TRUST SALE.

BY virtue of a power of sale vested in me by deed of trust on the 21st April, 1859, to A. H. Meriwether, my Registered Office of the Shelby County, in Book No. 37, pages 564, 565, 566 and 567, reference to which is hereby made, and on account of a default in the payment of the notes secured in said deed, I will on the first Saturday in January, 1861, in front of the Court House in Shelby county, sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash, the following property, to wit:

Lot Appearance.—That Barney Williams and his talentented lady are in that peculiar line of stage business for in advance of any performers that have hitherto appeared in Memphis, is, we believe, well agreed upon among those who attend our theaters. We have occasionally seen Mr. Williams off the stage, and have been charmed with his fun, humor and his gentlemanly bearing. This benefit is quite an occasion, a selection of pieces of no common merit has been made. To enhance the occasion, and to make attendance yet more imperative, we add that this is the last evening on which the Williams will appear. They leave the city to-morrow morning.

The Controller.—One of the very best things the present council has done, was to create the office of city controller. With pleasure we can say, what we have never been able to say before, that whoever steps into Mr. Lofland's room at the exchange building, can see a resume of the state of the city's finances, the receipts and expenditures, that is intelligible to every one. The city's accounts are classified, kept up to date, and open to all inquirers. This is a reform indeed, and one for which gratitude is due to the present board, and especially to its president.

Horrible.—The Argus states that an old lady residing in the family of Mr. John King, in the vicinity of Jackson street, a few days since procured some medicine for rheumatism, and placed it on a table in her room. Last Tuesday evening a little daughter of Mr. King, aged about three years, entered the room in the absence of the old lady, and seeing the vial of medicine on the table in reach, seized and drank the greater portion of its contents. The contents were poison, and yesterday the child was dead.

Interesting to Merchants.—J. V. Gilbert & Co.'s magnificent trade sale of boots and shoes, comes off this morning, at 10 o'clock, precisely, at their sales room, 182 Main street, at which time and place they will sell the largest and best assortment of boots and shoes ever offered in Memphis. Dealers will find it to their interest to be on hand early, as the stock is bound to be sold; and as the terms of sale are cash, the goods, necessarily, will sell at a low figure.

Splendid Holiday Articles.—We looked in last evening at the store of Ed. Kirk & Co., on Main street, and examined the stock of books he has laid in for the holidays. It is a magnificent one. In style of getting up, paper, print, engraving, and binding they were all that the very genius of luxury, and the presiding spirit of beauty could desire. No one in search of splendid and magnificent holiday gifts should fail to call at Kirk's store, and examine the rich and beautiful articles displayed on his counter.

Bivouacing.—Vincent Bacigalupo, who keeps a restaurant and house of general refreshment at the corner of Washington street and Front row, has received a supply of oysters that are not to be surpassed. The public can have them in shell, fried or stewed. Celery, lettuce and other luxurious accompaniments are on hand. Try an oyster supper, a glass of punch, and a concluding cigar in Vincent's elegant up-stairs rooms, and you will know something of the ultima cum dignitate which is so much talked about, but so little experienced.

The Bar[illegible] the End?—A contemporary advocates the plan to require that the whole of the present year's taxes—not a cent of which have been collected—shall be paid by not later than March next. By this, it says, "all our municipal difficulties will be overcome." In the present state of business and money difficulties, it strikes us that when council enters upon the course proposed, instead of all municipal difficulties being cleared, they will be augmented by the formidable kind—will only just have begun.

The Public Cisterns.—At its last meeting, council directed that the public cisterns should all be immediately filled. This is poor legislation; what is wanted from council is a provision by which the cisterns can be always regularly filled, when required—a system is wanted, not isolated results one that may come too late.

MEETING OF "COB PIPES"

A Goodly number of our citizens met at the office of Judge Hill, on Madison street, last night, and organized by calling N. C. David to the chair, and appointing Dr. J. W. Leftwich, secretary.

On motion, a committee was appointed to prepare a report upon the objects of the association, and suggest permanent officers.

After consultation, they reported as follows:

The undersigned agree to form themselves into a patriotic association to be denominated the "Cob-Pipe Association." The object is to associate together in a bond of brotherhood, all conservative men who, while firmly maintaining southern rights, are yet desirous, if possible, to preserve the present Constitution and Union.

The affects of the association shall be a grand patriarch, five counsellors, called Sachems, and a secretary and treasurer.

Our motto shall be, "Our rights in the Union!" Sign the cabalistic sign of "cob pipe," with which each member shall provide himself.

The by-laws and regulations shall be such as may be adopted, from time to time, after deliberation at regular meetings.

Before the report of the committee was adopted, Col. J. T. Trezevant offered the following as a "sine nimbi" to the report, and on motion, it was unanimously adopted:

As the wrongs of the South are common to all her citizens, the remedies for their redress can equally affect the interests and the honor of all; and while none should be indifferent to the perils now threatening us, they may honestly differ as to the means of averting them. About our fate, however, there can be no rational ground for any difference of opinion, and this fact is, that a united South will be vastly more efficient for the redress of our wrongs, in or out of the Union, than a divided South. We believe it morally and politically wrong for Tennessee to fling herself out of the circle of a southern sisterhood, and say to her southern sisters, "come to me or not, as you may choose." While Tennessee would not claim to lead, in a common cause like this, she cannot consent to follow. Her position is that of a peer among her southern sisters, and will move side by side with them to a common fate. Their cause is her cause. Their destiny must be hers, too. Whether that destiny shall be a bright or a dark one, must be determined by the general voice of all. We are for a general convention of the fifteen slave states, and opposed to the separate and final action of Tennessee, until after a full consultation with her southern sisters."

The report was then unanimously adopted, and Col. W. D. Ferguson was elected grand patriarch, and W. Parrie, H. D. Connell, Thomas Preston and H. D. Saull were chosen "sachems," and J. W. Leftwich treasurer, and John Kirk, jr., secretary.

A motion was made and adopted, that all papers friendly to the objects of the association be respectfully requested to publish the proceedings; that members skin their names as such, and that meetings be held in the several wards to further the objects of the association.

A number of citizens then signed their names as members, and the meeting adjourned, subject to the call of the Patriarch and Sachems.

The utmost harmony prevailed, until the meeting was rudely interrupted by some half dozen "Mister Men"—several of whom "damned the Union" whenever it was alluded to, and who left only when they found they were in the "wrong box," in the silly attempt to menace men who were born and raised in the South, and who have probably lived more years on this side than those "disturbers" have lived here months.

Don't Forget—Dawson's complimentary benefit to-morrow night.

Common Law Court.—This court yesterday adjourned over to the February term.

Snow.—Yesterday was a white line for items. In classic language, "there wasn't nothink."

Thanks.—For late exchanges we thank Mr. Borden, and his assistant, Mr. Winter, of Adams express office.

Correction.—In J. D. Dunlap's communication, yesterday, the types made 180 gallons, when 80 gallons should have been printed.

Pocket Piecing.—Wilhelm Frabess, resident in South Memphis, had his pocket picked on Wednesday night, on leaving Odd-Fellows' hall.

Criminal Court.—This court was again engaged during the whole of yesterday, in the effort to try Isaac, the slave charged with the murder of Gideon Bowden.

South Carolina out of the Union.—All those who indorse the action of the Palmetto State, are requested to meet at the Common Law Court room, corner of Adams and Second street, at 4 o'clock this evening.

Pictorial.—We saw Mr. Edwards, the agent of Hessian, last night, and learn from him that Hessian will certainly be here on Saturday, when "the fancy" may expect a rich treat.

Wharfboats.—The wharfboats are the cause of much dissatisfaction, on account of the amount of space they take up, they do not bar how on like other boats, but lie broadside on. The board of aldermen contemplate their entire removal.

Removal.—Our friend, Jacob C. Weed, the book-binder, who was turned out in the late fire, has again established himself at No. 190 Main street, opposite the Clay building, third door, where he is prepared to serve his friends and patrons as formerly.

Burglary or Grifting.—Mr. G. Sills, whose gentlemanly demeanor, correctness of acting, and general fine qualities has so much endeared him to our citizens, will take a benefit on Monday night. A great bill and a good time may be expected.

Lumbers.—The holiday times are at hand, and every one begins to feel lonesome, enough to do so, or he is a curmudgeon of the good old times. Now, reader, just look in at Papworth, next door to Specht's saloon, on Madison street, and you will find the Baltimore and Norfolk oysters, turkeys, birds, duck, and game of all kinds, celery, and every other delicacy.

Christmas Festivals.—What is it you could appreciate more as a Christmas present, than a perfect likeness of one of your dear friends? Bingham, the well-known artist, has just received a large stock of fine cases, gold lockets and charms, for the occasion. He has the finest gallery in Memphis, employs none but first-class artists, and warrants a good likeness or no charge. Remember 340 Main street, opposite the Worsham house.

The Homeless.—We ventured a week or two ago to call attention to the condition of persons who find themselves at night in the city without home, without friends, without money and without a place on which to lay their head. The season may be inclement, the winds of heaven may be unloosed, frost and snow may be air-nipt, under circumstances so deplorable, are situated can find no shelter in Memphis. As we have before observed, the destitute may obtain by day food from some of these to whom it may make known this condition, but when night comes few like to take an unknown stranger under their roof, especially as the strangers distresses have added nothing to his personal appearance. A person so situated must wander through the cold and darkness, over the snow covered streets and endure unabolished the pelting of the pitiless storm." Chilled, benumbed, fatigued, faintly, out of heart, the homless one at length falls asleep at some door step not exposed to the biting wind. A policeman passes, entreats as a prisoner locks him up till morning among the drunken and the reprobate. He is next taken before the recorder and is condemned to pay the penalty of the breach of the laws, by working for weeks on the chain-gang, among the outcasts of society. Day by day he is exposed to the community in company with the criminal and the degraded; he is a criminal, the veriest criminal; he is guilty of poverty. This is no painting from imagination, no sketch from fancy, it is a literal statement of the manner in which, in Memphis, we see the poor—the poor whom Christ left as a sacred legacy to his people. Bad as this is, it is not the worst. Sometimes the homeless to escape the pitiless storm, dare not return to an out of the way spot, by piles of lumber, or holes of cellars, by an outhouse or a haystack, a little out of town. In the morning, or perhaps not till some days after, the poor wretch is found pale, stiff, cold, dead! This is the truth, as anyone can learn by inquiry of Coroner Horne, Recorder Dickerson, or the keepers of the station houses. We will mention, as an instance, that on Wednesday, a man named Herman Osborne was brought before the recorder charged with sleeping in the streets. He had with him a pass from Mr. Grenshaw, allowing him to pass over the Little Rock railroad to the place where the grading is going on, there to do work. The poor fellow had not money to pay to cross the river, night came on and only the streets were open to him. The recorder saw that he had every trace of an honest and industrious man, and by a kindly stretch of power, for he deserves honor, he discharged the entry out the law and the man escaped the chaingang. He also gave the man money to buy food, and promised him shelter in his own house if he should require it. In this case, had the man been sent to the chaingang he would have sunk in his own esteem and perhaps have been morally lost for life. The mercy of the recorder enabled him to go where with his own toil he can maintain a fair character and gain a manly independence.—In these circumstances, humanity, and a just regard for the honor of our city, imperatively demand that something should be done. We must not put good and honest citizens on the wise and cruelest of institutions, the chaingang. We must not leave the destitute and the homeless to perish beneath the inclement sky and the empiring gale. A remedy is provided to meet the case we have described in other cities, and it must be provided here. The remedy consists in the city providing a place in which the homeless can find at night, shelter and warmth. A room could be taken in the parade ground where the station house is located, and a bed placed within it. At night where in the stove, the room will warmed, and all can spend the night there whose necessities compel them to accept of more warmth and shelter, labor or beg, nothing to induce any one but the absolutely necessitous to accept the very slight accommodation placed at their services. The register can see how slender and inexpensive the plan is, and how thoroughly it meets the case. It is a plan that experience has shown to work well. Will our Council—a body, we regret to say, that has shown little sympathy with the suffering poor—take this matter into consideration? If it does, it will be the beneficent act of a benevolent and religious Christmas. On no subject, so in keeping with the season, shall we be spoken their dor-

Letter from President Buchanan

NEW YORK, December 20.—The New York Times publishes a letter from President Buchanan to a citizen of Philadelphia, as follows: The President says that no Republican can accept the Crittenden Resolution. Although it would appear on the face of duty was fulfilled, and I believe that nothing more would have produced war, resulting in massacre at the South, the secession of the national capital, the establishment of a military dictator, ending perhaps, in the forever overthrow of constitutional liberty. He says: "The only means at my command, I have used the nation to implore Providence to avert the dangers which threaten the country."

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, December 20.—Senator Douglas has decided to support Senator Crittenden's proposition for restoring the Missouri compromise line.

Trust Sale.

BY virtue and authority of a deed of trust, dated 8th day of June, 1860, made by David G. Cross to me as trustee, to secure four promissory notes, and Robertson Tory indorser thereon, as described therein, which deed of trust is recorded in Shelby county, Tennessee, in Book 42, pages 379, 380 and 381, I will, on WEDNESDAY, the 9th day of January, 1861, between the hours of 11 and 4 o'clock, at, proceed to sell, or offer for sale to the highest bidder for cash, in front of the Bank of Memphis, in the city of Memphis, in south of Lot No. 7, in Block No. 20, in that part of the city of Memphis formerly known as South Memphis, as will be necessary to pay and satisfy the sum of each, and the three notes now due and unpaid. Sold for trustee on the west side of Main street, and 100 feet from the south side of Court street. Terms of sale: Cash. Purchaser will be required to pay for the expense of sale
