Daily Appeal.

THE APPROACHING PRESIDENTIAL CRISIS.

VIEWS OF A CONSERVATIVE SOUTHERN OPPOSITION ORGAN—THE RECENT NORTHERN ELECTIONS.

[From the Richmond Write.]

The recent elections at the North, except in the State of New Jersey, have resulted in the triumph of the Black-Republican party. In New York and Massachusetts, however, the vote was a light one. In the city of New York, where there were one hundred and four thousand registered voters, there were polled on Tuesday only a little over fifty-six thousand votes, or about one half of the whole vote of the city. Why there was so small a vote, under circumstances which are considered calculated to draw out an unusually large one, is left entirely to conjecture. As for ourselves, we are disposed to deduce from the fact a conclusion favorable to the harmony and perpetuity of the Union, and, consequently to the rights and interests of the South. In view of the Harper's Ferry emeute and the inevitable tendency of abolition doctrines, we think a large portion of the voters of the North have been brought at last to a pause and to reflection. For it will be seen that there is a large falling off in the Republican vote, notwithstanding the most earnest and persistent efforts on the part of the leaders and presses of the Republican party, to rally their followers to the polls. And this we are inclined to regard as encouraging indication that the people are beginning to see the danger of the course of the Republican party, and the old-Black-Republican organization, and by our principles and doctrines inculcate, Seward and his disciples.

But will the triumph of the Seward party in the great State of New York afford occasion for alarm and apprehension to every lover of the Union, North and South, East and West. We think not, for the vote, and we indicate no line of policy to the South, but it is proper to inform the northern people, with calmness and candor, that the election of William H. Seward to the Presidency would be followed, according to our judgment and belief, by an almost instant secession of the Southern States from the Union. We sincerely pray over the question at present, whether it would be the part of wisdom and patriotism or not for the Southern States to refuse submission to the inauguration of a President elected in accordance with the forms of the Constitution. Nor is it necessary to state, even if we knew, exactly what will be our own course in the event of Seward's election. We can only state what we firmly and religiously believe, that the Southern States will not submit to the inauguration of Seward as President of the United States. We go further, and say that the Southern States will not submit to the inauguration of any Black-Republican President, in accordance with the forms of the Constitution. Nor is it necessary to state, even if we knew, exactly what will be our own course in the event of Seward's election. We can only state what we firmly and religiously believe, that the Southern States will not submit to the inauguration of Seward as President of the United States. We go further, and say that the Southern States will not submit to the inauguration of any Black-Republican President, in accordance with the forms of the Constitution—that is, any man elected by the Republican party, as such, in its capacity of a separate and distinct political and sectional organization. In such an event, we believe all the Gulf States, and at the same moment, will go out of the Union, and set up for themselves, and that the other Southern States, Virginia included, will ultimately, if not immediately, take precisely the same step. We confess that, until recently, we have never so believed, or thought, or dreamed; but there is now no mistaking the temper and purpose of the southern people, and the ominous signs of the times.

The politicians and editors of the Republican party are laboring under a terrible delusion, which we wish we could remove from their minds. They appear to be in the opinion that the Southern States have no idea of seceding from the Union, no matter what may happen. Least of all do they suppose that the secession movement will grow out of the Union in the event of the election of a Black-Republican President, in accordance with the forms of the Constitution. They consider all the talk about secession and disunion at the South, as nothing but bluster and humbug, and we readily acknowledge that the boasting rodomontade and ridiculous threats of southern extremists in times past would justify such a conclusion. But times and circumstances have changed, and nearly all men at the South have changed with them. Men—thoroughly conservative and moderate men—who never before entertained a despairing thought of the Union, have begun to despair now, and believe that the days of the republic are well nigh numbered. There is but little apparent excitement in the South at the present time, notwithstanding the audacity of the Abolition invasion at Harper's Ferry; but there is a quiet, silent determination pervading all ranks and classes of southern men, which will break the insolence and aggression of the North no longer, and which we have never known to exist before.

What particular measures, however, Virginia and the South should adopt, is left to the calm reflection of the southern people and the wisdom of their representatives. We invoke the Republican editors and politicians to dismiss the fatal delusion under which they seem to rest, and to which we have already referred. The South is not to be trifled or for misunderstanding between the North and South. We repeat, therefore, what we have already distinctly intimated, that the only sure hope and guaranty of the Union and of the public peace lies in the dissolution and abandonment of the Republican party. That is a threatening and insulting sectional organization, based upon the single idea of opposition to slavery and the South, and no Southern man can support its candidates or sympathize with it in any manner or to any extent whatever. We appeal to the Northern people to consider well this matter before it is too late. We speak in danger—imminent danger—ahead, if the Republicans persist in clinging to their separate and distinctive organization. It must be abandoned if we desire to preserve the Union. And yet we confess we have but little hope of it in view of the recent elections. But, as a conservative union man, as a union loving man, and yet as a Virginian and a southerner, we have discharged our duty in giving calm and timely warning to the northern people of the fearful consequences which will follow in case we fail to heed the warning. With them is the responsibility. As for Virginia and the South, their own safety is the first duty, and that duty will be fearlessly met, regardless of consequences.

A DRUNK NUMAN.—We yesterday witnessed a sight at once singular, novel and rare. Walking along the levee we saw a party of German emigrants, who had just arrived from "Fatherland," or "near Germany," dressed in their queer homespun costume—the men with funny looking caps, hob-nail shoes and plaited breeches, and with the pipes in their mouths; the women in their short linsey petticoats, innocent of crinoline, bare-headed, and with plaited pig-tails hanging down their backs—accompanied by their equally singular looking children—minature Noah's arks—and all looking cozy, healthy and happy. But the principal feature in the group was a stalwart, thick-lipped, kinkey-haired darkey, whose skin vied with moonless midnight in intensity of blackness. He, too, was costumed as the rest, and with the curious looking cap and clothes, and the everlasting enormous pipe between his lips, looked very like an imported Dutchman, barring the complexion. Struck with his appearance, we approached the party, and were astonished to hear him talking German with facility to a boxom, fat handsome lass. They were evidently enjoying the animated scene around them, and he appeared to be on as cozy footing with the party as the girl himself merrily at his remarks, and laid her hand confidingly and familiarly on his shoulders. Upon inquiring of the interpreter we learned that Hans, as he was called, was saved from a wrecked ship, when a mere child, many years ago, and having been adopted and reared in the interior of Holland, and learned German, and does not now speak one word of English.—N. O. Picayune.
