soon as possible, and with the old knife used as a saw, cut him down, but too late. A linen sheet fastened to the remaining part of the rod running through the cell, and which was but little, if any, more than six feet above the floor, was the gallows upon which he suspended himself. To accomplish this, and for terminating his existence, he must have drawn up his feet, as the distance between the noose and the floor would not admit of his remaining erect.

A Curious Resurrection Case.—A curious case occurred last week in Franklin county, Ohio. Mr. Peters, wife of a German of that name, after a short illness, was supposed to have died. Her husband made inquiries for her funeral, and had having procured a coffin in this city. On placing her body in the coffin, a general perspiration was observed throughout the skin, which was reported to the husband. With the suggestion that the burial be deferred, in the hope of reanimation. To this the husband objected, and had her interred the same day (Saturday.) After the burial services were over, some relatives of the supposed deceased, who reside in this city, arrived at home to attend the funeral, which had already taken place, and hearing the circumstances, caused the body, which then had been four hours in the grave, to be disinterred, when to their surprise and joy, they found signs of life still remaining. Restoratives being administered, Mrs. Peters gradually recovered, was taken by her friends to this city, and is now well. We are informed that she expects to again live with her husband. The circumstances connected with the affair are strange, and should undergo investigation.—Columbus (O.) Fact.

The session and Worcester Railroad Company have settled the case of Mrs. Shaw, of Newburyport, who was injured upon their road some eight years ago, by the payment to her of $24,728, the total of the verdict and costs obtained by the plaintiff in the Supreme Court.

DALY'S
AROMATIC VALLEY WHISKY!
For Medical Use.

HAS now taken that position in the world's estimation, which justifies the Proprietor in claiming for it

A SUPERIORITY UNRIVALED,

Positively, as it is, to a process known only to the manufacturer, and extracted from the choicest grain, which grows nowhere but in the genial healthy in the Valley of the Monongahela, and containing no particle of deleterious substance; it has acquired a reputation for perfectly pure and intrinsic excellence, based solely upon its inherent merit, which the Proprietor does not intend, so long as he retains the manufacture, shall ever be forfeited, or in any manner allowed to impeach the correctness of the statements of the learned and whose certificates we publish herewith.

DISTINGUISHED CHEMISTS,

He has heretofore refrained from making public, by advertisement, the

EXTRAORDINARY MEDICINAL PROPERTIES

which it is proper to known to possess, and this silence on his part has been induced by a sensitive dread that the slightest suspicion should attach to him with reference to the exaggerated and fabulous lavish of quackery from circulars. But, for some time past, the proprietor has been in the receipt of unsolicited testimonials from all parts of the country, emanating

FROM PHYSICIANS OF THE HIGHEST REPUTATION, and testimonials which speak in such emphatic and unquestionable language of the medicinal qualities of the

as a

in all cases in which artificial stimulation has become requisite in order to restore, repair or assist the functions of the system. The proprietor has thought it only fair even at the hazard of which he has spoken, to make known to the public the fact that this Whiskey possesses, the medicinal properties of invaluable properties of this article, of his manufacture.

It is not his purpose to enter in detail a list of those diseases of the human system which have been known to be most benefited by the use of this aromatic tonic. They are particularly described in the various testimonials spoken of, which are open at all times to the inspection of our friends, but which we do not feel at liberty, without special permission of the distinguished persons who have sent them to us, to parade in the public newspapers.

Suffice it to state, that the diseases alluded to comprise all such as are incident to

TROPICAL LATITUDES, TO A CHANGE OF CLIMATE

OR DIET,

or to any other cause which discourages or impairs the normal functions of the human system, thereby leaving it susceptible and depressed, and the disease arising therefrom, if not cured, to

THE AROMATIC VALLEY WHISKY ACTS AS A RESTORATIVE,

and by the natural course, by a stimulant which, both in character and degree, seems to be in all cases most appropriate and beneficial and to call back that tone and force of action in the vital organs so essential to physical vigor.

It is in this extent that the proprietor knows himself to be justified in claiming for his Aromatic Valley Whiskey a superiority over all other whiskies which cannot be overcome, if not overpassed. Its universal use by the is most especially recommended. Already it has found its way into the principal public and private hospitals in the country, and wherever it has been once used it further with increased a reputation.

I have analyzed a sample of "Daly's Aromatic Valley Whiskey" and find it to be a pure article, of fine flavor, and without any deleterious ingredients.

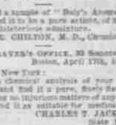
FASSMAN'S
IRON HOOP AND THE



HAVING become a settled point that Iron is to take the place of wood as a material for binding Cotton, all that now remains for the planter to do, is to select the most economical and durable article, and the one that meets with the most universal favor in commerce, Mr. H. Fassman, of Cincinnati, has for years been devoting his attention to the production of Iron as a binding material, and the result was the adoption of which he will offer to the Cotton growers of the South as FASSMAN'S IRON TIE; the first, combining the greatest amount of strength, with the utmost facility of application of any yet offered to the public.

The Hoops are of any length required, from eight to ten feet, and are so arranged as to allow of the same amount of cotton being packed in half an inch less space than is the case with the ordinary hoop, and yet greater strength is imparted, and it greatly eases the time of the laborers, who have to pack the cotton, and the Tie, which is used in connection with the hoop, is so constructed that it will not cut the cotton, but will hold it firmly, and be found well, in the course of time, to reduce the expense of the cotton bagging, one half.

The Hoops are put up in bundles of fifty hoops each, 20 Hoops, 24 feet long, weigh 75 pounds.

30 " 20 " " 100 "
50 " 20 " " 125 "
60 " 20 " " 150 "

This, for the ordinary cotton crop, is regarded by planters, will be a pounds the year.

The cotton hoop has received orders from the east and west for the other.

The last of November is the best time for, and, as we have ample means to meet the demand, we shall expect to have all the orders in hand, and be prepared to deliver them promptly at Memphis, or at any other point, if desired.

The Ties are put up in bundles of fifty each.

This Iron is manufactured from the best Iron, and is of the same size and quality as that used for the same purpose in the United States. The superiority of its coming shape, its facility of application, and its cheapness, will, we hope, secure for it a share of the patronage of the Cotton Growers of the South, and we trust, that the Hoop and Tie for cotton, will eventually find their way to every cotton plantation in the South, and be used in connection with the Iron Hoop and Tie, which, we understand, is now in use in a portion of the country, and is very acceptable to the planters.

The Hoop and Tie are adapted to all the elements of Speed, Safety and Comfort, arising from the perfect connection of the Hoop and Tie, which, we hope, will be found to be the best, and most economical, and durable article for the purpose, that has been offered to the public.

Orders addressed to the undersigned, or to the agent at Memphis, will be promptly attended to.

H. FASSMAN.
