STOCK FROM ARKANSAS.—A gentleman arrived from Greene county, the interior of Arkansas, a few days since, with a drove of fine fatted cattle for this market. They had the appearance of the best Missouri cattle, and are creditable to the locality from which they were driven.

LOST.—About two weeks since, a pocket book containing a number of patterns, specimens of fruit and shade trees, a certificate of service from J. T. Coleman, and other papers of no value to any one but the owner. A suitable reward will be paid for the delivery of the same at Mr. George Williams's boarding house, on Hernando street.

THE MISSES YOUNG'S SCHOOL.—It gives us the greatest pleasure to call attention to the card of these young ladies, who will resume the exercises of their school on Monday, September 5th. It has become a great favorite with our citizens, and is deserving of the general and generous patronage which it has already received.

THE CONCERT THIS EVENING.—The celebrated Kansas Family will give a other of their inimitable concerts at Odd Fellows' Hall this evening. These concerts have been attended by the best appreciators of music, and the company leave the impression that the endorsement of our leading amateurs. NOTICE.—Our readers will bare in mind that Messrs. Marshall & Matthews, from the school of the great and celebrated chemical dyers and scourers, Cook & Matthews, of St. Louis, have located themselves in this city, on Main street between Gayoso and Beal streets, where they are now prepared to dye cleanse and neatly repair every description of gents' coats, vests and pants. Send in your wardrobe and have it dyed, cleansed and neatly repaired. If they fail to please you, no charge will be made. Remember Marshall & Matthews, Main street, between Gayoso and Beal.

A MEMPHIAN MARRIED IN PHILADELPHIA.—Mr. Julius J. Berlin, of this city, was married in Philadelphia on the 21st inst., to Miss Bertha Potsdamer, a charming young lady of the "city of brotherly love." The event was solemnized at the "House of Israel," in Crowson street. The ceremonies were solemn and imposing, in accordance with the ancient faith of the happy pair. At the conclusion, a gay party of friends repaired to the hotel, at the corner of Third and Gaskill streets, and partook of a grand banquet prepared for the occasion. The friends of the parties to this city awaited their arrival home with pleasurable anxiety.

PURDY COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.—In our advertising columns will be found the announcement of the "Purdy Collegiate Institute," which is located at Purdy, McNairy county. The Trustees of this Institution have used every exertion to make it equal to the best institutes in our country. They have erected a handsome and commodious building, have furnished an ample apparatus and have employed an able and learned faculty. In addition to the documents, the locality is healthful, the society of the village highly moral, and the cost of board and tuition cheap. There were about 70 students in attendance during the last term, and it is believed that the number will be largely increased during the present year. There is no reason why this institution should not take rank with the best High Schools of our country and receive the patronage of the citizens of West Tennessee and North Mississippi to which it is entitled, by reason of its many advantages.

BRONZE STATUE OF JACKSON.—A movement is on foot at present, which, if properly encouraged, will result in the achievement of a wish that has long been dear to the admirers of General Jackson in the western portion of Tennessee. We allude to the erection in some appropriate locality of an equestrian statue of the old hero—something either identical or similar in design to the statues at Washington and New Orleans. A gentleman of this city offers a donation of one thousand dollars to such an enterprise, and others are more than willing to contribute to the success of the project. To all patriotic Tennesseans the memory of Jackson is second only to that of Washington, and such a tribute as we allude to above would be most appropriate. We suggest that the proposition to erect the statue be placed in the shape of an inscription, and that either Court Square or Jackson Mound be adorned with a "counterfeit presentiment" of the old hero that will be worthy the memory of so great a man and so devoted a people.

Elements of Moral Philosophy, by Rev. R. H. Rivers, D. D., President of the Wesleyan University, at Florence, Alabama.

(For the Memphis Appeal.)

EDITORS APPEAL: Permit me, through the columns of your journal, to return my thanks to the author for a copy of his late work. I have read it with both pleasure and profit. In my judgment it falls a place that ought to have been filled in our schools long since. It is not my design to enter into any critical analysis of the work. I should regard such a task as wholly useless, for the reason that those of your readers to whom such a criticism might be at all serviceable, will of course read and judge for themselves. Some of the views of the author are so far as I know, entirely original, and supported by a train of reasoning but little short of demonstration. It is, however, as a school book that I design to call our attention to it. Independently of the sound ethics which is taught in the work, one of the great merits of the work as a school book, is to be found in the simple and natural order in which the different parts are arranged. The whole subject is placed in such order that each successive chapter and section seem to be suggested by and grow out of its predecessor. The language is plain, chaste and simple, and at the same time it is cogent and convincing. His illustrations are brief and clear. I am no croaker, either for the North or for the South, and regret, sirs, that the sentiments of the country in either section should be such as to create the necessity for any difference on literature. But the justice which has been done to the slave holding States by moral writers both in America and Europe has, in my opinion, long since called upon the South to vindicate itself, or get clear of the institution. The former I have never doubted could be done, and if I had had such a doubt the work of Dr. Rivers would have dispelled it. There are several very valuable works that embrace the same subject, and handle it too with masterly ability, but these are intended for the libraries of gentlemen, not for the school-room, and it has seemed strange to me that we should send our sons to college to learn from Wayland and others that their fathers and mothers were monsters in human shape, and then when they are out of school to recommend to them the work of Professor Bledsoe and others to correct the errors they acquired at school. I do not wish however to be understood as pleading the claim of this work to public patronage solely, or even mainly upon the ground of its masterly and triumphant vindication of the organization of society in the Southern States, but upon the whole work, in the simplicity of the arrangement, the brevity and clearness of the style, and the force of the logic by which simple, plain, unadorned truth is presented to the youthful mind of the country with a force and bearing that must command the judgement and purify the heart.

During the forty-eight hours ending at 6 o'clock last evening, the river declined three inches at this point. There was a heavy fall of rain in this latitude Sunday evening. The weather was clear, cool and pleasant yesterday. Business at the landing was unusually brisk.

Last night's telegraph reported a rise of two inches in the river at St. Louis, during the last preceding twenty-four hours.

The receipts for river since Saturday have been unusually heavy for the season, as the boats arriving, both from above and below, are well freighted.

The Henry Choteau, from St. Louis, Sunday night, brought about 800 packages dry goods for our merchants.

The steamer Capitol arrived from New Orleans at an early hour Sunday morning, and departed again last evening. She had a large number of passengers on the return trip and a fair freight, including 116 bales cotton.

The J. H. Lucas came down from St. Louis in place of the Platte Valley, which has been laid up for repair. She had a fine trip, including 250 bales hay, 55 mules and 45 horses.

The Mitis Denning arrived from New Orleans yesterday with considerable freight for this port, including 1250 bars railroad iron for the Mississippi Central Railroad. The Denning lay here until this morning.

The arrival of the Kate Frisbee was delayed until a late hour last night, which circumstance delayed the departure of the J. H. Lucas for St. Louis.

Capt. Adams' Arkansas river mail packet Irene, handsomely refitted and substantially repaired at Cincinnati, passed down yesterday with two barges in tow—the boat and both barges heavily freighted. A large amount of her freight was for Memphis merchants.

We are informed that Capt. Adams will extend the trips of his Arkansas river mail boat to this city during the approaching business season.

The steamer Hickman, that left Cincinnati for this port on Thursday last, had sixty-five cabin, and twenty-five deck passengers, in addition to a large amount of freight. She will arrive here this morning.

We learn from the Cincinnati Commercial that Mrs. Prudence Summons, widow of the late Capt. J. Blair Summons, was married recently in Wellsville, Ohio, to Wm. Barlit.

Thos. C. Bennett, a well known Cumberland river engineer, died on the 6th instant, at the residence of Mr. Geo. Thompson, in Padorah.

FOR VICKSBURG.—The fine steamer Kate Frisbee, Captain James Lee, will leave for Vicksburg at four o'clock this afternoon. She is the regular mail and passenger packet, and one of the best of her class.

TO COTTON PLANTERS GENERALLY.

From the Vicksburg Whig.

THE owners and agents of the various from Vicksburg Cotton Sales are making great exertions to induce them to pass notice, and bring their long staple cotton to market, and it is hoped that the off-Levee merchants, and cotton-buyers will come.

No doubt iron ranges for somewhat longer than rope will last somewhat longer, our impression is not aware of that fact—at any rate, they make no difference in their rates of insurance on either. They as well to state on this head, that iron rust, coming in contact with cotton, in a state of friction, is not to produce fire; and many principles of insurance in the attitude the late fire on board cotton-loaded ships in this port, in 1857, and 1858. We, however, that iron-bound cotton is more liable to damage by exposure to rain than rope-bound cotton, and that it is much more expensive to pick and put in order.

That iron rods the planters less than rope there can be no doubt; and this point is the most important for using the iron. But that rope is both neatly and valuable for the consumer, we can not deny—because its hoops are worth nothing to any body, and this the planter, and the consumer, in view of their own more practical advantage.

There is a community of interests between the planter and consumer, and it ought to be so; and it is for order to insure success in business to both. There should, therefore, be a fair, fair, and fair, and fair, having dispute and quarrels enough, in all conscience, with the unscrupulous speculator, who make all the other interest.

At fact is a statement in figures, to which your attention is respectfully solicited. It shows an difference in value of $1.10 per bale to the consumer in favor of iron-bound cotton, and that bound in rope.

This great difference certainly warrants the more that is now being made by certain notes. Papers in this city, to make the Chamber of Commerce to establish an uniform tare of 18lbs. per bale on all iron-bound cotton received at this port after the 1st of Sept. next.
