The trousers we sell have a character of their own, a department of their own and a manager of their own. Our main specialty are the famous Paragon trousers which run in price from $5 to $7.50 and which outrun in style and workmanship and your merchant tailor could produce for double the amount of money. The best argument in their favor is a try-on and a look in the glass. Please take the elevator to our second floor, and see the argument.

INTERESTING ACCOUNT OF BY-GONE BATTLES

Comparison of Gate Receipts and Side Bets With Those of Today.

John P. Clow and Harry Hinds Have a Rattling Mill.

I was thinking of the purses given today and what they fought for 25 years ago when John L. Sullivan fought Paddy Ryan. They fought for $2,500 aside, although there was $60,000 bet on the outside. James Keenan was Sullivan's backer, and R. K. Fox was Ryan's, and in those days we thought that was a big amount of money to fight for, but just look at the gate receipts they command now—days and the purses that are given.

Gate Receipts.

The biggest gate old San Francisco saw was that of Jeffries and Corbett match which showed a total of $82,000. The next biggest money maker was Nelson and Britt, $40,000. Young Corbett and Jimmy Britt, $32,000; Jeffries and Fitzsimmons, $31,000; Jeffries and Rulin, $30,000; Jeffries and Jack Monroe, $21,000; young Corbett and Terry McGovern, $20,000; Gans and Nelson, $30,000; Gans and Herman, $20,000; well, the biggest gate I think will be Nelson and Gans, but Nelson will never agree to meet Gans again, unless the negro agrees to lease the bulk of his fighting strength outside the ring.

Clow-Hinds Mill.

John P. Clow, the greatest 165 pound man in his day, fought Harry Hinds for the championship of Colorado and Wyoming, and the South, for a purse of $300, but there was at least $10,000 bet on the outside. Clow had got in some trouble in Denver; left there going to Fort Worth, Texas. The chief of police's name was Brady and being quite a sport had lost $2,000 backing Colorado pugilists against Hinds whose home was Cheyenne, Wyo. Some one told him Clow could whip Hinds, so he sent for me and said, "Hayes can Clow whip Hinds?" I said, "Sure," well now said the chief if he can come back to Denver and there will be nothing done to him; you know where he is write to him." I did, telling him what Brady had said and he answered right away saying, "Make the match and you train me and I will whip him as sure as there is a God." He came, I trained him; they fought at Rawlins, Wyo., on a Sunday afternoon. They fought sixteen rounds with two ounce gloves, and Clow beat him.

After the Battle.

There was no way of telegraphing so the news could not be sent ahead of the special train. We had the Cheyenne sports, they were so sure that Hinds would whip Clow that they had a coach with four horses attached to it and a band at the depot, at Cheyenne, Hinds' home, to meet him. But when we got to Cheyenne they put Clow in the coach with the band, ahead, and marched up to the hotel; they left Hinds off at a railroad crossing near the baggage car where Hinds lay on a cot a very badly beaten up man; going up to Hinds he put a hundred dollar bill in his hand, saying, "Harry I am sorry I beat you up so bad, but I had to do it, as I wanted to see my father and mother. Chief Brady won back what he lost and kept his promise, and Clow lived in Denver until we both came to Duluth, in 1886, and made this our home.

CORBETT'S NEW STORY.

Jim Corbett tells this story on himself: A few months ago as I was coming out of the Great Northern theater, where I was playing, I met a friend and stopped to talk to him. While standing there two small boys were waiting to get a look at me; they started to talk about my battles, I was standing near and could not help hearing what they said. At last they got to my fight with Fitzsimmons; one of the little lads said that the solar plexus is on the left side, and the other maintained it was on the right side. Finally one of them came over to me and asked for my expert opinion, I told them it was in the middle of the body; he went back to his companion and told him, "Corbett said it was in the middle." "Gee," said the other, "What does he know about it, he was asleep when he felt it."

RARE OPPORTUNITY.

Mr. Eddie Fitzgerald is going to put a gymnasium in the Central Bath Rooms, where he is manager, so that if any of those boxers or wrestlers, or any one else, wants to get in condition, it will be the place for them, as the skipper is one of the best amateur boxers and wrestlers we have in Minnesota. I have seen Ed with the gloves on. He is clever, and holy murder! what a wallop he has with that right hand.

AMERICANS AGAINST BRITONS.

O'Brien has been offered a match with Gunner Moir, the same to take place in London in the autumn in connection with Billy Nolan's grand international passage at arms in which American pugilists will be pitted against Britons.

Up to date Nolan has been quite tactful in making his arrangements for the big tourney across the pond, being fearful that if too much were said about his plans some unkind person might remark, "No wonder they are avoiding Gans."

The scheme, as far as can be learned, is as follows: A rich Englishman with sporting instincts is behind Nolan and the Marquis of Queensberry contests will be held at Olympia the Madison Square Garden of London, in August next. Nolan, who came across from England to sign up men for the tourney, told such as he places himself in touch with, that he wanted four championship events. After canvassing the situation he decided upon the following programme: Jimmy Walsh vs. Digby Stanley, Abe Attel vs. Joe Bowker, Battling Nelson vs. Johnny Summers, and Sam Langford vs. Gunner Moir.

After thinking matters over Nolan decided he could improve upon the heavyweight card and invited O'Brien to take the place of Langford. O'Brien rather likes the idea and will be among the Nolan voyagers probably when the American Queensberry specialists set out for England in July.

LOOKING FOR A MATCH.

I see that Tom McCune's friends think he would stand a better chance against Mike Schreck than Ben Tremble. Now, here is a chance for Tremble. Bill Kingston of the Merchant's Hotel Buffet, received a letter from Ted Murphy, who managed battling Nelson before Nolan took him in charge. Murphy says, he has a middle weight, whom he will match against Tremble or McCune at catch weights, and make an outside bet of $250 that his man can beat either. Now, if either one wants to make a match, all that is necessary is to call on Kingston, and he will telegraph Murphy in Chicago, and a match can be arranged at once. A fight like this would be worth going many miles to see as the Chicago boy is a great fighter, and the sports would get "a run for their money," as Ben or Tom would make it lively for Murphy's man.

AUSTRALIAN LOOMING UP.

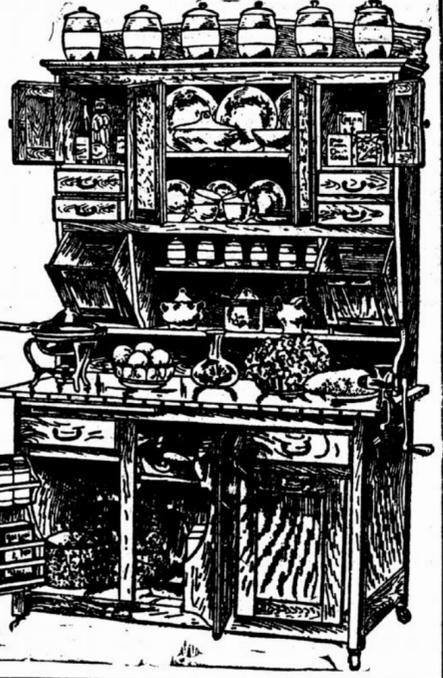

Bill Squires, the Australian champion, will be here in a few days. He said in an interview at Honolulu that he wanted to begin his American career with a match with the winner of the Burns-O'Brien fight and that he would put $5,000 with the writer on arrival, the same to go as either forfeit or side bet. It is his intention to be at the ringside in Los Angeles if Burns and O'Brien meet.

Should the Burns-O'Brien match fall through it is highly probable that Squires and Burns will be matched to fight at Colma on Decoration day. Jim Coffroth, the San Francisco promoter who sent Nelson and Britt together at Colma, has been working on the Squires-Burns contest for several weeks. Burns started the ball by writing to Coffroth and asking him to arrange the affair. In replying, Coffroth reminded Burns that he was already matched with O'Brien and to this Tommy sent answer: "You go ahead and get Squires for me. I'll whip

A WONDERFUL DEMONSTRATION.

On Monday evening of this week a large and interested throng were present in the commercial room of the Central Business College, Hayes building, 30 East Superior street, in answer to an invitation to witness a demonstration of the new Chartier Shorthand.

Prof. L. C. Spencer, of New Orleans, president of the Spencer chain of business colleges of the South, one of the authors of the new system, first gave an extremely interesting talk on the subject of shorthand in general, pointing out the fact that the so-called "standard" systems abound to such an extent in rules, exceptions to rules, words signs, contractions, expeditives and all sorts of complicated outlines, while the system he represented is so simple a child can learn it. He showed that the principles of Chartier shorthand are so comprehensive that every word in the English language can be written, and yet only ten simple rules are necessary to enable the student to master the most extensive vocabulary any stenographer may need also that it has equal advantages from the speed of view as any other system of shorthand.

In introducing the speaker, Mr. Brocklehurst, president of the Central Business College, took occasion to inform the audience that while he had taught and used Pitman and Graham shorthand for nearly 17 years in Duluth, yet after looking into the new system, he was so strongly impressed with its wonderful simplicity, its remarkable reading power, that after consultation with his partner, Mr. F. A. Barber, they had determined to give the new system a place in the courses of the Central Business College.

In the course of his lecture, Prof. Spencer called a small boy in the audience to the front, and in a few minutes actually had the little fellow reading shorthand from the blackboard.

He next called up a class of about a dozen young men and women, who had never seen the new system before the Tuesday previous, and they read letters from the blackboard and wrote letters from dictation better than any student in the ordinary shorthand could do after three months' study. A remarkable test of the readability of the system was shown when Prof. Spencer asked any of the audience to give him an ordinary business letter, and was handed a letter by a gentleman in the audience. Prof. Spencer wrote this letter on the blackboard, and it was read by the class word by word as readily as though reading from a printed page.

The audience were agreed that it was a most wonderful exhibition considering that most of the students who took part had never seen shorthand until taking a few days work with Prof. Spencer.

The Central Business College managers are certainly enterprising, and we congratulate them on having secured the exclusive right to teach this new Chartier system. It shows that they are alive to the commercial needs of this strenuous age and are determined to give their students the best that is on the market.

A large number of students have enrolled in the college, it being fully demonstrated that it is possible for everyone possessing a common school education to learn shorthand in less than half the time required by the old line systems.

ENTIRE JUNIOR CLASS OF COLLEGE SUSPENDED

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 17.—The entire junior class of Drury college, Congregational, numbering 34, was suspended today because they refused to apologize for resolutions drawn up last Monday and directed against the faculty. The freshmen class of 37 students has voted to stand by the juniors. The trouble started with the theft from President Kirby's home of a quantity of ice cream intended for a senior reception.

SENATOR HEYBURN MOVED.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Senator Heyburn of Idaho, who has been very ill in Philadelphia, was brought to this city today. He is improving slowly, though still very weak and there is much ground to be gained before his condition will permit him to attend to official duties.

O'Brien surely and will be ready to box Squires a few weeks later."

Coffroth says: "I think a Squires-Burns match would be a big card, even though it should happen that O'Brien and Burns boxed another draw. You see, Squires and Burns are built on the same lines and each of them is don't know of any one among shrdluis the determined, rushing fighter. I don't know of any one among American heavyweights better fitted to give the Australian a thorough tryout and for that reason I am looking forward to bringing the men together. Of course, I can't say that I have the match clinched. Burns has told me to go ahead and make arrangements, but Squires will have something to say on the subject when he arrives. I don't expect that the Australian will throw any obstacles in the way of a meeting, though."

"But if O'Brien should defeat Burns," was asked of Coffroth.

"That is something I haven't allowed for," said Coffroth with a smile.

This is tantamount to saying that he believes Burns will win from O'Brien if they meet again.

"Please state for me that no matter what others think of my ring qualifications, I will be very much to the fore when it comes time to select an opponent for Squires," said Jack O'Brien.

"I am still on deck, and the match-making department which I preside over personally is as active as ever. Like every other fighter, I believe in making good terms, and if my proposals are entertained, who knows but I may meet Burns at Los Angeles, Squires at whatever place the best inducements offer, and then make the journey with Nolan and tackle Gunner Moir, the English heavyweight champion."

From which it may be inferred that Squires will get right down to business soon after he steps ashore.

THE JUDGE.

ROOSEVELT CRITICIZED.

Moyer-Pettibone Committee Denounces President's Recent Bad Break.

Here is something for His Strenuousness, Theodore Roosevelt, to put in his pipe and smoke. The following are resolutions adopted at Colombo hall, Detroit, Mich., Wednesday evening by the Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone protest committee, which represents 5,000 workmen in thirty-two organizations.

Whereas, President Roosevelt, in the course of a political controversy, has seen fit to refer to Haywood and Moyer as though they were convicted felons, instead of which they are innocent men forcibly deprived of the fundamental rights of citizenship, this having been accomplished by kidnapping on the part of the governors of Idaho and Colorado; and

Whereas, these innocent men have expressed their opinion that the president's insinuation has exerted a great influence over the public against these prisoners; therefore, be it,

Resolved, that we, the delegates of the workmen of Detroit in meeting assembled, condemn this violent and uncalculated outbreak on the part of our president and demand a retraction on the same.

GUSTAV DIEHLE, President.

HENRY KUMMERFELDT, Sec'y.

These resolutions will be sent to the president and the press. "This bad break of Mr. Roosevelt should lose him hundreds of thousands of workmen's votes, if he runs again for president," said Frank A. Johnson, the prominent labor leader of this city. "You and I may differ as to the guilt or innocence of these men, but what we might say, publicly or privately, would not cut much figure, but when the head of a nation goes out of his way to put obstacles in the way of accused persons, in their efforts to prove their innocence, I say it is outrageous and scandalous."

And so it is.

THE RUSSIAN DUMA.

The latest classification of the Russian Duma is as follows:

Socialist and Labor members, commonly called "the Left." Social Democrats, 65; Social Revolutionists, 50; the Group of Toil, composed chiefly of peasants, and scattered, groups of labor deputies, 115. Total, 230.

Liberal Center, consisting of 85 Constitutional Democrats and Progressives, Pacific Regenerators, Democratic Reformers, etc. Total, 125.

Nationalist Center, composed of representatives of Polish and other non-Russian nationalities. Total, 50.

Ministerial Rights, composed of Moderates, supporters of Premier Stolpin and approving the so-called constitutional policy of the government. Total, 40.

Right opposition, the outspoken supporters of the Tzar and opposed to representative government in any form. Total, 80.

According to this classification, the relative proportions of the Duma may be defined as follows: Socialist and Labor Left, 44 per cent; Liberal Center, 24 per cent; Nationalists, 9 1/2 per cent; Moderates, 7 1/2 per cent; Absolutists, 15 per cent. This would give the opposition to the government three-fourths of the Duma, if they acted together, but reports indicate that they have divided on the question of amnesty for political prisoners, the Social Democrats (Socialists) alone demanding, and properly, the release of the thousands of exiled and imprisoned fighters for liberty as the first and best evidence of good faith on the part of Stolypin, and the government he represents.
