A FINER FACT—That Sands' Pale Cream Ale is the best manufactured in the United States. Ale is the most delicate malt liquor manufactured, and when treated from a good stock is not the rank, bitter, black, nauseating stuff usually called Ale, but a pleasant, palatable, slightly intoxicating beverage. Analyzed and approved by chemists and physicians as healthy and nourishing to most people and many invalids. Sold in Sands' Pale Cream Ale, which is acknowledged by the physicians and citizens of Memphis to be an invaluable institution, and beyond rivalry or competition from any other beverage. FLEMING & LOCKHART are the popular agents, St. Charles, Adams street. Call and test the fact.

INQUEST.—An inquest was held yesterday over the body of a little boy found floating in the river. It was supposed that he was one of those who were led from the steamboat Lacy.

RENT FREE.—Housekeepers are invited to call and examine the new buildings now completed, on Monroe street, near Fourth. There is rarely an opportunity offered to obtain a dwelling free of rent.

ROBBERY.—George Jones, a deck hand, was taking a stroll on the levee near Howard's Row, on Friday, when some thief contrived to pick his pocket of twenty dollars without awakening him.

TUCKER DEAD.—Tucker, the officer who was stabbed in the head by Barker, near the race track a few evenings, died yesterday. His murder has not been avenged.

PERSONAL.—Thompson Dean, Esq., of Cincinnati, is in this city trading commercial men of that city, and intimately connected with the commercial prosperity of Memphis, passed through this city yesterday en route for his stock farm in Texas.

BURGLARY.—Some one of the numerous burglars that at present enjoy unfettered quarters in this city, entered Osgwell's boarding house on Union street early yesterday morning—his movements were fortunately heard and he was quickly routed.

FINED FOR EMBRACING.—John Gallister for embracing a female of ill fame publicly one yesterday fined twenty dollars by the recorder. The new ordinance is very strict respecting the conduct of prostitutes in the streets and of those associating with them.

RURAL RETREAT.—Our young friend, J. C. Jacobi, will open his beautiful rural retreat on the Horn Lake road, two miles from the city, on Wednesday next. It is unnecessary for us to assure those who are acquainted with Mr. J.'s taste that he will have every thing desirable in the way of refreshments for the accommodation of ladies and gentlemen.

T. J. PINNIE.—We call attention to the fact that the name of T. J. Pinnie, Esq., appears in our column of announcements. The ex-alderman of the Fourth ward has made his mark by directness of purpose and energy of action on several occasions, and to him is owing most of the improvements that grace Court Square.

FIRE.—The fire yesterday afternoon occurred in the stable of Dr. Ness, situated on Rhodes street, from whence it spread to an adjoining blacksmith shop, owned by the same gentleman, and which had only lately been opened. The harness and horses were got out of the stable. The structure and a quantity of hay within it were consumed. The blacksmith shop was left a charred and blackened skeleton. The fire engine was on the ground quick as lightning, in a manner that did good service, and excited general admiration. Shortly before the fire, Dr. Ness was in the stable, and saw a negro boy of his, of ten or twelve years of age, sitting on a bale of hay. The boy had been reprimanded during the morning for some offence, and he didn't entertain any doubts of being the author of the conflagration. He was arrested and put in prison.

THE MYSTERIOUS DOCUMENT.—This document, which frightened the city fathers "out of their propriety" has appeared in our columns. From it the reader has gathered that Memphis is haunted with thieves and knaves with accomplices, the former entering houses during the night and sounding property the latter corrupting our youths, detecting the cowery, and beguiling from fathers of families the means on which the comfort of home, the happiness of the wife, and the maintenance of the children depend. The grand jury, greatly to their honor, have called the attention of the city council, and through them of the citizens at large, to the abominable state of things that exists unchecked by any attempt even to apply the law to the amerciment of these transgressors. We are informed from a source likely to be cognizant of the subject, that the attention called by the grand jury document to the soldiers of the late tables has excited the greatest trepidation among their companions, some of whom state they will forthwith stop their nefarious occupations in this city—this is the effect of straight-ward, manly, open-dealing, and the grand jury, as we have said, have gained themselves honor by their exposition of evils to which the citizens of Memphis are subjected.

Regarding it as a matter of course that the city council would heartily concur with them in an effort so beneficial to the morals of the city, and so purifying in its operation, so striking the public eye upon wrong doing and its author, in the grand jury with their document in connect that the council would publicly thank that body. Council had an opportunity of sharing the credit accruing to the grand jury, but, instead of doing so, by a levity that seems peculiar to city fathers, that body made a final pass. In it, while the fact that thieves and gamblers were without—make prey of all they could get within their grasp, to warn the citizens of existing iniquitous and put them on their guard, appeared to council a proceeding impolitic and injurious. The evil existed that issued such document; but to publicly declare the fact they shrink from. It was remarkable—it would have been remarkable if equally gross inconsistencies had not been manifested before—to see persons who had been instrumental in doubling the night police because of the increase of crime in the city, hesitating to say that there exists a large mass of criminals in the city who commit the crimes.

The puerile desire for secrecy in things connected with public affairs, the short-sighted desire to hush up what, from the very nature of the thing, must become public, defeats its own object. In the present case, the fear manifested by council of the possible effects of publishing the grand jury document, and the disposition of it to be consigned to the tomb ordinarily used by public bodies as a place of burial—a committee—drew an attention to it that it would never otherwise have excited. The objection urged to publishing the document was, that it would create apprehensions abroad that Memphis is a dangerous place to come to, and that our business would suffer in consequence. It may be set down as a certain fact, that an attention another committee of the city, or a heavy robbery effected, would do more to injure our business and capacity powers of the city than or do not publicly recognize the fact.

If such robberies and murders are of frequent occurrence they will become matters of notoriety, and the more so if the public should show a desire to "hush up" the crimes that occur, they treating to criminals, as far as those officials are concerned, the very thing they mostly all desire—secrecy. When crime comes frequently in any country or city, and the fact is hushed up, or treated as a secret, and not cautioned upon the unheard, every one feels that public sentiment is right; but if there is a desire to cover up the truth, and to hide from the world the fearful concurrence that are taking place, there will be a suspicion that the outrages are far more and serious deep. A fearless exposure is the true policy in such a state of things. We are satisfied that now our citizens are fairly warned, the gamblers and thieves will find such increased difficulties surrounding them that their depredations will be materially diminished.

Memphis Races—Spring Meeting.

The spring meeting of the Memphis Jockey club closed yesterday with the four mile race for the jockey club purse of $750. The attendance was large, and we were pleased to see in the ladies' stand a large representation from the fairer half of creation. There were four entries, viz: Col. Campbell's Joe Stoner, McGavock's Allendorf, Sevier's John C. Breckinridge, and Dr. Wisdom's Marengo. The Doctor, however, did not deem Marengo in condition, and chose to pay the forfeit rather than start him there were, therefore, but three horses to start. The result of the race was somewhat remarkable, and evinced that the judgment of a so called "knowing one" is by no means infallible on a race course at all times. Notwithstanding the fact that Allendorf was entered in the four mile line, and that Breckinridge had recently done nicely on the Mississippi Course, in the contest with Stoner, Allendorf was the favorite by three to four to one. At the lay of the stand, Allendorf and Stoner jog out of well together, with Breckinridge about three lengths behind. It was evidently the intention of Joe's rider to conserve every inch of ground from the start out to win the heat. He made a break at Allendorf in the first turn, passing him, and when the latter got to his gait again, he darted was plainly visible between them, Breckinridge trailing three or four lengths behind. The positions of the horses were not changed until they reached the last turn in the lower side, when Breckinridge made a desperate plunge, taking the inside track, and coming home side by side, Breckinridge being distanced. Contrary to the expectations of the bystanders, the heat was awarded by judges to Joe Stoner—time 7.50. It was apparent now that Joe's success would prove disastrous to him, and his friends did not hope that he would be started in the second heat. Timely applications of restoratives and jockeys noting improved condition, however, and he answered to the lay promptly, although betting twenty to one had been offered that he would run the first mile. Joe got the start and gallantly kept it to the outcome, winning the race in two straight heats—the time of the second and last heat being 7.51½.

He is a natural pacer and paces very rapidly, but was somewhat stiff when driven. A liberal reward will be given for his delivery to us in Memphis, and any information as to his whereabouts addressed to us or to J. N. Snowden, care of Hicks, Terry & Co., will be thankfully received.

Money affairs are without particular change, with short loan paper offering than the demand, leaves fair facilities for both. Currency was scarce at most of the leading banks to-day, and we quote the legal rates a trifle easier—4@6 for Kentucky paper.
