THE MEMPHIS DAILY APPEAL.

BY M'CLANAHAN, TROUSDALE & DILL. MEMPHIS, TUESDAY, MARCH 20, 1860. VOLUME XI—NUMBER 67.

Daily Appeal.

LETTER FROM HON. O. B. FICKLIN—MR. DOUGLAS.

[From the Columbia (Mo.) Times.]

We yield to-day a portion of our space to a letter from the Hon. Orlando B. Ficklin, for many years a member of Congress, and at present a delegate to Charleston from the State of Illinois, relative to the Hon. S. A. Douglas as a suitable candidate for the national Democratic convention. The able writer speaks of the political history of Mr. Douglas from an intimate acquaintance with him for twenty years, and we bespeak for the letter a careful perusal by our readers.

Without modifying our own views in relation to the doctrine of protection to slave property in the Territories and the right of Congress to enforce the constitutional guarantees of all citizens migrating to the common domain, we publish the communication with great cheerfulness. One thing is true, the Democracy of Illinois, showing their faith by their works, have heretofore, in the democratic convention, cast their vote in favor of men loyal to the constitutional rights of the South. In 1852, voting for the Hon. Jefferson Davis, than whom none more devoted to the South, for Vice-President, and in 1856 for the Hon. John A. Quitman, the recognized champion of the fire-eaters, for the same position:

CHARLESTON, Ill., March 1, 1860.

HON. PETTUS H. COLQUITT: During the fierce struggle of 1858 between Judge Douglas and Mr. Lincoln, I had the pleasure to receive a letter from you, touching the points involved in that memorable campaign, and asking my views as to the future course of Judge Douglas. As intimate acquaintance with him of twenty-five years duration, and a thorough knowledge of his political opinions, enabled me to say, then, that there was no more question of his fidelity to all of the principles and usages of the Democratic party, and all of the compromises of the Constitution, than there was of the annual return of the seasons.

Born and bred a Democrat, no member of the party, nor no sick overjoyed measure of the party, has ever failed to receive his cordial support. On entering Congress in 1841, his speech in favor of refunding the fine to General Jackson gave him a national reputation, and at that very session, he, in common with the South, was openly and actively in favor of the annexation of Texas, and of the nomination in 1844 of candidates for president and vice-president favorable to that measure; and the result was the nomination of those distinguished statesmen, Polk and Dallas, whose administration furnishes one of the brightest pages in American history. During that same session, too, Judge Douglas, in common with the other Democratic members from Illinois, voted for the first rule, excluding from the House abolition petitions.

On the introduction of the Wilmot proviso, by its notorious Pennsylvania mover, Judge Douglas was one of the first to oppose and deal out heavy blows against it, and foul injustice is done him by those who charge or intimate that he was ever in favor of that measure in any sense whatever. Our Senators were instructed by the Illinois legislature to vote for the proviso, and how vote that he never gave on that side were in obedience to the legislative instructions and contrary to his own judgment, and under protest at the time.

In consonance with the views and wishes of the distinguished statesmen and patriots of the South, he introduced the clause in the Kansas-Nebraska bill, repealing the Missouri compromise line, which repeal was then acknowledged on all hands to be in harmony with the compromise measures of 1850, and place the North and the South upon a perfect equality as to person and property in migrating to the Territories of the nation, uncontrolled by a geographical line, which, at the time of its passage, Mr. Jefferson so bitterly denounced. For this act of even-handed justice, the Abolitionists of every hue and complexion, the great army of freedom shriekers, poured their vials of wrath upon his devoted head, and hence Douglas is cursed from the shores of Aroostook to the banks of the Ohio.

The compromise measures of 1850, including the fugitive slave act and the Texas boundary act, gave great offence to the Abolitionists, and the doctrine of non-intervention by Congress with the question of slavery, was antagonistic to and destructive of, every prospect of the Wilmot proviso. It cannot be denied that not only in the Cincinnati convention, but also by the letters and speeches of President, Vice-President, and members of the Cabinet, was this doctrine fully and unequivocally enunciated in every section of the Union. It is now proposed to submit to the Charleston convention some tests of party fealty, and to disorganize the party if they not adopted, even before a candidate is nominated.

The disintegration of the Democratic party, and even the disruption of the Union seem to be some country by some to be a sweet comfort to the enemies of the Constitution, and there, by gravely imperil the very existence of the Government itself.

Resolved, That while we make no threat, and throw out no menace, we solemnly declare that the people of this State will resist aggression upon their sovereignty and political rights whenever the emergency arises.

Resolved, That the recent invasion of the soil of our sister State of Virginia by a band of armed traitors was the legitimate result of the principles and teachings of the Black-Republican party, and the triumph of that party would be followed by continued bloody raids of like character upon all the border Southern States; that such collisions, even if unattended by the present exasperating causes of alienation, would alienate Northern and Southern feeling between the sections, without which the Union cannot endure.

Resolved, That the course of our Democratic representatives in the present Congress of the United States meets with our warmest approval, and that the manly and patriotic action of those national Democrats from the non-slaveholding States who have so nobly cooperated, and continue to co-operate, with them demands a cordial and heartfelt recognition at our hands.

Resolved, That having the fullest confidence in the patriotism and ability of the national Democratic convention to assemble at Charleston, and the 23d of April next, we pledge ourselves to give to the nominees of that convention a zealous and unwavering support.

Resolved, That James Buchanan, President of the United States, deserves the thanks of the South, and of the whole country, for the firm constitutional policy which has characterized the course of his Administration.

Resolved, That we are opposed to disturbing any of the sectional compromises of our Constitution, State or national, and that we especially deprecate the introduction at this time by the Opposition party of North Carolina into our State politics of a question of constitutional amendment affecting the basis upon which our revenue is raised, believing it to be premature, impolitic, dangerous, and unjust: at the same time we deem it the duty of the legislature, when passing acts for the raising of revenue, so to adjust taxation as to bear as equally as practicable, within the limits of the Constitution, upon the various interests and classes of property in all sections of the State.

Resolved, That we are anxious to see the different sections of the State fostered and developed, and to that end believe that such aid should be given toward the forwarding to completion of the works of internal improvement already begun, and the construction of such others as may be deemed excellent, at the credit of the State and the means of her citizens may permit, without injuriously affecting the one or imposing too onerous burdens on the other.

The North Carolina Standard says:

Sixty-three counties were represented by more than three hundred delegates. A more intelligent or patriotic body of men never assembled in North Carolina.

No preference was openly intimated, much less expressed, for the presidency. Bedford Brown, of Caswell, William S. Ashe, of New Hanover, W. W. Avery, of Burke, and William W. Holden, of Wake, were appointed delegates for the State at large to the Charleston convention. A. S. Scales, of Rockingham, and E. G. Haywood, of Wake, were nominated electors for the State at large.

We point with peculiar satisfaction to the resolutions adopted on federal affairs. They are clear, bold, just toward the administration of Mr. Buchanan and the northern Democracy, and at the same time fearless in their tone toward our Black-Republican assailants. They are for a constitutional Union, and not for unconstitutional submission to Seward and his followers.

The speech of Gov. Ellis on Friday night, accepting the nomination for governor, was one of the best political speeches we have ever heard. The governor was enthusiastically greeted and applauded. He was followed by Hon. John Kerr, Hon. A. M. Scales, W. I. Steele, Esq., Hon. W. W. Avery, who entertained the large audience in the best manner.

The "Crisis" in the United States.

The boastful Republic so much vaunted by our righteous Yankees, seems to be the brink of a precipice, from which retreat will be disgrace, and advance destruction. The very values of the American statesmen—Bonner, the Smiths, Greeley, Lovejoy, Giddings and others—are wrangling in the House of Parliament in the Columbia District, over a little volume called the "Impending Crisis," written by an Orthodox named Hinton Rowan Helper, in which the author proves that, unless the States south of the State of New Orleans agree to abolish negro slavery, the South will supply them with no more chess-pegs, and utter financial ruin will be the consequence. The members of Parliament who quarrel over this singular book, betray all the American characteristics in their savage abuse of each other, and sometimes they even come to blows. The Hon. Charles Sumner, one of their number, was recently fired upon by a more manly Southern; and just before the Asia sailed, it was reported that a member named Askins was detected in the act of throwing away a heavy rifle, which he had previously managed to carry in a pocket made expressly for it.

Though we have no particular faith in the stability of the Americans call their "Republican Institutions," we are sorry to see our cousins working their own ruin with the edge-sword of political incompatibility. As true Southern Confederacy, we are bound to sympathize with the so-called "Abolitionists" of the Northern States of Georgia, Nashville, Harper's Ferry, Virginia, etc., in their efforts to free the negroes from bondage. Some of the greatest men now living in America are blacks—the famous James Brown was a negro, therefore, the governor of Harper's Ferry long him. Horace Greeley, the famous journalist, is a negro; their great sensation preacher, Henry Wood Beecher, is said to be a quadroon. Yet despite such evidences of the African's natural equality with the whites in intellect as well as everything else, the southern members of Parliament, led on by a Mr. Sipps, are threatening to dissolve the American Union if they are not allowed to hold their slaves in New York.

There can be but one termination of this state of things in America. Civil war must eventually break out among men descended from elements, and then the Union will cease to be forever!—English paper.

BISHOP MILES.—A Nashville paper has the following in regard to the death of the venerable Bishop Miles:

He was born in Prince George county, Maryland, in 1780, and at the age of five years removed to Kentucky. He was removed to Nashville in the year 1838, since which time he has been a permanent resident of that place. The deceased was well known, and enjoyed the friendship and esteem of all who had formed his acquaintance. In his death the church has lost one of its brightest ornaments, and the State a good and useful citizen.

☞ Louis Napoleon's stables in the new Louvre are described as something marvellous. Accommodation has been provided for ninety horses, with coach houses, a riding school, and every necessary dependence. The partitions of the stalls are carved oak, the racks bronze, the mangers marble, and the chains steel. The columns are covered with a new kind of stucco, equal to marble for smoothness and polish. In the Cour Henri III there is an iron staircase of very quaint shape, by which the horses go up to the riding school, situated on a level with a picture gallery.
