Daily Appeal.

The Supply of Cotton—England Becoming Alarmed at the American Crisis.

(From the New York Herald.)

Our readers are aware that for some time past the attention of English manufacturers, of the English government and of the English press has been turned to the encouragement of the growth of cotton in some of the British dependencies, and even on the shores of Africa. The experiments hitherto made, both by France and England, in this regard, have, however, proved to be lamentable failures. Never before, in view of the menacing posture of our public affairs at this time, the subject is continually pressed upon the British government and people. We find in the London Times of a recent date a leading article discussing the question of the reliability of an American supply of cotton, and urging the necessity of further and jeopardy efforts to become independent of the Southern States in regard to that great staple. Although our London cotemporary manifests the usual amount of ignorance of American affairs which characterizes the press generally, still there are points in this article which are worthy of attention.

The first position assumed by the London Times is that the limit of supply has been reached, and yet that the demand, which is constantly on the increase, is greater than the supply. If this be so, it is argument and not an argument is, of course, conclusive—the warning to look elsewhere is abundantly clear. And the alternative is, at the end, stated to be "simply a resort to our own territory for what we want."

We are not aware what authority exists for the proposition that the supply of cotton from our Southern States cannot be increased beyond the present average production of five millions of bales. We know that there are in the Southern States immense tracts of territory fitted for the growth of cotton, which are still in their virgin condition; and it requires but the ordinary development of society, the natural increase of labor, and the stimulus of an augmented demand, to cause these unclaimed lands to be brought into cultivation, and made to yield their quota to the cotton supply of the world. We do not say, under such circumstances, the South cannot hereafter produce ten millions bales of cotton annually, and so on in proportion to the demand. Our English brethren need not, therefore, give themselves any unnecessary trouble or alarm on that score.

The News mixes up political with commercial considerations, and slops aside from its path to notice experiments made in South Carolina in the manufacture of cotton goods, intimating that the result of these experiments promises to save the community "from its desperate and otherwise hopeless poverty," and to raise up a middle class between the planters and the slaves. It evidently makes the Helper book the basis of its arguments, and attempts to show the wasteful and pernicious tendency of plantation labor, assuming that there is, in fact, "no habit of industry in the southern community," or even, properly speaking, any southern community at all. Reasoning on such data, it argues that "a country so circumstanced cannot continue to be an exporting country in the face of any vigorous competition, or even if left to its own devices," and that England should court the contest and commit the fortunes of the cotton manufacture to "an economical system so manifestly doomed."

But our London cotemporary has made a discovery which certainly entitles it to a leather medal. There are two ways, it thinks, in which the cotton supply of the United States might be brought to the required standard. One is to restore the white labor for black; the other to emancipate all the slaves. The wildest fanatic in the ranks of the Black-Republican party would hardly be guilty of enunciating such an utterly absurd idea. Every one knows that the cultivation cannot be carried on by white men, and certainly the experience of the West India Islands furnishes evidence enough to show that negroes will not work in tropical climates except under compulsion.

The idea of giving the Southern republic furnishes additional arguments to the London News why the United States should no longer be exclusively relied upon for the supply of cotton. Mark the result, it says, if the slavery Administration is chosen, there is a prevalent expectation of negro insurrection." That will be news indeed to our readers. "The same calamity is likely to be caused by such measures as a nomination of the President by Congress might entail." This is but a weak rehash of the ideas of the Black-Republican press of this country. The News, however, seems to be fully aware of the effect of a Republican triumph. "If a Republican President is elected," it argues, "the repeal of the policy of the last thirty years, and the wrath and threats of the southern oligarchy, must interfere with the regular prosecution of industry."

"Aye! there's the rub." A Republican Administration is to "repeal the policy of the last thirty years," and break up the industry of the country. If such a reflection is of momentous consequence to the people of England, of how immeasurably greater significance is it to the people of the United States. But the die is already cast, and the question now is, between peace and prosperity on the one hand, and anarchy and ruin on the other. The action of the Southern States in this conjecture is pregnant with great results, not only to themselves and the Union, but to the world.

The War in China.

There is almost as much active life in the announcement that France and England have achieved a victory over John Chinaman, as is the statement of the London newspapers that the concentration of 20,000 volunteers in Hyde Park was destined to place Britannia in the rank of first class military powers. Four hundred red coats and red trousers licked the dust before the Taku forts surrendered.

The preparations for this China war alone cost the people of Great Britain over $30,000,000, and and probable cost as much more before decisive results are attained, not to speak of the human lives that must be sacrificed. France can also boast her share of glory for the "Peiho." The two leading nations in the world do not look to advantage fighting one poor Southern Asiatic prince; and the relent drumming which follows the victory in question—received from the Celestials and long since, proves that it is easier to declare an enemy than to beat him. The funny mode of conveying the news that "the Chinese Empire is shaken to its foundation" by the capture of two forts, which existed much merriment in the British playhouses, might be made the plot of a farce, designed to illustrate the true meaning of Bombastes Furioso. If they have not exactly been put into a box it is evident to hoaxer pulsaquin locomotive was to good for them. But the Tuin is occupied, and the allies have succeeded in forcing a passage to Peiho. There is not much in these facts, nevertheless they furnish a theme for jubilant editorials to the English journals.—N. Y. News.

THE GLOBE,

THE OFFICIAL PAPER OF CONGRESS.

PUBLISHED now my annual prospectus of "The Daily Globe" for the ensuing session of Congress, and the Annual Edition, "to remind subscribers, and inform those who may desire to become the Globe, that Congress will assist on the first Monday in December, which will be followed by the short-hand reports. They have been published for the last twenty-four years, and have become the chronicle. I deem it needless to give a circular account of the kind of matter they will contain.

"The Daily Globe" will contain a report of the debates in both branches of Congress as taken down by reporters, and, of course, will be the work of shorthand writers in this, or any other country. A majority of them will, such, be able to report, verbatim, ten thousand words an hour, which is the average speed of words spoken by fluent speakers; and a minority, seven thousand words an hour; which is the average speed of words spoken by slow speakers. Hence, the laws passed, and the debates made more than forty-five hours, they will appear in "The Daily Globe" of the next morning, which will contain, also, the news of the preceding day. The newer is desirous of concentrating his views on another place, which is his reason for selling. We are submitted to sell this place at a great bargain, and on very easy terms. A man with twenty hands can make the place pay for itself without interfering with his other property.

We have also another party who desires to trade improved city property, paying about twenty per cent. in rents, for land and tenants, or business property.

A CURE FOR THE MILLION!

THE CELEBRATED

HIGHLAND BITTERS!

Or, SCOTCH TONIC,

Has no equal as a Stomach Medicine in the World!

ITS history can be told in a very few words, but the wonderful cures effected by this remedial agent would require a volume of size. In Western Germany, it was in progress, thousands of French, and more especially British soldiers, it is said, to be the cause of chronic and intermittent commissariats. The correspondents of the newspapers detailed with graphic power the miserable and destitute state of the troops; the people and the public became aroused to a sense of their duty, when thousands of their compatriots were sacrificing the long sleep of death, and their bones were bleaching on an inhospitable shore. Commissioners were appointed by the English government, and Sir George Ballingall, Professor of Military Surgery in the University of Edinburgh, Scotland, was appointed by special request of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, to institute inquiries, and if possible suggest a remedy. The Highlands of Scotland, being principally confined to the Highland brigade, under the command of Sir Colin Campbell, Dr. Ballingall knew that the natives of the Scotch Highlands had been, from time immemorial, in the habit of using certain herbs and roots, steeped in whisky, ale and porter, which had the extraordinary effect of prevention, as well as cure, in the case of fevers of a certain kind, which, to mankind are more or less liable to under certain conditions of the system of locality. The medicinal properties of the Highlands, and the peculiar composition in wind up of the diseases consequent on a change of climate, and the miasmatic influences arising from an impoverished section of country, which invariably leads to fevers of different kinds, in a trade of four years, and the wonderful cures effected by the great functions of the human system—the bowel, the stomach, the liver, and the bowels, the Highland Bitters, which was first tried in the Crimea, and its astonishing success alone, have placed it upon an unassailable foundation. To its wonderful cures and intensing health, it has no parallel in the wonderful innovations of this advanced age. For the following cases which have been tried by individuals of the second Chrisiemian, and found to be the sure and certain specific in Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Costiveness, Acidity, Jaundice, Costiveness, Loss of Appetite, Headache, General Debility, Chills, Ague, Bilious, Intermittent, Remittent, Typhoid and every other type of Fever.

In all sections of the country this noble boon to sufferers is now extensively used to the most eminent physicians in their practice with unbounded success, and has restored to health thousands who were apparently beyond the reach of medicine. It has been prov d beyond a doubt, from authentic documents, that numbered Dyspepsia, of the most distressing kind, in nine hundred cases by Highland Bitters, in a period varying from one to six weeks; and that its return is effectually prevented, as the digestive powers preserved in the fullest vigor by a subsequent occasional use of this remarkable preparation, which, in cases of constipation after eating, spasms in the stomach, or discharges, morning nausea, fluttering of the heart, tender sleep, nervousness, low spirits, dizziness on rising, pain, loss of strength, and general despondency. In billious complaints, fever and ague, the Highland Bitters is unrivalled. Hundreds have expressions of gratitude from immeasurable correspondents in all parts of the United States.

It is a gratification to the proprietors to know that the Bitters have been of incalculable service to the aged and infirm. Being the most agreeable and palatable medicine ever dispensed, possessing peculiarly cheering and invigorating properties, without any of the drawbacks of ordinary impure stimulants, which has been instilled by the hand of Grace, and Nature, to convey a certain and pleasant effect. Its superiority in this and other particulars is now known. This tonic is deservedly popular with persons in the decline of life. It re-vivifies, raises the exhausted powers of nature, when all other nutritives have utterly failed. Being entirely composed of vegetable herbs and roots, gathered and preserved in Scotland, imparted by curatives, and scientifically prepared under my own supervision, it possesses not a particle of anything injurious to the most delicate female, and may be given to small doses to the youngest child. All are benefited by its invigorating influence on the frame and constitution, wherever there is a wasted vital force, it communicates energy where nature has exhausted its supply. It only behooves the public to try its medical effects, and apply our motto—"Drink and Live."

Beware of Counterfeits,

Which unprincipled knavery have endeavored to imitate, but without success. Each bottle has the name, Highland Bitters, or Scotch Tonic, blown in the glass, and bears the signature on the cap of

John W. S. West, et al., }
vs. } Bill to sell land for partition.
Mary L. West, et al. }

IT appearing to our satisfaction that the defendants, James S. West and Joseph G. West are non-residents of the State of Tennessee, it is therefore ordered by the Court that publication be made for four weeks consecutively, in the Memphis Weekly Appeal, a newspaper printed and published in the city of Memphis, Tennessee, requiring said defendants to make their appearance before said county court, at the court house, in the town of Covington, on the first Monday in December next, then and there to defend, plead to, or answer said bill.

Given under my hand, at office, in Covington, the 20th October, A. D. 1860.

JOHN T. DOUGLAS, Clerk,
Tipton County Court.
