MEMPHIS APPEAL.

MEMPHIS.

SUNDAY, : : : : : JANUARY 21, 1866.

☞ Correspondents must bear in mind the rule of writing on one side only of the sheet, in order to enable us to make use of their favors.

CROSS PURPOSES.

Unawed by congressional pressure the President appears to be quietly exercising the plain prerogatives of his high office in the work of restoration. He does not seem to swerve an inch from the plain path that he has marked out for himself. He is gradually withdrawing the troops from the South, and little by little is re-investing the States with their constitutional authority. There are certain concessions which he demands from the States, which the adoption of the constitutional amendment and the proclamations of his predecessor render, in his opinion necessary. These demands met, he quietly restores the Commonwealths to their old places in the Union so far as the Executive has Constitutional power to do it, and to-day, with one or two exceptions, the Southern States are in possession of all their rights except that of representation, over which he disclaims control; and they are free to govern themselves except so far as the Freedmen's Bureau is concerned, an institution organized by law, and thus beyond his reach. The representators from the Southern States are fully recognized at the executive departments. They have the franking privilege, and are requested to nominate candidates for the military and naval schools. These are small rights, but they are all the President, according to his understanding of his duties, has the right to confer. They are of vast importance as indicating the views and purposes of the administration.

Favored by the President, we will escape the thousand tyrannies which radical vindictiveness would inflict upon us. Even the Freedman's Bureau will be controlled and kept within the strict limit of its duty, and thus be impotent for serious mischief or annoyance.

But, alas for Tennessee. She has a more terrible source of oppression than that at Washington, over which, we fear, the President has no control. The more fully our State is restored to her rights, the more will those of the majority of her citizens be endangered. The Legislature of Tennessee is indisposed to do justice to either the white man or the freedman. Denying the negro his rights in the courts, and the white man his privileges at the ballot box, the majority throws itself in the scale against the President in his plan of reconstruction, and seeks to retain within our borders armed men, who are only potent in creating disturbances, and discouraging labor and demoralizing the freedmen, and to maintain in this State, in all its assumed abuses, the Bureau which is proving itself, every day, injurious alike to the employer and the employee.

The radicals at Nashville are seeking for new tests by which other citizens may be disfranchised. We trust they may find them. It is hoped they will prune the franchise, until they themselves are the only voters, when, though the operation of that part of the Constitution which guarantees to every State a republican form of Government, they may be ousted from the positions they have disgraced, and lose the power which they are abusing.

SOLDIER'S HOME.

We give place cheerfully to anything stimulating to this excellent charity. Not that it needs assistance from us, for the people have taken it in hand, but the more to show how much our heart is in an enterprise which has for its object the comfort of disabled Confederate soldiers. The Rev. Mr. KNOTT, who is devoting much of his time to the Soldier's Home, informs us that it is succeeding beyond his expectations. The subjoined letter is a tribute of which the class mentioned may well be proud:

MEMPHIS, Jan. 20, 1866.

Eds. Appeal: I am instructed by the Soldiers' Home to acknowledge the kindness of the butchers of Memphis in furnishing the Home with fresh meats from the first call made until the present, these gentlemen have been generous in their contributions. I take this opportunity of returning to the citizens of Memphis the unfeigned thanks of the Southern Soldiers' Home for their liberality in supplying the wants and necessities of our destitute comrades.

I take pleasure, also, in acknowledging the receipt of $66.35 through the hands of our enterprising young townsman J. M. Coleman—the proceeds of a score, given in Raleigh on the eighth of January for the benefit of the Southern Soldiers' Home.

J. W. KNOTT, Agt.

☞ Gov. Swann, of Maryland, has submitted his message to the Legislature of that State, now convened in extra session. The present financial needs of the Commonwealth, growing out of the extraordinary demands produced by the rebellion, are given as the reason for calling the legislators together at present. The Governor approves the President's reconstruction policy; is gratified at the total extinction of slavery, of which he says he was an advocate, but opposes universal negro suffrage.

☞ An old man named Owens, living south of the river in Knox county, Tenn., on Sunday, seventh inst., committed suicide by cutting his throat and hanging himself, having so arranged a rope to a tree as to suspend him from the ground upon his cutting his throat with a razor, which he had prepared for the occasion. A species of insanity was the cause, and this was the third time he had attempted to take his own life in the space of a few years.

☞ There is a powerful movement throughout the Northwest in favor of free trade and the modification of the protective tariff to a revenue basis. Free trade leagues are being organized in the leading towns and cities. The Chicago league has been fully organized, and the names of many leading citizens of both political parties appear in the list of officers.

☞ It commenced snowing again in St. Paul on Sunday night, and the snow is now full three feet deep. This is deeper than was ever known in this locality. It is badly drifted and the roads are impassible. The snow storm extended from Montreal to the West.

☞ The President has sent to the Senate over two thousand nominations for confirmation, being mostly the brevet and other military promotions, made last fall and summer. The Military Committee will take up their consideration at their next meeting.

☞ We learn from Capt. J. E. Rankin that Gen. Adam R. Johnson, formerly of John Morgan's command, is living upon his plantation in Burnett county, Texas. He is healthy and robust, though totally blind from the terrible wound he received.

☞ Government is in receipt of information which tends to the belief that the recent destructive fire of the Arsenal at Columbus, Miss., was caused by incendiaries to cover the theft of Government cotton stored in the Arsenal.

☞ It is reported that there are over forty cases of smallpox now in Meridian and the infection rapidly spreading. It commenced with the freedmen, but it has extended to whites, and one or two families are afflicted with it.

☞ The North Alabamian complains that Tuscumbia is garrisoned by negro troops, under pretext of preserving order, when it is well known that their very presence amongst the whites is a source of disorder.

☞ The United States cotton and license taxes in Galveston, for the last four months, amounted to six hundred and thirty thousand six hundred and fourteen dollars and forty-seven cents.

☞ Senator Sherman, of Ohio, has placed himself squarely and unequivocally on the side of the Administration.

☞ It is generally believed in Washington that General Stedmen will be Secretary of War, vice Stanton resigned.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

Eds. Appeal: A simple retrospect of a hundred years will suffice to convince us, that time has made extraordinary changes in politics, if in nothing else. It is now the fashion of New England, to worship the negro, for that superior virtue and intelligence which the white race can never attain; a hundred years ago it was their fashion to sell him. No doubt, time will produce other changes in the fanaticism of that peculiar people. The ox and the crocodile are no longer worshipped in' Egypt, and perhaps a hundred years hence the negro will cease to be the divinity of the Puritans. Perhaps that same unbridled fanaticism which new apotheoses, the sable son of Africa may then commend him to the stake, in the place of the tribe of witches, which is now partly admitted to be extinct, to the great discomfiture of that species of philanthropy, which seeks the happiness of humanity, through the suffering of all with whom it comes in contact.

The following advertisement will show what were the customs of the fathers of our present race of radicals. They speak for themselves:

"Francis Lewis has for sale a choice parcel of Muscovado and Powder Sugars, in hogsheads, tierces and barrels; ravens, duck, and a negro woman and boy; the coach house and stables, with or without the garden spot, formerly the property of Joseph Murray, Esq., in the broad way; to be let separately or together. Inquire of said Francis Lewis."—New York Gazette, April 25, 1765.

"This day run away from John McComb, junior, an Indian Woman, aged 17 years of age, spitten in the face, of a middle stature and indifferent tatt, having on her a drayat, waistcoat and kersey petticoat, of a light color. If any person or persons shall bring the said girl, to her said master, shall be rewarded for their trouble to their content."—American Weekly Mercury, May 24, 1776.

"A female negro child (of an extraordinary good breed) to be given away. Inquire of Eles and Gill."—Boston Gazette, Feb. 25, 1765.

"To be sold for want of employ, a likely negro fellow, about twenty-five years of age; he is an extraordinary good cook, and understands setting or tending a table very well, likewise all kinds of house work, such as washing, scouring, scrubbing, etc. Also, a negro wench, his wife, about seventeen years old, born in this city, and understands all sorts of house work. For further particulars inquire of the printer.—New York Gazette, March 21, 1765.

In addition to these pleasant reminiscences of former times, I beg leave to insert a copy of a bill of sale made in the good town of Boston.

"Know all men by these presents, That I, Elizabeth Treat, of Boston, in the county of Suffolk, widow, in consideration of the sum of 225 13s 4d, to me in hand paid, before the ensealing hereof by Samuel Breck, of Boston aforesaid, merchant, the receipt whereof I do hereby acknowledge, have granted, conveyed and sold, etc., unto the said Samuel Breck, my negro man, named Henry, aged about forty years, with his apparel, unto the said Samuel Breck, his executors, etc., and I, the said Elizabeth Treat, do covenant that I am the lawful owner of the said negro man, and that I will covenant and defend the said negro man unto the said Samuel Breck, his heirs and assigns forever;

Witness my hand and seal, this tenth day of October, anno domini one thousand seven hundred and seventy, in the tenth year of his Majesty's reign.

ELIZABETH TREAT.

Signed, sealed and delivered in the presence of us, Thomas Melvillo, Mary White."

Yet the children of these men have long asserted that slavery was the "sum of all villainies," and now insist that the negro is superior to all other beings known on this mundane sphere. "O tempora, O mores!"

FORSAN.

TRUE POETRY AND ITS INSPIRATIONS.

There is scarcely anything sweeter in the language than the following, by our new fellow townsman, Gen. ALBERT PIKE:

SONG.

When Autumn's chilly winds complain,
And red leaves strew the vale,
We know that Spring will laugh again,
And leal and flower hail.

But when Love's saddening Autumn wears
The hues that death presage,
No Spring in Winter's lap prepares
A second golden age.

So when Life's Autumn sadly sighs,
Yet smiles its cold tears through,
No Spring with warm and sunny skies
The Soul's youth will renew.

Love blooms but once, and dies—for all;
Life has no second Spring;
The heart must then know how must fall,
Long as the lark may sing.

O Love! O Life! ye fade like flowers,
That droop and die in June;
The prayer, all the short, sad hours,
And Autumn comes too soon.

This is not only poetry, but the inspiration of poetry in another, as the following will show:

Eds. Appeal: The following, suggested by a beautiful song of General ALBERT PIKE, are respectfully addressed to him:

STANZAS.

There joys a spring time in the hearts of men
Whose bright lines never russet grow nor sear;
Whose blooming beauties do not fade as when
The autumn saddens the declining year.

There is a love, a gently growing spell
Not measured by the tide changeful moon,
Nor by the bounding pulses' fitful swell,
That feels no chilling March or burning June.

But deepening, widening, ever greater grows,
Merging into the boundless love of God,
As lashing rivers that gathering water flows
Into the ocean's span a boundless flood.

There spring a life and love within the soul,
That know no seasons, yield to no decline,
But mounting upward to a perfect goal,
For aye, ascending ever brighter shine.

MEMPHIS, Jan. 16, 1866. H.

☞ The negroes confined in the Galveston jail grew mutinous and had to be reduced by the military, after having lost some of their number.

☞ Maximilian has ordered that seventeen Liberal soldiers shall be shot. Gen. Weitzel has sent a vigorous protest against the barbarism.

☞ The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has decided that authority has been given to imprint the initials and date in ink upon revenue stamps, instead of writing them.

☞ The Dubuque Herald charges that Gov. Stone, of Iowa, is a defaulter to the State of Iowa, to the amount of eighty thousand dollars. This is very positively denied by his friends.

☞ Edward B. Ketchum, who was lately convicted of forgery, and sentenced to serve a term of four years and six months in Sing Sing, has been placed in the shoe shop of the prison.

☞ The steamer Ida May, with Thayer & Noye's circus on board, while going from Shreveport to Grand Ecore, was snagged and sunk on the eighth, in shoal water, at Loggy Bayou. The circus got off without loss.

☞ A gentleman named Anderson, who was in a wagon with his son, when near the Belleview Hotel, North Nashville, was assaulted by three ruffians, who beat him, chocked his son, and took his pocket book.

☞ The United States Senate, instead of following the practice of the House in referring the credentials of members elect from Southern States to the Reconstruction Committee, laid those of Wm. A. Graham, a Senator elect from North Carolina, on the table.

☞ There are now over one hundred and seventy-five cases of small pox in in the pest house. The disease does not seem to be abating at Nashville. The Banner has been informed by physicians who have an extensive practice, that there can not be less than five hundred cases scattered through the city.

☞ The Senate Post Office Committee will report against the recommendation of the Postmaster-General to require prepayment on all newspapers sent to regular subscribers. It is complained that it would be very unjust to weekly papers sent through the mail.

☞ A dispatch from Lawrence, Kansas, dated January seventeen, says:

By private advices from the Plains we learn that a horrible murder was committed near Junction Station on the night of the fifth, supposed to have been done by soldiers of the Thirteenth Missouri cavalry, stationed at that post. The names of the murdered men were F. H. Sherman and Isaac H. Augustus.

☞ Mr. Meade has introduced into the Senate of Virginia the following resolution which was passed with only one dissenting voice:

Resolved, That as it has been reported to the members of this body that the widow of the immortal patriot and hero, Stonewall Jackson, has been left in indigent circumstances, the Committee of Finance be instructed to inquire into the expediency of appropriating ten thousand dollars, or such amount as, in their wisdom, may appear best for her benefit."

☞ Gens. Campbell and William Jackson, of the late Confederate States Army, are in Jackson, Tenn., pursuing the practice of law.

☞ Maj. Hensley, formerly President of the California Steam Navigation Company, died in San Francisco on the seventh instant.

☞ A dispatch from Fortress Monroe states that orders have been received there to muster out all the volunteers in that department.

☞ The State Department at Washington has been officially informed that hereafter passports will not be required of foreigners traveling in Bavaria.

☞ The county buildings of twenty-eight counties in Kentucky suffered more or less severely during the late war. A bill has been introduced in the Legislature to restore them.

☞ The Maryland House of Delegates has indorsed the recent letter written by Gen. Grant, opposing the present withdrawal of garrisons from the South, and arming of the State militia.

☞ The last news from Charleston brings us intelligence of the death of Mrs. Rebecca Doyley Pinckney, who was, we believe, the last person who bore that famous name.

☞ Gen. Grant, it is said, under orders from the President, is withdrawing all the troops from the Southern States, except the garrisons of United States forts at important points.

☞ The Legislature of Nebraska met on the ninth instant. The message of the Governor favors the organization of a State Government, and recommends a vigorous prosecution of the war against the Indians.

☞ Considerable debate occurred in the Ohio State Senate at Columbus, on the resolutions indorsing the administration of President Johnson. The resolutions were finally referred to a committee, to be trimmed and qualified.

☞ The Fenians were in a high state of excitement on Saturday and Sunday last, in New York, in consequence of the publication of the letters of Stephens. The Senatorial party pronounce the letters forgeries, while the other party insist on their genuineness.

☞ In the Criminal Court of Philadelphia on Saturday, a man convicted of murder was sentenced to ten years and six months imprisonment in the State Penitentiary, while one convicted of manslaughter was booked for a year's longer term in the same institution.

IMPORTANT FROM THE RIO GRANDE

Mexico Invaded—The Town of Bagdad Captured—A Gunboat in the Fight—Thirty Killed on Each Side.

We have before us the Matamoras Ranchero of the sixth inst., and we find the following quoted in its columns, as from an extra of the fifth:

Yesterday several officers and men from the Federal side of the Rio Grande crossed at Clarksville during the day and took up quarters at Bagdad, apparently for the night. Shortly after midnight the guard at the ferry and along the river were surprised, captured and disarmed by the party above mentioned. Such lighters as were at hand were immediately taken possession of, and with them nearly the entire military force at Clarksville were crossed over in two separate bodies, making in all some four hundred men, mostly negroes.

The garrison of Bagdad, containing about one hundred and seventy-five men, were completely surprised and captured. The commander of the post and the captain of the port were taken prisoners while in their beds. It is said the latter was killed and the former made his escape. Of the truth of this there is some doubt.

Upon taking possession of the town, the work of pillage and plunder was immediately inaugurated. Every lighter in the place (some fifty in number), was taken possession of, and as rapidly as each warehouse could be gutted, the contents were loaded up and immediately crossed to the American side.

The gunboat Antonio was called upon to surrender; she answered their demand with a broadside, which scattered the filibusters in a hurry. Shortly after, a second demand of the same nature was made, which was answered in the same manner and with like result. She was on her way up the river. An Austrian sergeant on board the Antonio was killed. At daylight the French men-of-war in the harbor opened fire, compelling the filibusters to take refuge in the upper part of the town. At last accounts the filibusters were in possession of the town.

The deaths were reported to be thirty on each side. It is stated the filibusters were under command of one Col. Reed—that one, R. Clay Crawford, being at Brownsville, upon receiving information of the capture of Bagdad, started for the scene of action post haste.

Mexico, the invader, is on your soil, with purposes hellish and plots damnable. Let him be welcomed with bloody hands to a hospitable grave!

The Ranchero, of the sixth, has a long article headed "Who wants war?" and responds that it is, first, "the noisy politicians," just for the purpose of making capital; secondly, "the speculators," next, "because the talk about it makes his paper sell; thirdly, the Othellos whose occupation would be gone without it—" fifty thousand army officers"—"yes, a hundred thousand of them, together with that army of contractors who fatten upon the blood of fallen comrades; who rob from Government and people, and steal from everybody and everything." Our Matamoras contemporary thus concludes the article:

In the fourth place, the informed people and government of the United States don't want war. The thoughtful statesmen, legislators and people are in their hearts opposed to war on anybody or for any purpose. They may, it is true, try to imitate Napoleon, Russell and Maximilian, but they have no notion of steering the greenback ship into another storm. They are all aboard and they look now that the slightest puff of war wind would carry them all down to the deepest depths of bankruptcy. What they cannot accomplish by their favorite game of bluff, they are not going to attempt in any other way, even though all the speculators, editors, army officials and contractors should howl war to the dismal end of time.

The Ranchero aims at being quite sarcastic at the expense of Gen. Weitzel. Referring to his amendment of General Orders No. three, in which he had spoken of "Mexican authorities," instead of "Matamoras authorities," it calls on him further to amend the order by expunging what he said in it about the suppression of the Ranchero. This it tauntingly says looks very much like a desire to prohibit the liberty of the press on the other side of the Rio Grande.

Our contemporary notices with satisfaction the announcement of Gen. Weitzel, that he would execute all offenders caught transacting unauthorized attacks upon Mexican territory and people.

The Ranchero states that all the immigrants who leave Cordova, pronounce it the garden of the world, possessing all the advantages of both the torrid and the temperate zones, without any of their objectionable characteristics. Some forty plantations have already been colonized.

The French consul, in Matamoras, has called a meeting of the French, Italian and Swiss inhabitants of the place, "on matters of grave importance," which we suppose will have reference to the defense of the city, and perhaps to the recovery of Bagdad.

From the Evansville Courier.

TERRIBLE EXPLOSION.

Yesterday morning we received the startling intelligence of the explosion of a portable steam saw mill on Blue Grass creek, near Millersburg, about fourteen miles from this city, on last Saturday, in which almost an entire family lost their lives, or were horribly mangled. They were busily engaged sawing a pile of wood, anxious to finish the job before the day ended, and forgetting to fix the water valve, they were unaware that the supply of water had become exhausted. Suddenly the boiler exploded with a terrible noise, spreading death and destruction around.

These killed outright were an old man named Jake Steinmetz, Mike Steinmetz, his son, who was found about fifty yards off, lying against a tree, with a large piece of iron near him, having been carried that distance by the force of the explosion; Henry Dennis; a man whose name we could not learn, but who was long and favorably known in the neighborhood as a quiet, industrious and hard-working man.

The wounded were: Mr. Klein, a piece of the wreck having struck him and lodged in his heart, the wound is mortal; George Steinmetz, slightly in the arm; George Steinmetz's grandfather, slightly in the head, (we were unable to learn his name.)

The funeral of the unfortunate men took place on Sunday, and was attended by a crowd of sorrowing friends. All five men were buried in one grave.

☞ Mrs. Mary Williams, aged one hundred and five years, nine months, and thirteen days, died near White House, Hunterdon county, N. J., on the twenty-eighth ult. She never had a sick day, so as to be confined to her bed, until the last few weeks of her life. It is said that her eye-sight continued good as usual, she was always a little nearsighted, and any one who chanced to visit her, even after she passed the one hundredth year, would find her assisting her daughter in the domestic affairs. Her faculties were retained during her whole life. Her husband died seventy years ago. She had five children, two of whom died before her.

☞ The Richmond Republic says Rev. Mr. S. B. Stuart, of Georgia, has paid a visit to Baltimore for the purpose of soliciting subscriptions for an endowment to Washington College, known as the "Lee Endowment." He has secured subscriptions to the amount of near nine thousand dollars, and expects to obtain about as much more on a second visit he proposes to make to that city.

COTTON FARM TO LEASE.

A Splendid cotton farm, on the line of the Memphis and Little Rock Railroad, four miles from St. Francis river, and thirty miles from Memphis. The farm is well improved and has been cultivated during the last three years. The residence and outhouses are all good, the plantation under a first rate fence. Some corn and laborers on the place. VERY SUPERIOR

SMOKING TOBACCO.

WE HAVE Just Received, and now Offer for Sale, a consignment of the following named popular brands Virginia Smoking Tobacco, viz:

"Hun-Kee-Pun-Kie,"
"La-Te-Ka," and
"Indian Council" Knickniack.

Which Tobaccos are unquestionably of the Best now to be had in the country, the same being decidedly the best substitute in a fine Havana segar, and favorites with the best judges and pipe smokers, not only in the South, but also in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington.

While the quality of the Tobaccos, are unquestionable, the packages in which they are contained are at once unique and beautiful.

The Trade are respectfully invited to call and examine for themselves, at the VIRGINIA TOBACCO AGENCY, No. 214 Front street, two doors above Adams street.

Gayoso Barber Shop.

THOMAS WILLIAMSON, Proprietor.

THE proprietor would respectfully inform his old friends and customers that he is still at the Gayoso Barber Shop, where he has been for the last ten years, and is ready and willing to wait upon them. He has first class men in his employ, and is confident that he can guaranty satisfaction to all gentlemen who may favor him with their patronage. The proprietor of the Gayoso House has cleaned the back door of the Shop for the present, but the front door will always be found open. I shall, at all times and on all occasions, be happy to see my old customers, and guaranty that they will be treated with politeness.

LEVEE CONTRACTOR WANTED.

CITY OF HELENA, ARKANSAS, January 15, 1866.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned will receive proposals for closing a break in the Levee, commencing at the upper end of the proposition is received the contract will be let to the lowest bidder on the 15th day of February next, in this city. The work will require about forty or fifty thousand cubic yards of earth. Improved lands, worth nearly a million of dollars, have been assessed for Taxes, sufficient to pay for the work. The security could be no better; but, owing to the prostration of every interest in the South by the effects of the late war, the planters cannot pay the money for the work until the approaching fall, out of the cotton crop. A contractor is wanted who can promptly put the work through and wait for the money until the 1st of November next.

Proposals must be accompanied with satisfactory references.
