MEMPHIS APPEAL.

MEMPHIS.

SUNDAY. : : : : : : MARCH 18, 1866.

RELIGIOUS HERALD.—We are indebted to a friend for a copy of this religious weekly, one of the oldest papers published by the Baptist denomination of Christians, having been issued in the city of Richmond, Va., without material intermission, for about forty years. Even the sad mutations attendant upon the past years of war, have been unable to shake its well established foundation. Always high-toned and dignified, its character in this respect is not likely to suffer under the editorial management of its present conductors, Rev. Drs. Jeter & Dickinson, assisted as they are by corps of correspondents from most of the Southern States. Our fellow-townsman, Rev. A. R. Miller, Pastor of the First Baptist Church of this city, is their Tennessee correspondent. Our Baptist friends and others wanting a first-class religious paper, will find in the Herald all they desire.

MEMPHIS WHOLESALE MARKET.

We would ask the attention of our friends in the interior, not only of this State, but of Arkansas and Mississippi, to the advantages which Memphis presents as a wholesale market. Our advertising columns invite dealers to examine the numerous stocks of goods offered here, in quantities and qualities to suit purchasers; and we would add our testimony in favor of the inducements thus held out. In the "old times," we are free to confess that Memphis, not being prepared to supply all demands, could not, probably, successfully compete with eastern cities. But "some areas change but exits—a great change has been wrought in Memphis since the war. Before that era, the preponderance was with the retail houses. Now, the wholesale establishments exceed those devoted exclusively to sales to customers by retail. Memphis, in short, has become a wholesale market, where everything the interior dealer may wish may be obtained at as good a rate, and, everything considered, better rates than at New York, Philadelphia or Boston. For example—the country dealer wishes to lay in a stock of Ten Thousand dollars worth of goods suited to his particular locality. He can obtain them in Memphis at ten per cent. less than it would cost him to go to New York, or any of the eastern cities. Instead of buying them—that is to say, taking the prime cost, freight, insurance, personal expenses, etc., the goods he will obtain in New York will cost ten per cent. more than he can obtain them in Memphis and lay them down at home. Another advantage to the country dealer which Memphis offer, is, that his stocks can be replenished at shorter periods and in smaller quantities, than by purchase in the Atlantic cities. In the present unstable and fluctuating price of goods, this is a great advantage.

We commend our country friends to at least examine this market, before purchasing elsewhere.

STREET PAVING.

It would seem from the following from the Cincinnati Commercial, that the good people of Porkopolis, are about as far from being of one mind as regards the best pavement, as we are here in Memphis. It is noteworthy, however, that the very reason the Cincinnati man gives against the "Nicholson Pavement," is the very one which commends it in Memphis, to-wit: the material out of which it is made cannot be obtained there, while here it is the cheapest. On the whole, we trust our city Government will go ahead with the "Nicholson Pavement." Better that than none:

HOW SHALL WE PAVE THE CITY.—Our City Council and Board of Improvements have, we are seriously informed, concluded to adopt the Nicholson pavement on all new streets of the city, "and in repairing streets already bowldered." The meaning of this is that the bowlders are to be torn up and thrown away, the streets floored, and then paved with blocks with a liberal sprinkling of sand and tar. As we have much difficulty in getting enough good timber here to build houses with, it is deemed expedient to use it for the pavement of the streets. The proposed pavement does very well in Chicago where timber is abundant, and bowlders rare and costly, while the bed of the city is a sandy marsh that requires planking before paving. It may also do in St. Louis, where, not a soft limestone and where bowlders cannot be procured save at a cost comparatively greater than that of lumber. But here the conditions are changed. Lumber is costly and bowlders cheap, and we have inexhaustible beds of sand and gravel of the best description. If the bowlder pavement is not a failure, it is grossly absurd to introduce the new pavement, substituting a scarce and perishable material for one that is abundant and enduring. Our bowlder pavements have not been given a fair chance. They have usually been put down only as a preliminary to being torn up to lay gas or water pipes, dig sewers or construct street railways. Where a good job of bowlder paving is done, and timely repairs are made, and there is not a special effort on the part of contractors to destroy it, it has not been found deficient in the quality of durability. Before the street railroads were introduced, and the business of repairing streets was discontinued, the only just complaint about our pavements was that they were too noisy. The noise of the street is, to some people, one of the inconveniences of city life, and while we have a great and busy place here we may expect some stir and disturbance. Whether it is part of a conspiracy to execrate the bowlder pavement, or the pavement, we cannot certainly affirm, but the negligence to repair pavements has latterly been so persistent that it suggests system. A small fraction of the cost of putting down the Nicholson pavement would put every street and alley in good repair, and that done, a decent degree of vigilance in keeping them in order would determine fairly the utility of the bowlder pavement—thus far we have not given it a proper trial.

PALESTINE.

One of the curious enterprises of the day is a project, cotton up by some Maine people, for colonizing Palestine. The head of it is Mr. ADAMS, editor of a monthly paper called the Security Truth and Harbinger of Peace, who has applied to the Government at Washington to obtain from the Sultan a "firman" of protection for the colony. "The colonists," as we learn from the Intelligencer, "have already purchased a beautiful location for their first city or trading port, within ten minutes' walk of Jaffa, the ancient 'Joppa.' The location is situated in the midst of orange and lemon groves and pomegranate orchards; also surrounded with fig trees, date trees, and grape vineyards. We understand they are building two vessels suitable for carrying passengers and freight. The first vessel, with some 25 or 30 families, they purpose shall sail about the 15th of next July. Their object is to get there just in time to put in crops of wheat and barley. They take with them their furniture, the materials for their houses, and all kinds of agricultural implements, and among them reaping machines and thrashing machines. Among those who go first will be carpenters, masons, cabinet makers, boat builders, coopers, millioners, shoemakers, farmers, school teachers, and merchants. One gentleman will build a large hotel to accommodate some of the 30,000 European pilgrims who annually visit Jerusalem by the way of Jaffa. They go there to become practical benefactors of the country and people—to introduce American agriculture, arts, science, and mechanism; and to help resuscitate that once glorious land, as they believe the time has now come to prepare the way for the restoration of the descendants of Abraham to the land of their fathers. They purpose having their vessels run between Jaffa and this country, carrying lumber and various other things to that country, and in return bring back hides, wine, olives, olive oil, dates, figs, lemons, oranges and other kinds of fruit and productions of the country."

☞ The fur companies formerly sent from St. Louis two boats each summer up to the Rocky Mountains, to supply their trading posts and bring back the accumulation of furs and peltries, and the Government sent one to take out the Indian annuities. No less than seventy-five steamers are advertised to leave during the month of April. Immense quantities of goods and groceries are being purchased to go to the mountains this season.

☞ It is proposed that a joint resolution will soon be introduced, discharging the Committee of Fifteen from the further consideration of the Southern States, and that immediately after its passage, which is said to be assured, the credentials of the Southern members will be properly referred. It is said that a majority of both Houses is in favor of this course.

☞ From a Washington dispatch to the Philadelphia Inquirer, we learn that in a recent conversation with a leading member of the Pennsylvania Congressional delegation, Secretary Seward said there was not a rebel to-day in the whole country, and he should not use the word; that he was in favor of the admission of the entire body of Southern members, just as they are, and of the repeal of the test oath.

☞ Rev. J. O. Fisher, of the Methodist Church, in the Republican county of Ashtabula, Ohio, has been convicted before an ecclesiastical court of forgery and dismissed from the ministry. The forgery was in writing a letter to Bishop Baker, recommending himself for Presiding Elder, and signing to it the name of Dr. Gifford. He was of course a leading clerical Republican, and was death on copperheads.

☞ It is stated that an Austrian decree, ordering that all the children of the public schools in Bohemia, henceforth, will be obliged to study the Bohemian language, has caused large masses of the German population to sell their real estate, and emigrate to the neighboring German Provinces. Others are preparing to emigrate to the United States; in general, the emigration to this country during the present year will reach unprecedented proportions.

☞ The European Cholera Conference met at Constantinople on the 13th of February. Turkey, England, France, Austria, Prussia, Russia, Italy, Spain, Portugal, Sweden, Greece and Egypt were represented. The United States, Belgium, Holland and the Papal Government have also been invited to take part in the conference. The only point agreed upon of importance was a recommendation to the Turkish Government that in case the cholera appeared in Arabia during the spring, all communication by sea between the Arabian ports and Egypt should at once be stopped, until at least fifteen days after all traces of the disease should disappear.

MARRIAGE OF GEN. CHEATHAM.

The Largest Wedding of the Season.

From the Nashville Banner, 16th.]

The marriage last evening at the Presbyterian Church, of Gen. B. F. Cheatham to Miss Anna Robertson, daughter of A. B. Robertson, Esq., a wealthy retired merchant of this city, was one of the happiest, as it was one of the most imposing, events of the season. It was an occasion to be remembered, and had been looked forward to with deep interest, having been for weeks previous the absorbing topic in select circles, and much canvassed by the local paragraphists.

There could not have been less than eighteen hundred persons present in the body of the church, which is sufficient, capacity to seat fifteen hundred. The aisles were closely filled, and the aisles of the church, and the gallery and door ways were thronged with spectators.

The ceremonies opened with an organ voluntary from the organist, Professor Henry Weber, followed by a sonata from the sublime oratorio of "Esther," sung by the choir as the wedding procession entered the church and moved down the aisles to the altar.

Inside the altar railing, with the Bishop, who was to perform the marriage service, the Rt. Rev. Chas. T. Quintard, were seated the Hon. John Bell, Judge Robert L. Caruthers, the venerable John M. Hill, Esq., and the Rev. R. F. Bunting. The bridesmaids, clad in white, entered the church by the left aisle, followed by the bride, richly but plainly attired in a dress of white satin, with white lace veil, leaning upon the arm of her father.

The bridegroom, attired in a suit of plain black, accompanied by his attendant groomsmen similarly attired, entered by the side on the right, and all stood together near the chancel rail, where they were received by the Bishop in full canonicals.

The beautiful and impressive marriage service of the Church of England was then performed, the bride being given away by her father, and the bridegroom receiving her at his hands, plighting his troth and sealing the marriage vow with a golden ring. The most religiousoilence was observed while the ceremony was performed, and after the benediction the audience remained seated until the bridal party passed out by the aisle from the church, to the measure of a joyous wedding march by the organist, and then the guests gradually dispersed.

Subsequently the invited guests reassembled at a reception at the residence of Mr. Clark, given in honor of the event, where the festivities were kept up to a late hour.

IRELAND.

Further Development of the Great Fenian Plot.

By the arrival of the City of Boston, at New York, we have dates from Ireland to the 1st inst.

FENIANS AMONG THE RUFFS.

Limerick dispatch to the Cork Constitution.]

Private Stephen Dowling, of the Third Buffs, who was arrested by constable Towers last week and lodged in jail, for having shouted on the public road while drunk that he was a Fenian, was this day handed over to the military authorities. He is to be transferred to Cork to be tried by the court martial sitting there upon a charge of Fenianism.

SOUTH RIFLES.

Correspondence Dublin Times.]

This crack regiment ever since the Fenian craze disturbed the quiet of the country, has mounted a sergeant's guard over its stores and firearms. An evening or two ago, the adjutant, Captain Bellingham, visited the guard, and found the three sergeants somewhat "under the influence." They have since been confined to their quarters, awaiting the decision of their commanding officer.

NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS AND MILITIAMEN ARRESTED AT BELFAST.

From the Belfast News Letter.]

A paymaster sergeant, who has been stationed in Belfast Barracks, was placed under military restraint, awaiting the opinion of the authorities in regard to a charge that he is concerned in the Fenian conspiracy. The name of the accused is Cosgrove. He has about eleven years service. For a length of time he was on the recruiting staff in Leeds, it is understood, and he left to come here about three months ago. He was then a sergeant, and shortly after his arrival he attained his present rank. The police had also a warrant against a private, but when Mr Harvey delivered it to the military authority the accused was not to be found.

CARTRIDGE MAKING IN THE 24TH REGIMENT.

Dublin Cor. of the London Times.]

A boy who gave his name as Thomas Curtis, was brought up in custody of acting sergeant Magee, of the G division, charged by private Austin, of the Coldwater Guards, who deposed that on the previous evening he saw the boy Curtis playing with a rifle bullet; he asked him where he got it, and he said from his uncle, who used to be making lots of them. Subsequently the boy brought him two rifle cartridges, and complained and asked him where he got them, and he again answered from his uncle, who used to be making them. He asked him who his uncle was, and he replied that he was a bandsman in the 24th regiment. Complainant then asked what did a bandsman want of rifle cartridges, to which the boy replied that he did not know, but that he could get him plenty of them, as his uncle used to be making them. For the purpose of having inquiries made into this strange occurrence the juvenile prisoner was remanded.

CONVENIENT EXPLANATION.

From the London Post.]

We hear on excellent authority that there is no ground for believing that any of the soldiers lately tampered Fenians, but that during the last two years many Fenians have enlisted with the worst of motives. The time has come when a strong line should be taken and an example made. It is little to try soldiers and give them commensurate punishment with civilians, and therefore it is felt that the soldiers arrested should be tried for high treason and punished accordingly.

FENIANISM IN THE POLICE FORCE.

Dublin dispatch to the Cork Reporter.]

A policeman of Castletownroche, in the county of Cork, and another from the neighborhood of Fermoy, in the same county, have been arrested on a charge of Fenianism.

FENIANS IN THE WORKHOUSE.

The master of the Rathkeale workhouse and a young man returned from Maynooth College, were, with four others, lodged in Limerick jail, on the 28th.

LATEST ARRESTS IN DUBLIN.

From the Cork Reporter.]

Five Irish-Americans were arrested today in Synge street, and documents of a suspicious character, it is said, were found on them. Their names are Thos. O'Brien, Michael M'Ginn, Thos. Doherty Broughan, John Dunne and Jeremiah Farrell.

Eleven arrests are reported to have been made in Castlebar on Tuesday night. They are all belonging to the working-class.

An aged man named Stephen Rogers, was brought up to the head police to-day charged with being found in the possession of two pistols, single barrels, two cane swords, a powder flask, percussion caps, bullets and bullet moulds, for which he had no license. The prisoner was remanded for the present.

John Mullen, a staff sergeant, was brought up and charged with having been drunk, and with having made use of seditious language in addressing a crowd of persons. The words which the prisoner made use of were, "Are you Fenians? Are you Irishmen? If you are not going to do anything, go for help." He was sentenced to a month's imprisonment and hard labor.

ANOTHER AMERICAN EMBASSY.

From the Cork Reporter.]

John McCarthy, the son of a republican living in Fermoy, was arrested in this city on suspicion of participating in the Fenian conspiracy. The arrest was made by Sergeant O'Brien, of Fermoy, in the public house of a Mr. Clancy, of Patrick street. Immediately after his arrest he was taken to Dockey street barracks, and thence to the county jail. He was on his way to America, and had procured his passage ticket.

DRILLING AT SHIBBEREEN.

From the Skibbereen Eagle.]

The men arrested on private information, charged with illegal drilling last week, were brought before the magistrates at to-day's petty sessions, with four additional persons arrested lately. The court was densely crowded, and the most intense interest was manifested. The informer, Fitzgerald, deposed having been at drill near Aughadown on Sunday night with about two hundred persons, each armed, the whole armed with a pike. They were brought together by blowing a horn. The evidence was distinct and determined. The bench decided on returning the prisoners for trial. Bail was refused. The excitement was great on hearing the result of the investigation. Women, relatives of the prisoners, fainted, and shouts of deep lamentation rose throughout the town.

FENIAN PROCLAMATIONS.

Dublin Correspondence of the London Post.]

The following document, the original spelling of which has been followed, was found on Saturday morning posted on a house near the police barracks in Tuam:

"PROCLAMATION—GOD SAVE THE GREEN.

"Whereas in the Year of the Irish Republic 1866, certain persons (enemies of said Republic) Styling themselves the Parliament of Great Brittain and who pretend or imagine they have authority over this Oppressed Nation Have ordered the arrest of all the Loyal subjects of said Republic by the suspension of an Act which they call the Habeas Corpus.

"Now in Order to let the usurpers see that they Irish Nation will have their independence it is hereby Ordered that all loyal Subjects hold themselves in readiness to fight for their independence and in case they Myrmidons of the so-called British Law make any attempt on their liberty it is Ordered that they do not allow it if possible.

"By Order of the Executive
"Committee Irish Republic."
"God save the Green.

Athy correspondence Dublin Express.]

After the departure of the prisoners, Butler and O'Neill, to Naas yesterday, copies of the following document were posted on the court house and the bridge of Athy, and were removed by the police this morning. The documents were written in a large bold hand on tea paper, and singularly well spelled. The police are on the lookout for the writer:

"Scarpes.

"God save Stephens. God save the Green.
"Fenetionus, hurrah!

"Whereas, a certain act, called the 'habeas corpus,' has been suspended in the down-trodden isle, I, by virtue of the same, can arrest any person or persons suspected of being an Irishman, or sympathizing with Irishmen, and I can cast them into prison without judge or jury, or any trial whatever (God bless the mark), and I can send them to Spike Island, or impress them into long service, I think fit, without even making known to them the charge preferred against them, or without their having broken the peace or committed any overt act whatever. (Oh! what liberty under the glorious British crown!) I, therefore, command all my white slaves and serfs to return to their allegiance, or I shall make Ireland a Jamaica the second. I further command them to submit to every insult, such as the Protestant establishment, tenant wrong, and English education, etc., etc.

"TOM A LARKIMAN."

"Given at Corruption Castle, Dublin this 36-2-56, being the last year of our blessed, tyrannical, and exterminating rule in Erin—godmen.

"God save the Green."

HAWKERS UNDER SUSPICION.

Circumstances have transpired which have led the government to issue very stringent instructions to the police with regard to hawkers.

TAKING CARE OF THEIR POWDER.

From the Limerick Chronicle.]

A quantity of powder, the property of a private trader, was on yesterday removed from where it was stored, near Ashbourne, outside this city, on a car, under an escort of police, commanded by Acting Constable King, to the castle barrack, where all the powder belonging to Limerick owners has been stored and kept under a strong guard of the Seventy-third regiment.

SEIZURE OF ARMS AT BELFAST.

The police have seized a large number of arms at Belfast, some thirty or forty stand, it is estimated—swords, daggers, and other weapons—in the house of Francis McDonnell, pawnbroker, 50 Rosemary street. Some of the arms are new. The names of the parties who pawned them will probably be useful to the police.

IMPORTANT HAUL.

Dublin Cor. of the London Times.]

The police made some very important arrests in Belfast. Sub-inspector Harvey, head constable Simpson, and constables Cling, Canty and Thompson, all of the detective force, went to Maguire's pawn office, Chapel lane, and arrested John Griffith, an assistant employed there. Griffith is about twenty-five years of age, and has for a good while been the object of suspicion. It is said he holds the highest rank among the conspirators in this district. He was arrested while at dinner, after making a desperate effort to escape the officers of justice. Next to him, it is said, Henry O'Hagan, a bricklayer, takes rank. O'Hagan was arrested by the same constables in Great Victoria street. It appears that he had no settled place of abode, but that he had been in Belfast for a considerable period. Next the police went to Cullingtree road, where they arrested two brothers named Bradley. Several suspicious looking strangers were arrested later in the evening, but after inquiries were made regarding them they were discharged.

FENIAN MEETING IN LIVERPOOL.

A meeting was held in Liverpool. Upwards of eight hundred pounds was subscribed in the room for the purpose of affording aid to the Fenians now in penal servitude.

STEPHENS' ADVENTURES.

From the Cork Constitution.]

The Dublin correspondent of the Daily Telegraph gives the following summary of the most recent rumors about Stephens. The second we heard about a fortnight ago, with the addition that the lady was so unnerved at finding herself vis-a-vis with the supposed fugitive that when he alighted at an intermediate station she was unable to direct attention to him. The name of the lady was not mentioned at the time. We ourselves alluded, five or six weeks ago, to a rumor that he was serving as lady's maid in a house at Kingstown, but one rumor may be no truer than another. In the second sentence "Kilkenny" should be "Killiney":—

FLOWERY AND FANTASTIC FICTION.—The stories as to Stephens show that he surpasses Freny, a celebrated Celtic thief, in his shifts, tricks, disguises and escapes. One day I hear that a lady met the fugitive on Killiney Hill, "on yonder rock reclining"—a Fra Diavolo in Connemarra costume—in conversation with the interesting rebel. The next tale is, that Mrs. Hayes, who sells the Independent newspaper in Bachelor's lane, had a fine class carriage from Kingstown to Bray, and that, though he was disguised as a widow, with a thick black veil, she recognized him at once. (As the Head Centre has very large hands and feet, scarcely his feminine disguises may be many and successful ones, a friend meets me and says, "Did you hear? The Fenians held a large meeting last night, and Stephens took the chair." Here we have the usual, but usually comical, lie about them "more Irish and less nice." Lord Mayor Carleton, in the House, the other night, let promises of "beauty and booty" held to seduced soldiers, and to the Fenian rank and file; and it is said that the drawing of lots for the mansions of nobility and gentry has been supplemented by a banner, in which rich and handsome young women are to be the prizes of the day. Among others is a story—invented, perhaps, by her many admirers—that Miss X (I just avoid the right initial), of ——square, a young lady of beauty and wealth, has caused much discussion in the Fenian camp, and that many an Achilles sulks in his tent because this northern Briseis has not fallen to him. The best of the joke is, that the horrible compliment has inspired in the young lady and her family "a kind of pleasing fear;" even her alarming pre-eminence is a blushing tribute to the conquest she has inspired among the Grippes of the cause.

Perhaps she is like Lord Castlereagh, who, when Irish secretary, wished his rather have been hissed when he appeared in public than not noticed.

THE IRISH RUSHING FOR AMERICA.

From the Cork Herald.]

Since Friday upward of four hundred persons intending to go to America have arrived in Queenstown. The National Company's steamer Queen will sail tomorrow, taking a full compliment of passengers. After this steamer leaves, it is said, upward of six hundred passengers will remain for the other steamers starting during the week. Strange to say more than half the number for each of these is already booked, and before two days it is thought they will all be filled up.

From the Cork Reporter.]

Emigration to the United States has already commenced on a large scale. It is not the poorer classes that are departing, but those who could live at home if they could only be taught to be content with their lot.
