ASSAULT AND BATTERY.—Henry Postell was before Squire Horne on yesterday morning for an alleged assault and battery on the person of Miss Camille White, but owing to the absence of witnesses the case was deferred.

SUICIDE BY DROWNING.—A young man, whose name was unknown, apparently a gentleman of attainment and respectability, committed suicide day before yesterday by drowning himself in the river near the lower wharfboat.

Memphis and Charleston	1,180
Mississippi and Tennessee	100

A "BLACK MAIL" ROBBER.—Monroe, a colored boy belonging to Mr. Peel, who has been in the habit of carrying the mails for the Bulletin and Avalanche to and from their offices, was yesterday arrested for purloining valuable letters, and lodged in jail to await examination. The proof against him is supposed to be conclusive.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AND MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE.—The regular annual meeting of the Memphis chamber of commerce will be held at the hall, on the north side of Court street, to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock, after which polls will be opened and an election held for president and five vice-presidents, to serve for the ensuing term.

OPENING OF THE THEATER SEASON—GREAT ATTRACTION.—It will be noticed from an advertisement in another column, that the New Memphis theater opens for the first time this season, on to-morrow night. Miss Annette Ince, one of the first-class theatrical stars now on the boards, will appear in the character of "Margaret Elmore" in Love's Sacrifice. Let all theater goers be in attendance.

ATTEMPT TO RESCUE A CHAIN-GANG BIRD.—Cornelius Brophy, William Duffey, and A. B. Russell, attempted to rescue one Connell from the custody of Captain Penn on Friday, but were caught in the act by which they attempted to give Connell an opportunity to make his escape, and yesterday morning Recorder Dickinson entered on his docket a fine of fifty dollars each for Messrs. Brophy, Duffey and Russell, in default of the payment of which they will be placed on the "effective force."

THE POWER OF GOLD.—The potency of the shining metal has been sung by bards and acknowledged by philosophers. Lycurgus, in the iron age of Greece, by a code of laws the wisdom of which we shall not discuss, banished it from Sparta, but gold was stronger than law, and the gold of Phillip was able, in the language of Mr. Yancey, to "influence, parties, legislatures and statesmen." Shakspeare has sung,

"Plate sin in gold
And the hatred lame of justice hurtless breaks;
Gold is an open, a secret war, war pierce it."

These remarks are induced by the reception of a letter at our counting room yesterday, inclosing a $2.50 gold piece, for the Weekly Appeal, over which was pasted a slip of paper bearing the lines

"I bend all slighter claims, one fear
The shadow of regret."

Truly, gold is not only powerful but remorseless, and, like all other instruments of good, may be perverted into the most potent instrument of evil. Our friends can rely, however, on our placing their favors to good use, and an earnest labor on our part to return them an equivalent.

JAIL DELIVERY—SEVEN HUNDRED DOLLARS REWARD.—About 5 o'clock yesterday morning, while the turnkey of the jail was making his usual rounds, he observed a cell, which had contained seven prisoners, empty. On further examination it was found that the prisoners had escaped through a hole which they had managed to open in the outside wall. Jailor Jackson informs us that there has been a small aperture in the cell for some time past, and that by enlarging it with some unknown implements the prisoners effected their escape. The only thing found in the cell which could have been used for the purpose of dislodging bricks and mortar, were two or three old iron bucket hoops, and these showed no evidence of recent use. The turnkey states that everything was quiet and as usual up to the hour when he made his last round last night. Jailor Jackson offers a reward of seven hundred dollars for the recovery of all the prisoners, or one hundred dollars for any one of them. The prisoners are thus described by the jail officers: James McCarty, charged with larceny, twenty-two years of age, five feet seven inches in height, light hair and complexion. James Garrett, charged with murder, twenty-one years of age, five feet seven inches in height, dark hair and complexion. Isaac Willard, charged with burglary, about twenty years of age, five feet ten inches in height, and of a swarthy complexion. Mike O'Brien, charged with larceny, twenty-seven years of age, five feet eleven or eight inches in height, of a light complexion. Cha's Williams, charged with larceny, twenty-five years of age, five feet ten inches in height, dark and swarthy complexion. James Donelson, charged with larceny, a lad of eighteen, five feet four inches in height, light hair and complexion. Wm. Estes, the man who was arrested here some time since by detective Smith, and for whom a requisition from the governor of Arkansas arrived yesterday, was one of the seven, but was arrested last evening, about sundown, two miles from the city on the Pigeon Roost road, by a man named Rice, who recognized, captured and returned him to the city jailer.

ASSAULT OF A MEMBER OF THE PRESS.—Early yesterday morning, between the hours of one and two o'clock, says the Argus, Mr. F. M. Galler, the well-known local editor of the Avalanche, after getting through the duties which devolve upon the "Horse" of a morning paper, entered a coffee saloon on Adams street, between Main and Second, for the purpose of taking some refreshment before retiring for the night. While thus engaged, Tom Stokes, accompanied by four of his associates, entered the saloon, and seeing Mr. Galler at the counter, one of them remarked, "Here's Galler, the Avalanche man. Are you the man that put Tom Stokes in the paper?" to which Mr. Galler replied, "I am." Stokes then commenced pulling off his coat, saying as he did so, "I can whip the G—d d—d son of a b—h that did it." Mr. Galler made some reply to the effect that stokes would not dare to talk so to him if he were not backed by his cowardly crew. Pistols and slung shots at once flashed forth, from the assaulting party. Mr. Galler being entirely unarmed, with the exception of a small pocket knife. One of the party began flourishing a slung shot about Mr. Galler's head, s ho, to avoid being struck, at once commenced backing toward an open door, but just as he reached it, the ruffian struck him a tremendous blow with the "billy" on the right side of his face, just below the eye, breaking the bridge of the nose and cutting his face very severely. Galler was felled to the floor like an ox, and the scoundrels commenced kicking him while he was down. He however managed to regain his feet, and opening his knife, succeeded in inflicting some pretty severe cuts upon the person of Stokes. Being advised to run by one of the employes of the saloon, Galler took advantage of the open door and a favorable opportunity and succeeded in making his escape; not without danger to his life, however, for, as he disappeared in the darkness, the would-be murderers fired their pistols after him, the balls of which whistled past the ears of their intended victim. By this time officers Willet and Simons were upon the ground, and at once arrested Stokes, but the scene of the outrage being out of their ward, they handed him over to officers Hazleton and Holly, the policemen of the ward. And now we come to a mystery. Either these officers were afraid of Stokes, or they did not wish to lock him up—which of the two we cannot say, but certain it is Stokes was allowed to depart unmolested, without even putting up a forfeit for his appearance before the proper authorities. We hope these officers may be able to explain the whole matter satisfactorily, but as it now stands, we confess that appearances are strongly against them.

GRACE CHURCH.—We are pleased to learn that the parish of Grace church have purchased a lot on Hernando street, near Jones' avenue, where they propose erecting a fine church edifice, the corner stone of which will be laid on Tuesday next at 5 o'clock, P. M., by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Otey, assisted by the Episcopal clergy of the city. The ceremony will be interesting, and the public are invited to be present. While our city is so fast improving in fine business structures, giving evidence of our prosperity in a commercial way, it is most gratifying to know that there is that spirit abroad that is willing to take from its substance for the promotion of the interests of morality and religion.
