BALYSTOK OUTBREAK DELIBERATELY PREPARED

Police, Troops and Black Hundred Massacred the Hebrews.

ST. PETERSBURG July 4.—A point strongly brought out in the parliamentary report on the massacre of Jews at Balyastok is that there was no religious hatred of the Jews among the peaceful Russian population. The fighting was confined to the police troops and black hundred on one side and the Jews and revolutionists on the other. The parliamentary commission found overwhelming evidence that the outbreak was deliberately prepared. After the assassination of Chief of Police Derkachoff proclamations were scattered broadcast by the police among the soldiers and black hundred charging the Jews with being enemies of the Russian state and responsible for the revolution, and styling the lower house the "Jewish duma." The commission cites proof on every hand that after the rioting was started it was directed by the police and supported by the troops who fired only at Jews and Jewish houses.

The report does not specifically place the blame for the throwing of the original bomb into the procession, although it says that several revolver shots were fired, and that a bomb was thrown later among the black hundred accompanying the procession.

Sheromentieff, the police officer who fled from Balyastok to Vilna after the rioting, has been summoned to St. Petersburg by Interior Minister Stolypin.

IRON TRADE HAS ITS MOST PROSPEROUS YEAR

CLEVELAND, July 4.—The Iron Trade Review tomorrow will say: "The first half of the year which has just closed, has been one of the most prosperous in the history of the iron trade. While there has been no boom conditions, the production has been exceedingly heavy and good prices have prevailed but extreme quotations have not been made. The outlook for the second half is very flourishing. Reports indicate that while crops will not be extraordinary, they will be fully up to the average and there is no reason for believing that prosperity will be checked. The slight hesitancy noted last week upon the part of pig iron buyers in some sections, due to the dissolution of the southern agreement, has disappeared. Prices are steady and there has been considerable contracting. Buying has been brisk in the Chicago district, where 100,000 tons of varied grades of pig iron has been ordered. The Bessemer Pig Iron association has sold 20,000 tons to independent interests for the last quarter and there is a very little Bessemer to be obtained. The demand for basic also continues good and among the steel of the week were 12,000 tons to the American Bridge company. The corporation bought 10,000 tons Bessemer pig iron, September delivery, at $17.25. Numerous contracts for steel of the week were $23 per ton have been made. The time for iron and steel bars is active and sales aggregating 75,000 tons of steel are reported by eastern mills. The plate makers are stronger than for some time.

FOUND ISLAND WHITE WITH BIRD FEATHERS

NEW ORLEANS, July 4.—The eight-mile islands in the Gulf of Mexico, which this state has long protected for the breeding of game and water birds and the Breton island government reservation for the same purpose were the subject of a report today by President Miller. Miller, the Louisiana Audubon society. Within the last year he says 100,000 more gulls and tern have hatched out on these islands than would have been produced without aid of the reserve. One small island was white as snow with bird feathers during Mr. Miller's tour of inspection last week. He attributed the increase in the number of water birds to the protection of eggs from destruction by coons, rats and hunters.

KILLING OF ZULUS DISPLEASES MR. HARDIE

LONDON, July 4.—James Keir Hardie, the Socialist and independent labor leader and member of parliament, has addressed what is considered to be a most extraordinary letter to Zulu subjects in Edinburgh, in which he says the wholesale massacre of natives now going on in South Africa under the pretense of suppressing rebellion which does not exist, fills one with shame and horror.

"I hope, Mr. Hardie writes, 'the day will come speedily when your race will be able to defend itself against the barbarities now perpetrated against it.'"

RUSSIANS TRYING TO PREVENT SMUGGLING

ST. PETERSBURG, July 4.—The occupation by Russia of the Aland islands between Finland and Sweden, the Associated Press' is officially informed is one of the measures taken to prevent the smuggling of arms and ammunition through England into Russia and there is no intention of violating the treaty of Paris of 1856 by rebuilding the fortifications at Romarsund destroyed by the British fleet during the Crimean war. The military force sent to the islands consists of a few hundred marines and infantry, who are living in tents.

RUSSIAN DUMA IS MOST POPULAR BODY

Douma Is Most Democratic Body of Men Ever Gathered to Work for an Empire.

Collier's Interesting Article on Convening of Noted Popular Legislation.

Collier's Weekly under date of June 16th, published a most interesting article on the assembling of the Russian Douma. It is an article which is of interest to every reader of the Labor World.

The Douma is the most democratic body of men ever gathered together to legislate on the affairs of an empire. This, at least, must go down in history. Whether it survives the present stress and strain is another question.

The first business session of the Douma began with the reading of many congratulatory telegrams from the Diet of Finland, the municipality of Prague, the prince of Montenegro, the largest cities of the empire. Toward the last were several from political exiles and prisoners. The spontaneous applause which broke from practically entire Douma when these telegrams were read was louder and more sustained than for all of the others put together. The president was obliged from all parts of the country to the deputies urging this and other demands. "If we fail to get the things we have come for we dare not return to our homes," said one deputy. If the Douma fails, or is suppressed, it will not be the Douma that is put down, but the country. For in a degree difficult to appreciate the Douma is the country. It is the most absolutely representative organization ever brought together; not of people merely, but of professions and classes. The United States house of representatives is composed largely of lawyers and professional politicians; the house of commons of "gentlemen"; the chamber of journalists and men of letters.

Not so the Douma. An analysis of the professions of the members shows that twenty-three are lawyers, fifteen professors, six teachers, fifteen doctors, nine authors, seventy-five "zealots" (that is to say, men who have devoted themselves to the work of local governing bodies, men of means generally), twelve rich landowners, ten marshals of nobility, two engineers, nine "functionaries" (men appointed by favor to various positions in connection with public affairs), seven common school teachers, four Greek priests, three Roman Catholic priests, three Mohammedan mollahs, one Jewish rabbi, one Romanist bishop, fifteen workmen for merchants, two manufacturers, two students and one hundred and sixty-six peasants. The atmosphere of the ensemble is, at first glance, intellectual, but the peasants and workmen together form a powerful block to any step proposed by the intellectuals that does not meet with their approval. They, too, are the real radicals, the extreme left of the Douma. The intellectuals mostly belong to the Constitutional and Democratic party. The program of this party is rather a good one on the face of it, but most of the members are cautious, squeamish about spilling more blood, and inclined to be humble and mild in their language. They crave the emperor's grace, for example, for the political amnesty, while the peasants and the workmen say: "We ask nothing, and we demand no grace and pardon, but justice." It is generally held by both parties that political prisoners are all guiltless of crime. The "Rights" form so small a group that they are entirely without influence.

The opening sessions of this remarkable body were characterized by orderliness, clearness, and real eloquence. There was much of the amateurish enthusiasm, but this is not to be wondered at. The first business session was on Saturday, May 12. The president, who had been elected on Thursday, had immediately adjourned the house that he might announce his election to the emperor on Friday, called the Douma to order at 11 o'clock. The reading of the congratulatory telegrams consumed more than half an hour, when the house proceeded to the election of vice-president, secretaries and other officers. A quarter past seven in the evening a brief adjournment was suggested for supper. But the peasants rose on the matter and said no. The routine business of elections was meaningless to them. They had been sent to Petersburg by their village folk and neighbors to gain land and freedom. They were willing to sit patiently through any amount of procedure which the intellectuals told them was necessary, but eat they would not until they had done some business. The peasants carried the vote and the house sat for ten hours without a recess.

Another interesting scene was witnessed when the question came up: Should the Douma attend the reception given in its honor by the city of St. Petersburg? The workmen replied: "If the city of St. Petersburg has money to spend in banqueting us, let them give it to the unemployed of the city, of whom there are so many." The intellectuals said: "Yes, can attend the banquet or festivities, while many of our former colleagues are in prison or in exile. Until the amnesty is declared we will not make merry." And so the Douma continued sitting on the night of the banquet and reception.

In the lobby that night I met a white-haired peasant in high boots wandering about among the brilliantly attired officers, diplomatic corps, and distinguished members of the city of admission to this first session. Supposing him to be a deputy, I asked him what was his constituency. He told me that he was not a deputy to the Douma, but had come from a government in the interior, as an "overser" sent by his village to watch the delegates and see that they did what they had promised they would do. Later I learned that there were about ten such "oversers" who had been sent to Petersburg on a like mission. "L'Etat—c'est moi."

The Douma—it is the Russian state. If the emperor bows to the dictum all may yet be peace in Russia. Otherwise—terrible bloodshed is inevitable. Whether the Douma last a month or a year one thing it has clearly demonstrated. The Russian people—even peasants and workmen and professional men, thrown biggledy-piggledy together—have the instinct for self-government. The details of adjustment, of getting into harness, may be accompanied by many litches, but in the end a government of the people for the people and by the people is assured in Russia. A strong military apparatus may delay the advent of this democracy, but no power on earth can eventually cope with an overpowering idea. Revolution is an idea. Democracy is an idea. The people of Russia as a whole believe in that idea. Thousands have died for it. Thousands more are ready to die for it tomorrow if need be. The Douma in this one week of its existence has demonstrated that—and the ultimate practicability of all that that idea carries with it, in the hands of the Russian people. Therefore it may be accepted—the day of democracy has dawned in Russia.

Molders' union appealed the case to a higher court and a decision has just been handed down.

The concurring opinions handed down by the General Term of Superior Court not alone reverse Judge Hesse's decision but give in greater abundance than any other case on record, the citations from the law books and the interpretations of the many courts relative to the rights and privileges of labor unions, and the use of peaceful persuasion in industrial disputes is upheld in forceful opinions.

In view of the fact that Judge Hesse's opinion finding the members guilty was published in pamphlet form and sent broadcast throughout the United States and Canada, the Molders are now getting over by having their favorable decision printed in book form and sent all over the country.
