The following gentlemen were appointed such committee: Mr. Miner, of Mississippi, C. B. New, of Mississippi, Dr. R. H. Hodsden, of Tennessee, T. B. Rutherford, of South Carolina, and S. R. Cockrill of Tennessee.

Vice President Rutherford being in the chair, Mr. Hodsden offered the following resolutions, which were considered by the committee, favorably reported to the convention, and after a interesting debate and some slight alterations, were adopted:

WHEREAS, The great mass of the South are engaged in agricultural pursuits, and as agriculture is the basis of our social and political stability, and the great element of our strength and power; and whereas, experience has demonstrated the value of State and sectional agricultural associations in promoting the progress of agriculture, by stimulating a spirit of investigation and inquiry, as to our wants and the best mode of supplying them; therefore,

Resolved, That we recommend to the several Southern States, the establishment of the State Board of Agriculture, with auxiliary county societies, and that the President of this convention be requested to prepare a plan and respectfully urge its adoption by the Southern States.

Resolved, That regarding planters' conventions as one of the great values, it should be the duty of the State boards to appoint annually delegates to attend at such time and place as may be deemed most expedient.

Resolved, That the place of holding these conventions, or it to be changed from year to year, and hereafter provision should be made for a bureau of southern industry at our annual meetings.

Resolved, That regarding the collection of agricultural statistics as the greatest importance, we recommend to the several Southern States, a plan for the annual collection of agricultural statistics, and for their publication, and that a committee of five be appointed to prepare a plan.

Resolved, That a plan should be adopted and have agreed on the agricultural board of the South, of the which semi-monthly reports of the growing cotton crops could be had in every county in the South.

Dr. Jackson offered the following resolutions, which being favorably reported, were adopted:

WHEREAS, There are now many conflicting views on the subject of reclaiming the great Land Depositi of the Mississippi river, and some of its lower tributaries; now, therefore,

LETTER FROM JOHN RANDOLPH.

The following truly interesting letter is from John Randolph, of Roanoke, written to John Randolph Bryant, who married his favorite niece. It was written twenty-nine years ago, from England, and a short time before Randolph's death:

LONDON, December 28, 1830.

MY DEAR GOOD CHILD: Although I have so lately written to you by letter half, and at some tedious length, too, yet I cannot refrain from the attempt to engraft an old head upon your young shoulders, notwithstanding the belief that an man was the wiser for another's experience. There are too many who are unable to profit by their own paid for wisdom, and the expenditure, not to mention another class of victims of licentious propensities nattured into habitual indulgence. Each of these wretched votaries of his darling vice is more sensible of the ruinous effects of his folly than any preacher who spoke him from the cool sequences. Er that wears the chain best knows how and where the fetter galls. They that declaim against the fixed and rooted illhabits of their neighbors, under the expectation of reforming him, only show that they themselves are coxcombs. Rather sententious and flat this, you will say, and you will say the truth.

Having established yourself in Gloucester, let me remind you "not to put off until to-morrow what may be done to-day," and to leave until next year what could be done this (1831.) Plant all sorts of trees. Man and boy I knew John Lewis for some forty years or so, although I never was in his house. It may be probable he has never you the trouble of rearing cherubs. But, be that as it may, fail not to have a good apple orchard, especially, and hands ardent spirits as a beverage from your table.

If, at the beginning, you are obliged to resort to spirits, let your wife make punch of toddy by preference, if a certain strength never to be increased according to the good old Virginia fashion.

2 Have no dealing that can possibly be avoided with your neighbors. The disregard of this caution will certainly lead to squabbles and strife.

3. Take no receipt on loose pieces of paper. Carry a receipt book in your pocket, and take all receipts in it; if you are afraid of losing it, keep it in your desk. Always have the receipts witnessed, when practicable.

4. Copy, or have copied, all your bills in a book, so that you may at a glance see the cost of any article or branch of expense. Without accurate accounts you must fall behind hand. What voyage would a ship make without observation or reckoning? You are now embarked on a voyage of life; without a good look out you may be cast away.

5. Form no intimacies with your neighbors under a seven year acquaintance. The rigid observance of my own maxims did not prevent ill blood between some of my neighbors and myself. My maxims preserved me from strife, and from loss by those. With the rest I was on the best of terms.

6. Economy, the adapting of your supplies judiciously to their intended end. This is a gift of God. It cannot be taught, at least. I have tried to learn it all my life, without success. My mother had it in perfection.

7. Frugality—It is in the power of every honest man, who means to retrain his honesty, to refrain from indulging in expenses which he cannot afford. A disregard of this maxim, the result of their indolent ignorance of their own affairs, has ruined half my acquaintance; they did not know what they could afford, and some, I fear, did not care.

I shall send you some acorns of an oak from Turkey, and also a few English. Plant them in beds, keep clean and transplant at eighteen inches or two feet high. I hope that you will not forget beech-nuts, English walnuts, filberts, hazel nuts and chesnuts.

I shall probably never see you and my darling niece succeed as housekeepers. Daily and hourly I pray that your days may be long in the land, and that you may live to see your children's children to the third and fourth generation, and that your last days may be your best days. Let your "Spring with flowers fragrance fill," dress the turf that shall cover my no longer feverish head or throbbing heart. If there be any memorial of me, let it be a plain headstone, with the inscription: "John Randolph of Roanoke, son of John Randolph of Roanoke, the elder, and Francis Bland, his wife, of Virginia, born June 2, 1773, died ——, 1831." Beyond this last period I feel that it is impossible, short of a miracle, for my existence to be prolonged. "Thy will be done."

I shall close my confined to my apartment, with faithful John's aid. I have all the comforts that I am now capable of enjoying: my life hangs upon his.

I had liked to have omitted one special caution against going to the watering places in autumn in search of health. It is an idle, disgusted and expensive practice. If you are to live in the lower country, you must accustom yourself to the climate, which I have no hesitation in saying is in every way more healthy than that of the upper country short of the Alleghany. When I was a boy, fevers and fevers were hardly known twenty in les west of the falls of the great rivers. The inhabitants of the lower country always jeered by the trans-mountain people, especially on account of their sickly climate. But now perhaps the valley is the sickliest in the State. Who ever heard of the shaking up of Job William and Mary by an indigenous plague? In case you should go for enough west (to Montgomery or Wythe) to avoid autumnal disease, you must expect to spend the first times that circumstances oblige you to spend the season at home. There never was complaint of sickness at Warner Hall until the last Warner introduced the rum fever. The pulse of health has been a pretext to cover the love of gadding and gossiping; and for a winter climate and hydropathy especially, not mentioning roads, there is no comparison.

Pray mention Mrs. V. Bibber's lowest price for her estate, and John Tabb's also, if practicable.

Adieu, my children.

J. R., of Roanoke.

To JOHN RANDOLPH BRYANT, Esq.

The American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions.

The fiftieth report of this body, which is prepared for the meeting of the board held at Philadelphia to-day, has the following facts:

Thirty-six persons have entered upon the missionary work within the past year, and thirteen have returned to their respective fields. Twenty-six persons are now under appointment in this country. The receipts for the last financial year were: Ord nary donations two hundred and sixty-three thousand eight hundred and four dollars and forty-five cents; legacies forty-nine thousand nine hundred and twenty-three dollars and three cents; contributions to the deficiency fund, twelve thousand seven hundred and ninety-two dollars and ninety-five cents; income of trust sources, twenty-four thousand three hundred and fifty-five dollars and four cents—making a total of three hundred and fifty thousand nine hundred and fifteen dollars and forty-five cents, an advance of sixteen thousand eight hundred and ninety-six dollars and ninety-seven cents on the receipts of the previous year. The children have contributed six thousand five hundred and eighty-nine dollars and thirty-five cents for the "Mission School Enterprise." The expenditures for the year were three hundred and fifteen thousand five hundred and eighteen dollars and seventy-one cents—which is an excess of the receipts of twenty-five thousand five hundred and three dollars and twenty-six cents. ### AFFAIRS ON THE RIO GRANDE.

We had the pleasure of an interview, this morning, with Mr. Kinney, editor of the Brownsville Flag. We learn from him that the late incursion of a Mexican guerrilla party into that city, was a much more serious affair than we were led at first, by the published accounts, to believe. In fact, such is the state of things on the Rio Grande, that no one, or in the immediate vicinity, feels it safe openly to express his opinion in public. Mr. K. thinks the original intention of Cortinas was to burn down the town, and fears are entertained that he will yet accomplish his purpose. At last accounts received by him, the 8th inst., some twenty-four hours later than were before in our possession, the whole party were encamped some thirteen miles up the river, on the American side, at what is known as Corrinas' Ranch. They then numbered in all some four hundred men, and were daily receiving accessions, both from the Mexican and American side, for, as said before, a large portion of the population on this side of the Rio Mexican in sympathies, and moreover in a destitute condition, had joined hands with the plunderers.

No one, of course, knows the place of the depredators, nor how far their depredations will extend, nor what will be the issue of the matter. Mr. K. thinks, however, that now the long expected incursions have begun, that there will be no security to life or property anywhere on the border till the lately abandoned military stations shall have been re-established. The ordered troops, if they come, at the times he thinks the cause of all the trouble. There is not now, from El Paso to the mouth of the Rio Grande, a distance of upward of 1200 miles, following the course of the stream, and all exposed, a single military station kept up or a single soldier for the protection of the defenseless citizens.

And as to assistance from San Antonio, whither on the appearance of the guerrilla, messenger were it once dispatched, Mr. K. thinks they will be disappointed. There is not, he thinks, at any of the stations in the interior, more than a sufficient force for the protection of the surrounding country. It may be that a few troops will be ordered to the mouth of the Rio Grande, to protect the city of Brownsville, may be spared from San Antonio, but for the efficient protection of the whole border, liable at any place, and at any moment, to be overrun by these guerrilla bands, it is believed that a permanent force of not less than 500 to 600 men will be found necessary.—New York Picayune.

A CURIOSITY.—On Monday last, in company with some friends, Gen. Quitman paid a visit to the La Mont House for the purpose of seeing two children, said to be curiosities. We found the little ones with their mother, a mulatto woman, and learned that they were twins three years and five months old. The little boy is quite black, and shows all the strong points of his African ancestry. The little girl, however—an albinoes—is extraordinarily white, although possessing the features of the negro. Her hair is crisp and woolly but white as flax, and her eyes, although not pink, have the restless activity of motion peculiar to Albinos. Their names are Henry and Ellen Wolkom, and they were born in Gardiner, North Carolina. The grand parents, by the mother's side, were pure African and Circassian, and the father was of unmixed African blood. Dr. Irwin is fully satisfied that the children are twins.—Dunkirk (N. Y.) Press, October 7.
