NEW CITY ENGINEER.

McGilvray the Man—Shall the City Parallel the Present Water Company's Plant?

McGregor Asked to Resign—Want to Cut Young Truelsen's Salary—Railroad Trespass.

The most important thing at Monday night's council meeting was the settlement of the city engineer embroglio. It having been rumored that McGilvray's confirmation would be reconsidered, no new nomination was submitted. Jefferson wanted the confirmation laid over, but his motion to that effect failed, and the motion to confirm carried by the following vote:
Yeas—Aldermen Crassweller, Dahl, Duren, Harker, Richardson, Rowley, Shannon, Simpson, Sang, Fischer, Trevillon and President Cochran.

Nays—Aldermen Burg, Hanson, Jefferson and Stevens.
The mayor submitted the appointment of Ed. Force to the rank of sergeant of police, his duties to be to look after the payrolls, receive reports from poundmasters and to perform special duty at Lakeside, Sundays and evenings; also the appointment of D. D. McDonald as special police without pay for the Cranberry Lumber company.

The bond of John Flood was approved; and the bill for typewriting from the uniform charter commission was referred to the city attorney.

City Attorney Richards reported no legal difficulties in the way of setting aside the award in the condemnation proceedings for the land on which is located the spur track to the pump house and the commencement of a new action. John S. Dow, W. G. Joerns and J. W. Crowley were appointed a commission for such condemnation.

The Canosia Lake Improvement company had asked permission to erect telephone poles in the city limits, in order that they might make connection with the central part of the city. The city attorney reported that there were no legal obstacles in the way of granting such privilege. Manager Lomaney of the Duluth Telephone company opposed the concession, and Mr. Seville of the Canosia company accused the opposing interests of using money to prevent the new line coming in over the lines of any but the Duluth company. There was considerable talk about "nigger in the wood pile," "wood chuck," and an underhand effort to secure a long-distance telephone franchise. The resolution granting the desired privilege was adopted.

The railroad embankment in St. Paul avenue, Fond du Lac, the city attorney also reported, had been made without authority and its removal was ordered. The railroad track on Arthur avenue was another trespass that occasioned considerable discussion. A petition from numerous business men asked its removal; and the city attorney reported that there was no record of permission being given for its construction; it was claimed to make a dangerous crossing near the entrance to the new bridge and by a vote of 9 to 7 the board of public works was ordered to take it up.

Hartman & Patterson were allowed $386 for commissions on renewals; the city printing was awarded to the Herald at 75 cents per folio for the first insertion and 35 cents for each subsequent insertion; the salvage corps was ordered to make a report by June 15; the resignation of Fire Commissioner McGregor was called for; and after a hot discussion over the salary of Secretary Truelsen of the fire board the matter was referred back with a recommendation that his pay be reduced from $40 to $15 per month.

The hackmen and draymen were refunded the extra amounts paid on their licenses during the past spring under the old ordinance; a petition was received from the pool and billiard men asking for the repeal of the license ordinance as it relates to them; or, at least, a substantial reduction in the amount. The comptroller asked for an additional clerk, on account of the extra work entailed by the extension of assessments. And a resolution was adopted asking the opinion of the board of public works on a cost of paralleling the old water company's entire plant.

PASTOR AND AGITATOR.

The ministers of Duluth and Superior have shown a commendable desire to bring the workingmen and the church into more sympathetic relationship. On several occasions, during the past six months, they have invited representatives of labor to the meetings of their association, at which the interchange of opinions have been so interesting that a further continuance of the discussion was desired. In consequence, E. R. Cobb and A. McCallum were invited to be present at the quarterly assemblage of the association, Monday evening at the Spalding. The absence of Mr. McCallum from the city, resulted, Monday afternoon, in the substitution of George C. Findley.

Rev. C. H. Patten presided; and after the supper had been properly disposed of, he announced the subject of the discussion, "The Relation Between the Labor Unions and the Church," and after briefly explaining the object of the meeting, introduced Mr. Cobb. The latter followed with a paper in which he set forth some of the reasons why the church fails in attracting the workingmen. Among other things, he said that the average sermon shoots too high; there is too much display of scholarship and too little of the simplicity, the sincerity and the sympathy of the gospel as proclaimed by Christ. He dwelt forcibly on the disposition of the church to magnify the men of wealth who contribute liberally to religious purposes, but by their oppression of their employes, harden and embitter the hearts of the latter against the cause they profess to serve. Mr. Pullman, he declared, in connection with the flattery accorded him for his donations, was a more powerful sermon against Christianity than all the speeches Ingersoll had ever uttered. The church welcomes the rich man with open arms, while the poor man is often met with disdain, or a patronizing air that wounds his self-respect.

Mr. Findley followed. He declared that both the church and trades unionism had a common object. The fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man are complementary doctrines. Assuming either, the other is inevitable. The trouble is that the church too exclusively emphasizes the former; the workingmen, perhaps, the latter. The church dwells too much on ideals, to the neglect of their practical realization; the workingmen just the reverse. He referred to the question of responsibility. The ministry had assumed the functions of the teacher; it must adapt itself to its pupils, the people; and if failure resulted, it was because of its non-adaptation and the responsibility therefor fell on its shoulders.

Rev. W. J. Johnson of Superior responded. He thought it a mistake that the minister was not in sympathy with workingmen; the majority of them had come up from the ranks of labor themselves; the trouble was that the workingmen would not come to the church and give the minister an opportunity to reach them. Men judge the church from a distance and will not come close enough for the minister to be heard. In answer to Mr. Cobb's invitation to attend the meeting of the assembly, he invited the workingmen to come to church. Betterment must come from lifting up the people; not from lowering the church to their level.

To this Mr. Findley responded: You have to take men as you find them; workingmen are what they are by reason of their circumstances; if they were perfect they would have no need of the ministers. The thinking members of labor organizations were not of sympathy with the teachings of Christ. It was the church as constituted, and as they touched it, that repelled them.

The general discussion that followed showed much sympathy on the part of the ministers with the views expressed by union representatives and there were many promises to accept Mr. Cobb's invitation on behalf of the union men to visit the assembly.

The meeting closed at 10 o'clock. The time was too short for an exhaustive discussion of the interests involved, but it was evident that a spirit of good will prevails that promises much for a better understanding and a more thorough appreciation of each other in the future.

LLOYD AT ISHPEMING. Unionism in the Michigan Iron Regions Still Active and Vigorous.

ISHPEMING, MICH., JUNE 1, 1897.
On Monday, May 20, we had the most successful gathering that has occurred in connection with our local union. The speaker of the day was Mr. John F. Lloyd, American Railway Union of Chicago, who spoke in Union hall, to an audience that crowded it to its utmost capacity. Mr. Lloyd held his audience spell-bound by his logical and forcible arguments. He told them that they must study economic and social questions in their union halls; "but," said he, "keep politics on the outside, as these are the rocks which have wrecked all of the great reforms of the day. Be individual politicians as American citizens; get into your unions,—they are the school of education for the toiling masses. It is not grammar, rhetoric and vocabulary that make education, but a knowledge of your own condition." He spoke of the causes, effects and the way out of this present industrial quagmire; he touched briefly on the great movement which is being inaugurated for evolutionizing the world from the industrial system to the socialistic system or brotherhood of man,—describing in vivid word-pictures the hard, cruel facts of every-day life. At the conclusion of the address, which extended 1 hour and 40 minutes, the vast audience burst into one prolonged round of applause. In the afternoon, Mr. Lloyd, accompanied by secretary Askew, went to Negau, where he again addressed a packed meeting. Though no notes were given of the same, his fame preceded him. In the evening, Mr. Lloyd spoke again at IshpeMING. The hall was too small for the crowd who wished to hear him. He again spoke with that forcible language that sinks down into the heart and takes root. The address lasted an hour and a half, and was greeted at the end with a terrific burst of applause continuing over five minutes; after which the vast audience came forward and shook hands, and wished him and his co-workers God-speed in their noble undertaking. Secretary Askew presided at all the meetings and gave short introductory addresses, as did also President Mudge. The Lake Superior band furnished music for the day, and thus ended an occasion which we believe will usher in an era of new life for the miner's organization and all organized labor generally. UNION MINER.

Wisconsin State Federation.

The Wisconsin state federation has been in session this week, at Appleton. A new constitution was considered, and resolutions were adopted urging workingmen to buy and wear such clothing as bears the label of the United Garment Workers of America; declaring that all union workmen should regard as "unfair" the beer manufactured by certain companies at La-Crosse, because of union workmen having been locked out of these breweries; recommending the passage of a law regarding the building of scaffolds for workmen on buildings, similar to the Minnesota law; and denouncing the "pluck me" system of paying wages in scrip or store orders.

Bet Your Life.

Mr. George J. Gould threw his hat up in the air.
"The only true use of wealth," he cried, "is to use it for the benefit of others."
Mr. John D. Rockefeller stood on his head.
"And we," he said, "are the others."—Twentieth Century.
