J. KNOX WALKER, Chairman.

THE STATE ELECTIONS.

The election returns so far from all the States continue to be meager and uncertain. There is one consolation, however, even should the sad tidings of Republican victory be confirmed, which ought to add cheer to the hearts of national Democrats. Enough is known from Ohio to justify us in claiming the re-election of GEORGE H. PENDLETON, of Cincinnati, to Congress from the First district, CHARLES H. VALLANDIGHAM, of Dayton, from the Third, and SAMUEL S. COX from the Twelfth, all of whom are true and tried conservative Democrats. Further returns will doubtless show that we have at least "held our own," if not gained in other districts.

Pennsylvania is claimed by the Republicans to have gone for their gubernatorial candidate by a large majority, though that vote will certainly fall far short of the present estimate. The greatest source of regret is the fact of their having elected a majority of members to the next legislature, which will, if it be true, secure them the successor in the Senate to BIGLER.

Nothing is very definite from Indiana, though it is claimed by the Republicans. We have great hopes, however, of HENDRICKS, the Democratic candidate, yet carrying the State. We warn our friends not to be too credulous of the exaggerated reports of Republican gains—as they have their object in falsifying the returns. The accuracy of the telegraphic returns cannot be relied upon, but we must await the result as ultimately shown by the press.

WHERE RESTS THE RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE RESULT!

An effort is being made by the Avalanche, impotent, pitiful, and preposterous, to fix upon STEPHEN A. DOUGLAS and the national Democracy the body-and-soul responsibility of the prospective defeat of their own party in the recent Ohio, Indiana and Pennsylvania State elections. We recognize the charge at first blush, as the cry of "catch thief," emanating from the political party which has itself been guilty of the infamous act which they would instinctively impute to others. The responsibility shall be placed upon the vassal employes of the present Administration so manifestly, so plainly, so indubitably, as to defy any honest man, having regard for the responsibility of his character, to dare challenge it truth.

How can the Avalanche have the effrontery to assert that the adoption of a doctrine which it has repeatedly denounced as free-soil in tendency, can drive from its support the coherents and advocates of free-soilism? How can it give utterance to the thought, that the very man, whose every interest is identified with the success of his party, is energetically laboring for its defeat? How dare it charge the responsibility of a supposed Republican triumph upon a man who has uttered more maledictions against abolitionism in the last ten days than it has done during the whole of its life? Such palpable and bungling inconsistencies are not without their object. They betray a desire to rescue from obloquy and infamy the names of partisan favorite, whose treachery, already asserted, established, and even avowed, has rendered them and all their confederates a prominent place among the JUDAS ISCARIOTS of history. They are "confirmations strong as proofs in holy writ," of existing prejudices whose seeds have been planted by the hand of political partizanship, cultivated and nourished by excess of party enthusiasm, and now shrieking to survive, despite the other laws of all necessary sentiment from the barren soil in which they are now gradually but most assuredly perishing.

But there are those to whom the finger of public scorn does unerringly point as the responsible parties, who will be held to strict responsibility. They are JAMES BUCHANAN, JESSE D. BRIGHT, GRAHAM N. FITCH and other apostates from the ranks of honor and of party, who have sought, through sheer malignancy and dire revenge, to prevent the official advancement of a man whom they had not manliness to emulate.

It is charged without contradiction from his friends that BUCHANAN and his political Hotels in Pennsylvania have used their money, its influence and cuff-ages to further the success of CURWIN (the Republican candidate for governor) in that time-honored Schatzkopf of Democracy and conservatism, with the express purpose of securing the defeat of FORNEY (the Democratic nominee) whom they supposed to be the friend of STEPHEN A. DOUGLAS.

JESSE D. BRIGHT, a BLACK-COCKER in infamy for the most infamous, publicly advertised himself to the world as a traitor, when, just one week ago, in the city of Cincinnati, he proclaimed his intention to secure the defeat of the gallant HENDRICKS in Indiana, though he knew there was but one opponent in the field against him, and that man a Black-Republican!

JAMES T. BLANDY of New York, showed a growling hate when he recently announced his preference for the author of the "irrepressible conflict" over the true and tried champion of Democracy, which, for depth of treachery, would challenge comparison in baleful venom and perfidy with the spirit that prompted the betrayal of his country by BENEDICT ARNOLD. With party leaders like these, who have cut loose entirely from every rudiment of Democracy and drifted into the sea of abolitionism, can the sectional supporters of MR. BRECKINRIDGE possibly survive longer than the coming November elections? Their whole party North has become abolitionized, and they are themselves left in an impotent, fearful, and hopeless minority in the South. Will they continue to recognize their Republican conjurors as brethren, or will they indignantly and honestly spurn all further sympathy and coalition of interest with them?

MISSISSIPPI STATE FAIR AND PLANTERS' CONVENTION!

The State Fair of Mississippi will open at Holly Springs on next Tuesday, the 16th inst. The exhibition is free to all, and those persons from a distance who are now in attendance on our state fair, would do well to carry their stock and articles to Holly Springs. The premiums offered are very liberal, and the exhibition bids fair to be one of the most creditable ever held in the South.

The planters' convention also assembles at Holly Springs during next week, and will be composed of delegates from all of the Southern States. Its deliberations are looked to with a great deal of interest by the planting community of the whole South. We will endeavor to keep our readers advised of the transaction of the fair and of the convention as they progress.

SPEECH OF SENATOR DOUGLAS IN CHICAGO.

We publish this morning the speech of Senator DOUGLAS, made at the great out-pouring of the Democratic masses in Chicago on the 5th inst. The sentiments which it contains, and the principles which it promulges, are such as he has boldly, fearlessly, and truthfully enunciated from Maine to Louisiana. He is but the man to have one set of principles for the North and another for the South, but avows opinions which every patriotic, Union-loving, and conservative Democrat in the whole country can most cheerfully endorse. Let no one fail to read this production of the great American statesman.

HON. GEO. W. JONES.

This gentleman arrived in our city on yesterday, as one of the present distinguished visitants. His friends will regret much to learn that his health is still quite bad, having improved little during the past few months. No member of the Democratic party in Tennessee is more highly respected for his integrity of purpose, or enjoys to a greater degree the full confidence of its members than does this able, and worthy, and esteemed exponent of its principles. We trust that he may yet long be spared to fight its battles, and lend his potential influence in behalf of its cause.

☞ JAMES T. BLANDY, one of the BRECKINRIDGE leaders in the State of New York, is reported by the Albany Argus as having given utterance to the following infamous, malignant and unprincipled sentiment:

"SO HELP ME HEAVEN, I HAD RATHER VOTE FOR LINCOLN CO-NIGHT THAN FOR STEPHEN A. DOUGLAS!!"

Thus we see the gradual and irrepressible outbreaking of that league of treason to the Democratic party which has been secretly and announced as existing amongst the enslaved minions of a prostituted and demoralized Administration. Will the supporters of MR. BRECKINRIDGE in the South dare countenance such unblushing perfidy?

☞ The Avalanche, some days since, in announcing the alleged, but erroneous defection of Dr. G. B. PETERS, State Senator of Hardeman, from the national to the BRECKINRIDGE Democracy, spoke of him in the following complimentary terms: "No man's heart beats truer to the rights, the honor and the interests of the South or the cause of the Democracy." We wonder what our neighbor thinks of him since he has refused the place assigned him in the ranks of the seceders. It is due that the Avalanche should correct the unintentional misrepresentation it has made of his position before the country.

☞ JESSE D. BRIGHT, of Indiana, who has lately fused his forces with the Republicans in the State of Indiana, against the regular Democratic nominee for governor, will be responsible for his defeat in case that State is given into the hands of abolitionism. He ought to be repudiated by all true southern men, irrespective of party, bestrinded by the just indignation of an honest people, and branded with eternal infamy.

THE NEWS.

The Chilian Government has appointed a commission to visit the straits of Magellan to inquire into the practicability of establishing a line of steamers for towing purposes in the straits.

In Paris, sometime ago, the false philanthropic movement against punishment by death led the legislature to abolish the death penalty. The consequences have of course been disastrous, and the same legislature are now considering a bill to restore the time-honored practice of "blood for blood."

Garibaldi, in a public communication has declared his enmity to Cavour, he says: "I shall never reconcile myself with men who have humiliated the national dignity and sold an Italian province." Of course this refers to the transfer of Savoy to France. Cavour has been the constant and able advocate of Italian unity, the opposition of Garibaldi betokens ill for the cause of freedom in Italy.

The Espero, of Turin, gives the substance of a letter said to have been written to Garibaldi by Kossuth, recommending him to break his connection with VICTOR EMMANUEL and his government, who alone can effect the liberation of Italy. He also invites the Dictator to give up all designs upon Rome, in order not to draw upon himself the hostility of France, the only defender of Italy, and the only hope of oppressed nationalities; and, lastly, not to attempt anything against Hungary, that country not being as yet ripe for revolution.

The correspondent of the N. Y. Times says that at Richmond, Va., the populace behaved very rudely on the visit of the Prince of Wales, as a specimen we copy the following:

After service he went with the Mayor, the Duke of Newcastle and Gen. Bruce, to visit the Capitol. There he was so rude, the rude, ill-bred crowd pushed in, and allowed the party, who were joined by Gov. Letcher, no privacy whatever. While examining the Houdon statue of Washington, the crowd surrounded the royal party, and annoyed them beyond endurance, while they insulted with such remarks as are (Washington) "sacked it into you at the Revolution?" "He gave you English spurts the rule?" "We reckon you do love Washington—oh, certain!" Count Young Dixie, the artist, turned upon them, and, aided by two reporters, managed to stop their insolence for a while. But as the party walked toward the Senate Chamber, the crowd started a run, and actually pushed them inside of the door.

Another aspirant for aeronautic fame has sprung up in the person of Mr. C. C. COX, of Rome, New York, who is making preparations for a balloon voyage to Europe. He has just completed a monster balloon in which to make the trip, and will start at an early day. It is called the United States, and is the largest balloon ever constructed, being nearly three times larger than Lowe's. It will hold 1,731,000 feet of gas, is 200 feet high, 118 in diameter, and has a lifting power of 60,000 pounds.

Discovery of a Negro Plot in Virginia.

WASHINGTON, October 8.—Norfolk papers of Saturday give accounts of a negro plot in Princess Anne and Norfolk counties. Several arrests were made, and the confessions of the arrested parties show that a rising was contemplated on Sunday night, and that the matter was instigated by free persons, some of them free negroes. Patrols had been organized and had shot a white man named Flynn and a free negro named Smith. One of the arrested negroes state that a plan of operations had been in contemplation since last spring, and that a vessel with arms was to have landed on Saturday evening to assist in the liberation of the slaves.

BALTIMORE, October 9.—The accounts received here to-day from Norfolk represent that all is quiet again in Norfolk and Princess Anne counties. The Norfolk Herald says that sufficient testimony has been elicited since Friday to fully justify the strict police surveillance that was instituted. A considerable number of arrests of suspicious characters have been made. Nearly all the negroes on one or two plantations, on hearing of the affair, took to the woods, some from fright than anything else. Perfect quiet now prevails.

JESSE D. BRIGHT AIDING THE BLACK REPUBLICANS—TREACHERY AGAINST PRINCIPLE—BETRAYED! BETRAYED! BETRAYED!—Jesse D. Bright, of Indiana, declared openly on the railroad, on Sunday night, that Hendricks, Democratic candidate for Governor of Indiana, should be defeated. He did more to nominate Breckinridge than anybody, except Wm. L. Yancey, and that is the record southern and northern Democrats perform for it.—Louisville Democrat 9th.

Commercial Relations between Great Britain and the United States.

From the U. S. Economist.]

The financial condition of England, both present and prospective, is not without reason for apprehensions. The bank returns have for some weeks been unfavorable, and continued so up to the latest dates. The gradual tendency is toward a drain of the resources of the bank. The following comparison will show the position of the Bank of England on the 9th of August, as compared with the same period of 1859:

August 8.	1859	1860	Decrease.
Circulation	£21,979,375	£21,901,895	£1,480,940
Public deposits	2,835,115	1,938,292	1,094,824
Other deposits	14,676,932	14,002,280	674,650
Government securities	11,200,892	9,903,273	1,421,280
Reserve of notes & coin	8,747,023	8,218,184	1,628,459
Coin and bullion	17,541,840	16,131,844	1,609,996
			Increase.
Other securities	£11,318,508	£13,581,207	£1,262,779

It will be observed that a year ago the public and other deposits of the bank were larger than now by £1,760,000, whilst the decrease in the reserve of notes and coin is £1,428,000, and in coin and bullion £1,656,000, showing the bank to have been in a more satisfactory condition a year ago than now. Then money was abundant at 2½ per cent. in the face of a prospect of a loss of £9,000,000 in five per cent. stock, and a Russian loan of £12,000,000 in 3 per cent. stock. Now the demand for money is active, and the rates demanded are 25624 per cent. The recent failures in the leather trade, by opening out a new one of illegitimate trading among a large class of commercial men, has tended to greatly increase the caution of bill discounters, and to produce a more stringent and conservative course throughout financial circles generally.

Nothing, however, has yet absolutely occurred calculated to depress seriously financial movements, and the matter might be treated as a mere passing shadow were it not that there are probable occurrences which if realized would materially aggravate the adverse tendency of things.

Years ago we entertained the hopes in connection with the Australian trade will issue in a general panic among that class of houses, similar to that which has occurred among the leather merchants, and the fear is the greater inasmuch as money lenders are strictly scrutinizing Australian credits. The probability is that the Government deposits may be lessened to the extent of £1,500,000, by the Chancellor of the Exchequer withdrawing that amount in order to meet the deficiency in the public revenue. The national defence bill has been passed, and the first instalment of £2,000,000 to be devoted to that measure will be raised on loan during the next few months. Another Indian loan of £8,000,000 is spoken of, though some think that instead of the amount being raised on loan, credit will be taken for that amount; in either case, however, so much specie will be taken out of the country. In addition to these facts, there is an apprehension of foreign loans, France, Sardinia, Russia, Austria and Turkey all require large loans, which will have to be raised to a considerable extent in London, except in the case of the two former countries, who will probably borrow at home.

The political horizon of Europe also is anything but assuring. It is impossible to say what dimensions the Syrian war may take, or to what extent the European powers may have to interfere, or in what complications that question may involve them. The movements of Garibaldi, too, if carried to the extent of his purposes, will probably produce a disquiet throughout the peninsula of Europe sufficient to disturb seriously the course of international trade. The British trade with China will be interrupted by the war; the Australian trade, if brought by its difficulties within more healthy limits, will show a decrease rather than an increase; while the extremely unsettled condition of Turkey is calculated to diminish British exports to that country. Now with this condition of affairs in England, what have we to expect from that country? England had at the beginning of August about 1,200,000 bales of cotton in stock, valued at $38,000,000, against 798,000 bales for the same period of last year, and yet we are expecting her to take her usual proportion of a new crop estimated at 4½ to 4½ million bales. Are we sure that the cotton merchants of Liverpool can get over their present heavy liabilities without serious losses to their American creditors? There is certainly some reason for apprehensions on this point, as it is well known that holders in Liverpool have in many instances lately sold out at a very severe sacrifice. But even taking the more hopeful view, that all our cotton bills will be duly honored, yet what sort of prices can cotton be expected to realize under the influence of such an excessive supply? England at the present time holds about 800,000 bales of cotton more than she needs; and yet we are calculating upon another crop equal to that of this year, which will give a surplus production for the two years amounting to 1,500,000 bales. This of course assumes that there will be no greater demand during the next year than the present, which we think is a fair assumption.

It may be said that both England and the United States are largely increasing their cotton machinery, and that therefore more cotton will be required than heretofore. We admit both the fact and the inference; but we submit that something antecedent to this should exist, viz: a proportionately increased demand for manufactured goods. It is worse than useless to use up as much amount of raw material if there be not an equally enlarged want of goods. And yet where shall we look for the fair one which is anticipate an increased domestic or foreign consumption of British cotton goods during the next twelve months? The fact is, that a year ago the prospects of British trade were decidedly more flattering than they are now. In view then of these facts, we do not see how it can prove otherwise than that cotton will sell at much lower prices than rule at present, unless the crop should fall about a million bales short of the anticipated amount, a circumstance not at all probable. Again, owing to a short harvest of Great Britain, we are expecting to ship thither a large amount of our surplus of breadstuffs, which will tend to enhance the price of money at London, and thereby limit the operations of manufacturers and merchants throughout the country. The useless investment of $30,000,000 in surplus cotton in Liverpool takes so much less of loanable capital of the country for the purchase of breadstuffs. The moral of all these facts seem to be that although we may effect a superior crop in England during the next twelve months, yet we may not hope to realize high prices for our shipments.

POLITICAL NEWS.

NEW YORK, October 9.—At a meeting of the Breckinridge State committee this evening, the presidential elector resigned, in order to unite the Democracy on the union electoral ticket. An address was adopted which renounces the Albany recency, and charges upon them the purpose, by refusing to allow a compromise with the Breckinridge committee, of giving the State to Lincoln. It attacks Douglas and his platform, but recommends the support of the Douglas and Bell tickets, electoral tickets, headed by Mr. Reddell, in order to defeat Lincoln and throw the election into Congress, which it believes will result in the choice of Breckinridge and Lane. A resolution was also adopted urging a thorough organization in each county and assembly districts.

BROWNSVILLE, Nebraska Territory, October 9.—The election for delegate to Congress is progressing quietly. The mayor of the city issued a proclamation closing the drinking saloons, and order prevails. The weather is fine and the vote of the Territory will be large.

SAVANNAH, October 9.—The Breckinridge candidates for Governor and Congress, are elected by about 1,500 majority only.

Charles T. Jones, the Opposition candidate for Mayor, is elected over the Democratic nominee.

MILWAUKEE, October 9.—Deputy United States Marshal Taylor last night arrested S. M. Booth, at Berlin, Wisconsin, who escaped from the custom house in August, where he was confined for a violation of the fugitive slave law. He was brought to this city this morning, where he remains in the custody of the marshal.

FROM WASHINGTON.

(Correspondence Cincinnati Enquirer.)

WASHINGTON, October 9.—The interest felt in the elections of to-day absorbs entirely the attention of politicians, and with the exception of speculations as to the result, nothing else is spoken of.

The fusion in New York of all the elements opposed to Lincoln is now complete, and it needs only a well directed blow from Pennsylvania to destroy entirely the chances of one of the sectional candidates for the presidency.

The result of the local elections in Savannah and Augusta, Georgia, give the conservatives great hopes of carrying that State. In Savannah the Douglas candidate for mayor had over two hundred majority.

Much betting has taken place in regard to the Pennsylvania election, and a great deal of money will change hands upon the result.

The telegraph office and the political headquarters are thronged to-night with anxious crowds.

Judge Douglas is to speak in Iowa and Missouri immediately, and is advertised by Mr. Flournoy, of Arkansas, to speak in Tennessee also. Most likely he will close his stumping tour in the extreme South.

Requisitions by Capt. Benham for money to carry on the work on the Potomac aqueduct, have been granted at the Treasury.

The Post-office Department has issued an order that, after November 1, all letters dropped in the Post-office without prepayment of postage must be sent to the Dead Letter Office.

The navy department have received dispatches from the African squadron and from the commander of the Niagara. It appears that our squadron are doing a profitable and remunerative business in capturing slavers. The vicinity of Congo river is literally alive with vessels engaged in that inhuman traffic.

Application having been made to the Surveyor General of New Mexico to record certain mining claims in that Territory by H. P. Titus, agent of the New York and Arizona exploring expedition, the Commissioner of the land-office has written a letter to the Surveyor General, approving his conduct in refusing to record such papers. From this letter it appears that congress has never recognized the old mining laws of Spain and Mexico as force in the Territory at the time of the acquisition by the United States, nor passed any new laws further than indicating the policy of the non-extension of the subdivisional lines of the public surveys over the mineral region, so as to avoid laying the mines open for sale or location.

CLEVELAND.

The Prince of Wales

PHILADELPHIA, October 9.—The Prince of Wales arrived here at twenty minutes past 4 o'clock this afternoon. He was received by the mayor on the platform of the cars without any formal ceremonies. No speeches were made whatever. The prince was conducted to his carriage, and driven to the Continental hotel.

As the prince passed Wilmington, Delaware, and other stations on the road, crowds were congregated, but the train passed on and did not stop. The locomotive, "George Washington," was decorated with English and American flags. The stores on Chesnut street are illuminated to-night, with the motto, "Welcome to Victoria's son," in gas light. The streets are crowded with people, in search of election returns and the prince.
