It is Seldom

THAT we notice anything in the medical line, nor would we now, unless we were fully convinced that we do our duty in so doing, but in recommending to the public Dr. J. Hostetter's Celebrated Bitters, for the cure of that most terrible and fatal of all diseases—Fever and Ague. From our own experience with this valuable medicine, we dare safely say that for diseases of the entire stomach, it stands without a rival. Its timely assistance has saved many a fellow being from a premature grave. We have seen it recommended by the worst class of Fever and Ague. To those who are in the least afflicted with any of the complaints arising from an derangement of the digestive organs, nothing can be more beneficial than a bottle of this cordial. We cheerfully recommend them to the thousands in this place who are suffering the most intense pain, as a certain cure for their ills. For them, and be convinced of their merit, excellent qualities.

Sold by druggists, and dealers generally everywhere.

Men Ourselves, Subject to Disease, we feel for all Mankind.

THE science of medicine is the most important of all sciences, and of course, improvement and improvement must ever keep pace with the discoveries that are made in the Medical world. Results in art effected at the time of Galen, are not to be compared with the present epoch. The component parts of that inestimable medicine, the Richland Bitters, or Dr. Sullenger, there is now are in the history of medical discovery, which is entirely by unparalleled, and has done and is daily, relieved more suffering, and saved more patients than all other medicines ever offered to the public. John Quincy Adams.

It is to that famous poem, the Siege of Corinth, where Byron pleasantly says of Adams:

"There was an old man whose hairs were white,
But his veteran arm was full of might."

The Italian Liver Regulator, pills old man have been effectual in application to that disease of age and of the earlier days of the republic—John Quincy Adams. But the benefit of Byron's poem lived in those two there would have been no security of his remaining the last time, "his hairs were white," but the vigor of the old man of the present day, he would undoubtedly have used Hostetter's Italian Restorative, which would have restored his hair to all the primitive beauty of the days of Byron.

Price fifty cents a bottle. Sold everywhere.
