

LOCAL LABOR NOTES.

The typographical union holds its regular session tomorrow.

A session of the clerks' union was held at Electrical Workers hall Wednesday evening to arrange for Labor Day.

Take the West Third street cars for the driving park Monday and help out the trades assembly treasury.

The union men of Duluth right away after labor day will organize a Winchester club for the preservation of corporation property.

The New Duluth sawmill workers have chartered the steamer Barker for Monday and will come by water to take in the parade.

The broom makers will be in the line of march Labor Day. These workers have not been organized yet but will form a union after Labor Day.

John N. Cullen and wife sailed on the Monarch last Tuesday. They will visit Toronto and other eastern cities. They will be absent a month.

The Labor Day committee has been in session several times during the week and the details for Monday's celebration are about completed.

The boycott on the Columbia has been settled. Proprietor has agreed to employ only union labor. The trouble originated in the employment of non-union cooks and waiters.

Butcher's Union No. 12 has issued a card declaring the boycott on Scheisser's butcher shop has been settled. The proprietor has agreed to comply with the rules of the union.

The per capita tax amendment to the constitution of the state federation of labor, we are informed by Secretary McEwen, has passed the different locals throughout the state almost unanimously.

The West Duluth sawmill workers will have a dance at Great Eastern hall labor day evening. Tickets, 75 cents, proceeds to go to the trades assembly. The arrangements are in excellent hands and a most enjoyable time is anticipated.

For the first time in almost two years about all the printers in Duluth this week have been at work. In that time, however, the number of the craft in the city has fallen off thirty per cent. Business in this line, therefore, is still far below what it was in the midst even of the much execrated administration of Cleveland.

A large number of unions Monday will appear in line arrayed in handsome and appropriate uniforms. Among these will be the carpenters dressed in blue overalls, aprons and caps, and the waiters and barbers who will each appear in working jackets, the former wearing red hat bands.

Some of the knowing ones are estimating the strength of the different divisions as they will appear in line next Monday. One member of the committee estimates 1000 people in the first division and over 2000 in the second. The others possess so many unknown quantities that there is no way to approximate them. A new feature is promised us in the presence in the line of the city and county officials. Twenty floats are in sight, five of which will be put in by the A. Booth Packing company. Among the industrial representations will be displays by the barbers, electrical workers and the union label league.

Building Trades Council.

The building trades council met Wednesday evening. All unions except the tanners were represented. The principle items of importance was the discussion over the stone cutters' grievance against Frederickson. It is claimed that he is not employing union labor on some stone cutting that he is doing and the executive board will investigate the matter.

The regular meeting night was changed from the first and third Wednesdays of each month to the second and fourth Wednesdays. The council will also hereafter meet in the larger of the Electrical Workers' hall.

President McEwen, of the trades assembly was present and delivered one of his characteristic addresses.

It was arranged that only the officers should follow the banner and the rest of the delegates in the council should be left to march with their respective unions.

The new banner is completed and will be one of the handsomest in the parade.

A grievance of the plumbers against a certain firm whose identity it is not desired to make public at present, was discussed and a committee instructed to make an investigation.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for September.

There is something to interest nearly every kind of reader in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for September. The diversity and timeliness of its contents and the great profusion of its illustrations make this number a particularly attractive one. The leading article gives much interesting information about the historic Walkkill Valley, in New York state, and tells of the troubles with the Indians, the founding of a Huguenot village, the first meeting of the State Legislature, etc. It is written by John P. Ritter, who personally visited the places described, taking many excellent photographs, which are reproduced with the article.

TRADES ASSEMBLY.

Preparation for Labor Day
Occupy the Attention of Trades Assembly.

Hack and Livery Men Organized—Early Closing—Committees Appointed.

The trades assembly meeting Friday evening transacted a large amount of business.

Under the head of organizations, President McEwen reported the formation of a union of hack and livery men. The new organization has about 20 members and quite a number of drivers are expected to come in later. A meeting of the clerks had been held and it was agreed to take part in the Labor Day parade in conjunction with the West End clerks' union. A committee composed of delegates Stevens, Lawson and Lanners, was also appointed to circulate an agreement among the merchants for a general closing of stores on Labor Day.

President McEwen reported for the Labor Day committee. Much of their work has already been published. Volunteers were asked for, to assist in moving back some of the fences about the driving park so as to bring the grove within the enclosure. Reference was also made to the advertisement by Superior trades assembly in Duluth. The report was accepted.

Later the advertisement by Superior assembly in Duluth came up; a communication from Superior was read, and on motion of Delegate McDowell it was ordered that the secretary notify the Superior assembly that this apology was not accepted.

The committee on economic discussions was instructed to bring in a list of subjects and select leaders.

J. A. Blix was substituted for Delegate Findley on the committee to wait on the uptown drug stores in the interest of union made cigars.

Delegate Baker made the report for the committee to wait on the member of the capitol commission. The matter is still undetermined.

The Gloackly boycott was discussed and it was reported that, having lost a $50 job because a union cook refused to allow him to work in the kitchen with him, Mr. Gloackly is now, it is said, ready to talk business.

The trustees reported in favor of the treasurer giving a surety company bond for $1,000 so ordered.

Notice was given that C. S. Pierce, the Central Duluth hardware merchant, handled a complete line of union made goods, giving as a reason therefor, that they were better goods.

The laundry workers brought in a resolution repudiating an attack by the Scandia on Lute's Laundry. The Scandia article was denounced as untrue and calculated to bring discredit upon a reputable institution that was employing union labor and treating its employes in a fair and considerate manner. The resolution was adopted unanimously.

A committee composed of Delegates Rufanque, Lawson and Johnson, was appointed to see the grocery clerks in regard to organizations.

A resolution was adopted requesting union men to refrain from transacting any business on Labor Day that would have a tendency to prevent employes in any line of business making the day a holiday.

The carpenters' delegates protested against the admission fee charged at the Driving Park Labor Day. President

McEwen responded on behalf of the committee. No further action was taken.

Delegate Blixt brought up the question of eligibility of the mail carriers as a labor union to participate in the News-Tribune Klondike ballot contest. The position taken was that an organization could not claim to be a labor organization unless it recognized, by affiliation with other unions, the existence and unity of the labor movement. The assembly didn't seem disposed to mix in the affair and the matter was tabled.

AMUSEMENTS.

Coming to the Lyceum tonight and tomorrow with matinee tomorrow are Frank Lane and an excellent company in Hoyt's "A Trip to Chinatown." The engagement has special interest attached to it from the fact that this most successful of Hoyt's comedies will be presented by one of the best companies ever seen in the play. This merry farce was seen for 656 consecutive performances at Hoyt's theater in New York. Not only is this the longest run ever known in the history of farce-comedy, but no play, no matter what its character, has ever been given so many successful performances in the metropolis. Last season "Chinatown" made a conquest of Australia. The musical numbers, with which the play is liberally interspersed, have become quite famous throughout the land, and Mr. Lane has added very materially to the rare stock.

During their long season in Minneapolis, just closed, the Marie Bell Opera company were seen in a repertoire of ten operas, all of which gave the greatest amount of satisfaction, but as a popular favorite, Auber's delightful work "Fra Diavola" must be considered a record breaker, because in response to general desire it had to be revived and was played for the eighth week of the engagement to even better financial results than attended its first production during the second week of the engagement. The popularity of this opera is accounted for from the fact that it appeals with equal strength to all classes of theater goers, being grandly sweet in its music with a strong story and a running vein of rich comedy usually only found in the work of Gilbert and Sullivan. Another reason is that each member is so closely fitted to the character he assumes that the work is always easy, natural, graceful and pleasing. Miss Bell as "Zerlina" and Misses Rossitie and Kendall in the other female roles bring out all the beauties of the rich melodies with which the composer has entrusted them, while Mr. Seaman as "Fra Diavola," Mr. Donaldson as "Lorenzo," Mr. Hageman as "Beppo" and Mr. Salinger as "Giacomo," are on a par with the ladies in the excellence of their work both musically and dramatically.

The choruses are all beautiful and in this opera there is more opportunity to display the excellent character and musical voices of the twenty odd people engaged in rendering them.

The above company will appear at the Lyceum Theater Sept. 6th for one week engagement at popular prices.

A Night With the Spirits.
J. Randall Brown, whose fame is world wide as the greatest living exponent of occult science and spiritualistic phenomena, is to appear in one of his unique and startling seances at the Lyceum on Sunday evening next. It will be remembered that Mr. Brown
