MEMPHIS APPEAL.

THE POWER OF MUSIC.

THE MAN OF BUSINESS, RETURNING TO HIS MADISON, FINDETH HIS WIFE AT THE GRAND PIANOFORTE.

Sing to me, love, I need thy song;
I need that then should all be clear as well.
For everything is going wrong,
And life appears an awful hell.
I've overdrawn my banker's book,
I'm teased for loans by brother John;
Last night our clerk eloped, and took
Two thousand pounds—slang on—slang on.

My partner proves a man of straw,
And stung, alas! I have not stinged;
My mortgage has gone to law,
And sweaty hell have his pound of flesh.
My nephew's none (has just been spilt,
In some mad student fight at Bonn;
My tailor serves me with a writ
For three years' bills—sing on—sing on.

My doctor says I must not think,
But go and spend a month at Ems;
My conscience, overcome with drink,
Near Barnes upon me in the Thames;
My quiet home is ruined quite,
And hath no leg to stand upon;
The other's knee are such a sight,
I'd never sell—sing on—sing on.

My love, no tears! I'll touch thee now.
Thy parrot in our pond is drowned;
Thy lap-dog met a furious cow,
Whose horn has stretched the—hany spaniel.
Thy son from Cambridge most retire
For tying crackers to a dog;
Thy country-house last night took fire—
It's down, sweet love—sing on—sing on.

IMPORTANT TO FRUIT GROWERS.

Dr. Trimmal, entomologist of New Jersey, was recently in New York city, and gave, on being introduced to the club, the results of his experience for the past twenty years in dealing with the insect enemies of fruit and fruit trees, together with a description of the appearance and manner of working of the several species, as follows:

FIRST, THE TENT CATERPILLAR—Is found in every State in the Union. It eats off the leaves, and this, so to speak, destroys the lungs of the tree. The best and only sure mode of destruction is to search the trees in the spring, and crush nests before the caterpillars escape. He had tried smoking and various artificial modes recommended, but found them failures. Among birds, the yellow-winged cuckoo is most voracious of these insects. The moth comes to maturity early in June—may be discovered on the tree during winter, and cut off.

THE APPLE TREE BORER.—Is an enemy especially to the quince, peach and apple tree. It continues for three years, by which time it generally perforates the tree. It can easily be detected in summer from the noticeable fact that tan colored and fine chips exude from the mouth of the hole where it is working. Its operations are confined mainly to the trunk near the fork of the principal branches. The surest and most practical way to destroy the borer is to drive along wire needle into the hole till the end of it is reached.

PEACH WORM.—The peach worm is found mainly in the latitude south of New York State. The manner of its detection and destruction are the same as in the case of the borer. It is found during cold weather between the bark and the wood of the tree.

THE CURCULIO.—This insect, which is of the beetle or corn-weevil species, is probably the most destructive to fruit of any known at the present time. Its ravages are not confined to any one variety of fruit, but extend to nearly all, although affecting some, as for instance, the pear and apple, more than others. He had tried all the prescribed remedies, but found nothing so effectual as destroying the withered fruit as it drops from the trees after being stung by the curculio. The grub of the future insect is deposited in these, and of course by destroying them, the number that would appear next season is thereby diminished in proportion as the work is done thoroughly. Neither birds nor barnyard fowls destroy the curculio to any considerable extent. The apricot and plum suffer extremely from the curculio.

THE APPLE MOTH—Is becoming even more common than the curculio. These two together have pretty much destroyed the apple crop of New Jersey. The moth, unlike the curculio, flies by day. As the fruit when stung by the moth does not necessarily fall to the ground, the mode of extermination must be different from that practiced in the preceding case. How then shall we get at them? An answer to this is found in the fact that the cocoon of the moth is deposited under the rough bark on the trunk of the tree. Woodpeckers often penetrate this bark with their bill to secure their prey. Mr. T. recommended tying a hay rope around the tree and one around each of the principal branches. Under these, the cocoons of the caterpillars would be deposited and might be easily destroyed. He had thus taken two hundred and fifty on a small tree, and he believed it to be the best remedy for the purpose yet discovered.

☞ A few days since a Mr. Lassiter was killed by a Mr. Rose, in Northampton county, N. C. The difficulty arose about a lightwood tree, which Lassiter had cut down, and which each party claimed as being on his land. During the altercation Rose took a limb from the tree and struck Lassiter a blow on the head, from which he died. Rose left and has not been heard from.

☞ On Friday last Obediah Page, of Wake county, N. C., living near Cedar Fork, came home drunk and beat his wife. Upon his son Alonzo's remonstrating, he beat him and cut him with a knife, whereupon Alonzo shot him dead.

☞ Eleven hundred dollars have been paid to the widow of Capt. Wirz, at Washington, by a Confederate officer, in compensation for household property seized and sold during the war.

☞ A valuable trunk was stolen from Gov. Graham's carriage, on its way to Hillsboro' depot, N. C., on the ninth. It was afterwards found in the river rifled.

From the New York News.

FASHIONS IN HAIR.

Waterfalls, notwithstanding the repeated assertions that they were "going out," have not yet been discarded. The huge plain bundle of hair worn last summer is no longer worn. The waterfalls of this winter are smaller and of more graceful form. Some are made wholly of plaits or rolls.

A tasteful mode of arranging the hair, now to some extent adopted, is by placing over a small, plain waterfall a fall of curls, surmounted by a roll, the front hair being dressed in curls or turned back, and is surmounted by a heavy braid. This last style is not well adapted to any but delicate and regular features.

The short Aspasia curls, frizzes and braids for the forehead, are just now fashionable. High rolls cannot be conveniently used, yet they are to be seen occasionally, some being slow, in defiance of fashion, to abandon a style to which they have become accustomed.

The thick coil of the "Empire" period is much admired by many, and to most heads is more suitable than the waterfall.

The coils ordinarily offered for sale by the hair dressers are usually made of short hair to be fastened over a roll, and this when coiled is attached to lace, which can be fixed firmly on the head. This coil cannot easily be done over, but requires the hand of the hair dresser. But by far the handsomest coil is made with the natural hair; and if that is insufficient a switch of false hair can be twined in with it.

There is a novelty in form of hair feathers. They are made of short hair fastened to a wire, of the shape of an ostrich feather, and slightly curled or frizzed. What its popularity will be cannot now be judged. But if tastefully arranged it may be a very becoming ornament.

☞ A Chicago dispatch tells the following singular story: A man named Christian Baker committed suicide by swallowing a dose of arsenic in a saloon on College Grove Avenue. After swallowing the arsenic Baker ran off, and was discovered lying on a stairway on Prairie Avenue. The cause of the act was an attachment he had for a Mrs. Baker, whom he had met on board a steamer when coming across the Atlantic, whom he discovered, after he had got married to her, not to be a widow, but that her husband was alive in this city. The poor woman, upon the discovery of her, in his vile wandering, found her out, and the demoniac had such an effect on the spirits of husband number two, that he found it was impossible for him to live. He was accordingly led to the county hospital, where he died.

☞ A Washington dispatch to the St. Louis Democrat says:

Gen. Fisk, who has arrived here, says that on his return to Kentucky he will, if permitted to do so, repeat his Cincinnati speech before the Kentucky Legislature, and present testimony in examination the returned colored soldiers and their families who have been maltreated. The Colonel bears testimony to the cordial support extended to him by Governor Bramlette and the loyal people of the State and states, that in but few of the counties of Kentucky are the freedmen treated with hostility. Letters from the Kentucky Unionists to their members of Congress more than confirm the statements made by Gen. Fisk in Cincinnati.

☞ An old Methodist, very great at responses, which were not always appropriate, but always well meant, went one day to hear a popular preacher. The preacher, usually loud, was rather perplexed and felt it himself. He labored through the first part, and then said: "Brethren, I have reached the division of my first point." "Thank God!" ejaculated the old man, who sat before him, profoundly interested, in a voice that was heard in every part of the large church. The remainder of that sermon was hardly to preach than the first.

☞ The following is the conclusion of an epitaph on a tombstone in East Tennessee: "She lived a life of virtue, and died of the cholera morbus, caused by eating green fruit in the full hope of a blessed mortality, at the early age of twenty-four years, seven months and sixteen days. Reader go thou and do likewise."

DUPLEX ELLIPTIC

(Or double Steel Spring)

SKIRT,

WESTS', BRADLEY & CARY,

Sole Proprietors and Manufacturers, 97 Chambers and 79 and 81 Reade street,

NEW YORK.

This Invention consists of Duplex (or two) Elliptic Pure Refined Steel springs, impressibly braided lightly and firmly together, edge to edge, making the toughest, most flexible, elastic and durable spring ever used. They seldom bend or break, like the single springs, and consequently preserve their perfect and beautiful shape more than twice as long as any Single Spring Skirt made, or can be made.

The wonderful flexibility and great comfort and pleasure to any lady wearing the Duplex Elliptic Skirt will be experienced particularly in all crowded assemblies, operas, carriages, railroad cars, church pews, balls, aisles, in promenade and home dress, as the skirt can be folded when in use to occupy a small place as easily and conveniently as a muslin dress.

A lady having enjoyed the pleasure, comfort and great convenience of the Duplex Elliptic Steel Spring Skirt for a single day will never afterwards willingly dispense with their use. For Children, misses and young ladies they are superior to all others.

The hoops are covered with two ply double twisted thread and will wear twice as long as the single yarn covering skirts, and is used on all single steel hoop skirts. The three bottom rows on every skirt are also double steel, and twice or double covered to prevent the covering from wearing off the rods when dragging down stairs, alone steps, etc., etc., which they are constantly subject to when in use.

All are made of the new and elegant corded tapes, and are the best quality in every part, giving to the wearer the most graceful and perfect shape possible, and are unquestionably the lightest most desirable, comfortable and economical skirt ever made.
