MEMPHIS APPEAL.

THE VOYAGE.

BY ALFRED TENNYSON.

We left behind the painted buoy
That tosses at the harbor-mouth;
And madly danced our hearts with joy,
As fast as freedom to the South;
How fresh was every sight and sound
On open sea!—we sailing about
We knew the merry world was round,
And we might sail for ever more.

Warm broke the breeze against the brow,
Dry sang the tackle, sang the sail;
The lady's head upon the prow
Caught the sheer spray, and seem'd the gale;
The broad sun rosefully to meet the east,
And swept behind; so swift the ship,
We felt that great orb make and rest
We seem'd to and into the sun.

How oft we saw the sun retire,
And turn the threshold of the night,
Fall from his ocean-lane of fire,
And sleep beneath his pillared light!
How oft the purple-skirted rote
Of twilight slowly downward drawn,
As through the regions of the globe
Again we dashed into the dawn!

New stars all night above the brim
Of waters lightened into view;
They crept to us as quickly as the rim
Changed every moment as we flew.
Far ran the naked moon across
The houseless ocean, wavering cold,
Or flying, shone the silver horn
Of her own veil behind her shoulder stood.

The peaky isles slidden shapes,
High towns on hills were dimly seen,
We past a long lines of northern capes
With dewy northern meadows green;
We came to warmer waves, and deep
Across the tremulous sea we drove,
Where these long swells of broader sweep
The halting oxen and slow plows move.

By peaks that caught, or, all in shade,
Stood in the sun round and quivering brine,
With sakir rings, that spiralling made
Fantastic plume of sunlit hair;
By sands and steaming flats, and floods
Of mighty mouth we sombled for,
And lake and scarlet-mingled woods
Glow'd for a moment as we pass'd.

O hundred shores of happy climes,
How swiftly speaking by ye the bark!
At times the whole sea burnt, at times
With wakes of fire we tore the dark;
At times, a curven coach would shoot
From havens hid in fairy bowers,
With naked limbs and flowers and fruit,
But we nor paused for fruits nor flowers.

For one fair vision ever fled
Down the wide waters day and night,
And still we followed where she led,
In hope to gain upon her flight.
Her face was evermore the same,
And fix'd upon the far sea-line;
But each man murmur'd "O, my queen,
I follow till I make thee mine."

And now we lost her, now she gleam'd
Like Fancy made of golden air,
Now nearer to the prow she seem'd
Like Venus floating on her car;
Now high on waves that lifted her
Like heavenly Hope she crown'd the sea,
And now, the blood-red point reversed,
She bore the bonds of Liberty.

And only one among us—him
We pleased not—he was seldom pleased;
He saw not far; his eyes were dim;
But we saw far and were all diseased:
"A ship of fools!" he shrieked in spite,
"A ship of fools!" he screamed and wept;
And overboard one dreamed of night
He cast his body, and on we swept.

And never sail of ours was furl'd
Nor anchor dropt at eve or morn;
We loosed the fallen from the world,
But laws of nature were our scorn;
For blasts would rise, and wave and wave
Run mountain-high, but we were those that drove the sail
Across the whirlwind's howling of peaks
And to and through the mutterings
Again to colder climes we came.
For still we follow'd where she fled;
Now made is blind and captain lame,
And half the crew are sick or dead,
But blind or lame, or sick or sound,
We follow that which flies before;
We know the phantom in the round,
And we may sail for ever more.

Scintillations from Prentice.

The Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial says that Members of Congress have secured Mr. Stanton, Secretary of War, that, if he is required to give up his place, the Senate will refuse to confirm any successor that the President may appoint. If the Senate will have resolution, it may get a bellyfull of that perilous stuff.

Those who attempt to answer the arguments of President Johnson's veto messages, make a sorry piece of work of it. Those who are satisfied to confine themselves to fierce and bitter denunciation succeed much better in what they undertake. Rave and rage and swear and curse, gentlemen, but don't be so foolish as to try to reason.

A clergyman in Carrollton (Ill.) is reported to have said in a late prayer before his congregation, "I pray to God to raise another Booth to remove the iniquity from the Presidential chair." Why don't you play "another Booth" yourself, you black-coated white-cravated old villain.

When Senator Sumner was traveling in Europe to get relief from the effects of the blow administered to him by Preston Brooks, the Republicans had a great deal to say about "the eloquence of his vacant chair." Pity it isn't vacant now; we would rather hear its eloquence than his.

President Johnson accepts the resignations of officeholders hostile to him and his policy, and prefers not to accept those of his friends. The radicals, simple souls! think this the strangest thing in all the world! They never heard anything like it.

Mr. Killian, at the head of the Fenian Treasury Department, writes to a gentleman in Canada, "Fetch money, not men, that we want." A good many have suspected as much.

The Republicans insist, that, as they elected Andrew Johnson, his first duty is to them. His first duty is to Truth, to Country, and to God. So is his last.

President Johnson was a tailor. They say that it "takes nine tailors to make a man;" but, if all tailors were like Andy Johnson, it would take about nine members of Congress to make a tailor.

God did'nt give Andrew Johnson wealth or position, but He did far better by him—He gave him a pack of brains, a heart of oak, and an iron will.

The St. Louis Democrat declares itself indignant at the President's last veto message. Then let it resolve itself into an indignation meeting.

Thad. Stevens asks the conservatives to show their hands. We invite him to show his foot. We have a curiosity to see whether it is cloven.

The heroine in the play could "stop to conquer." A good many of our politicians can "stop" low enough, but can't "conquer."

A correspondent calls the editor of the radical organ at Newport, Ky., a "bully boy." He is rather a "cow-boy."

It is a most unhappy advancement when a man finds himself advanced in age and not in virtue and honor.

Temptations are heaven's goldsmiths; they try us and refine us, if there is aught in us but base metal.

A good many women are burned to death, and a good many more men smoked to death—by themselves.

It is the habit of boys swimming in the river to duck each other. The President has ducked Forney.

Our Foreign Commerce.

The New York Commercial Advertiser gives the following interesting facts in regard to the foreign commerce of the country:

The present movements of commerce show a balance of exchange in our favor, and account for the unusual extent of the shipments of specie. Although the exports are confined to an unusual extent to cotton, there being at theports no important surplus of Northern produce for exportation, yet the shipments of that staple are more than sufficient to make up the deficiency of other commodities. By a collection of the latest details of the exports of cotton at Southern ports, we are enabled to present the following comparative view of exports and imports for four weeks of March:

Total exports from New York for four weeks ending March 3	$21,861,721
Exports of cotton from New Orleans for first four weeks of March, estimated at 50 per bale	11,000,000
Exports of cotton from other Southern ports for same period, and at same value	5,000,000
Total	$37,861,721
Value of specie in gold at 110	25,000,000
Imports at New York for four weeks ending March 3	28,223,187
Excess of exports	33,638,534

Supposing the movements at other ports to about balance, we have this an excess of exports over imports for the last four weeks, of nearly three millions in gold value. This movement takes no account of the exportation of Western produce during the month, which have been made to a limited extent, nor of the remittances from London on account of railroad loans, both of which increase the balance in our favor.

The prospect for the next few weeks is in favor of continued large shipments of cotton, and of an increased export of produce, consequent upon the opening of navigation, while the importations are likely to fall off materially; so that the balance is likely to become still more in our favor during the next two months.

The President's Proclamation and Western Virginia.

Careful readers of the late proclamation of President Johnson will be astonished the cautious manner in which he refers to Western Virginia. He says nothing about the State of Western Virginia, but speaks of it as "that part of Virginia lying west of the Allegheny mountains," and as "certain specified counties in the State of Virginia," and as "the forty-eight counties of Virginia designated as Western Virginia." In an official document of such importance, every word has doubtless been carefully considered, and these cautious descriptions of Western Virginia are not something more than appear on the surface. What do they mean? Does the President doubt the constitutionality of the act creating the State of Western Virginia? The article of the Constitution in reference to this matter is as follows:

"New States may be admitted by the Congress into this Union; but no new State shall be formed or erected within the jurisdiction of any other State, nor any State be formed by the junction of two or more States or parts of States, without the consent of the Legislatures of the States concerned, as well as of the Congress."

Now it is, of course, conceded that the new State of Western Virginia was formed or erected within the jurisdiction of the original State of Virginia. The legal question involved will, therefore, turn upon two issues: first, whether the last clause of this article—that in regard to the consent of the Legislatures concerned—extends to the formation of a new States within the jurisdiction of other States, as well as to the formation of new States from parts of old States; second, whether the consent of the Legislature of Virginia was granted when the new State of Western Virginia was formed. The first point is a very nice one, and rests principally upon the grammatical construction of the article. The second point involves the issue as to whether the so-called loyal Legislature of Virginia, sitting at Alexandria during the war, was the legal Legislature of the State, or whether the rebel Legislature, sitting at Richmond, was the genuine body. The consent of the Alexandria Legislature was obtained; that of Richmond was not asked. If the President entertains any doubts upon this subject, the whole matter will have to come before the Supreme Court for its decision.—N. Y. Herald.

☞ He cannot be an unhappy man who has the love and smile of woman to accompany him in every department of life. The world may look dark and cheerless without—enemies may gather in his path—but when he returns to the fireside, and feels the tender love of woman, he forgets his cares and troubles, and is a comparatively happy man. He is but half prepared for the journey of life who takes not with him that friend who will forsake him in no emergency—who will divide his sorrows, increase his joys, lift the veil from his heart, and throw sunshine amid the darkest scenes. No, that man cannot be miserable who has such a companion, to be ever so poor, despised and trodden upon by the world.

☞ A Newport letter, speaking of Hunt's picture of Chief Justice Shaw, says it recalls the saying of the Boston lawyer, who had long practised before the judge: "I look," said he, "Upon Judge Shaw very much as the South Sea Islander looks on his god—I know that he is ugly, but I believe that he is great."

Sick and Nervous Headache,
Dyspepsia,
Liver Complaint,
Indigestion,
Kidney Affections,
Diseases of the Bladder,
Loss of Vital Energy,
or General Debility.

To ladies it is particularly recommended. It is a wholesome, invigorating tonic, and is fast superseding the use of bitters, brandies, and some bitters that are now being passed off upon the public.

As an appetizer, it has no equal. Try it! and you will be convinced of its inestimable value. It is independent of all other cordials.

NO EXCUSE FOR BAD BREAD.

MORGAN'S

SELF-RISING FLOUR. SELF-RISING

THE Best, Cheapest and most economical Flour in use.

All invert to good and wholesome bread, biscuit, etc., can, by using this Flour, serve them, from the first application, to be always RELIABLE, and is not effected by hot or cold weather. It does not require Yeast Powders, Saleratus, Cream Tartar, Saleratus, Soda or salt, and ONLY HALF the usual quantity of shortening, and water, cold sweet milk is used, still less shortening is needed.

ONE-FOURTH less of this flour is required to produce a like amount of bread, to that made in the ordinary manner, which item alone will about PAY THE PRICE charged for adding the self rising ingredients.

IT IS EXCELLENT FOR COOKS FOR CAKES, and all kinds of pastry, requiring not more than TWO-THIRDS the usual amount of butter and eggs. THIS FLOUR IS ALSO AN ADDITION for Batter Cakes, Waffles, Puddings, the dumplings for Chicken Pie, etc., etc.

And is a Saving of from $6 to $8 per Barrell to the Consumer.

This article has met with the most wonderful success. A large proportion of the citizens of Memphis and surrounding country are now using it; but I am confident there are many others who would avail themselves of its advantages were they satisfied proving the HEALTHFULNESS, SUPERIORITY, and CHEAPNESS.

To convince such of these facts, I have obtained a large number of certificates from well and favorably known citizens and others, a few of which I give below. One trial will convince the most incredulous that it is to their advantage to use this Flour, as an ECONOMY and SATISFACTION in every respect.

RECOMMENDATIONS:

MEMPHIS, TENN., August 3, 1865.

I have used Morgan's Self Rising Flour, and find it to be a most excellent article. I have also examined the ingredients which produce its self rising properties, and find them to be not only innocent, but important to perfect nutrition. I can freely recommend it as most healthful and desirable flour, producing an article of bread superior to that made in the ordinary manner.

JNO. R. FRAYSER, M. D.

We fully concur in the above, having examined the ingredients.

C. L. WILCOX, M. D.
R. F. BROWN, M. D.

I have examined the ingredients and pronounce them innocent, and the bread superior.

R. C. MALONE, M. D.

MEMPHIS, TENN., August 21, 1865.

I have used Morgan's Self Rising Flour, and examined the ingredients. It is all that it claims for it, and is entirely harmless to all sick or well, and is especially adapted as a diet for invalids and convalescents, the materials supplying in these cases, healthful and much needed nutriment.

J. W. LAIRDEET, M. D.

I will prepare any barrel of flour sent to me, or will furnish any quantity of flour ordered, but for my own sales I use none but the very best, of Harrison's brand.

The bread and biscuit made from this flour can be relied on as well warm as cold, without the least inconvenience to the weak and dyspeptic stomach, and has been known to greatly benefit such cases.

Put up in 6, 12, 24, and 48 pound pa kages, Half Barrels and Barrels.

This flour will be found on sale in packages at all first class family groceries in the city, and at wholesale at the manufactory, 48 Main street, 7 Gayoso South of Jessie, Memphis, Tenn.

NEW SKIRT.

FOR 1866.

THE GREAT INVENTION OF THE AGE.

J. W. Bradley's

Celebrated Patent

DUPLEX ELLIPTIC

(Or double Steel Spring)

SKIRT.

WEBB'S, HADLEY & CARY,
Sole Proprietors and Manufacturers, 37 Chambers and 79 and 81 Reade street,
NEW YORK.

This invention consists of Duplex (or two) Elliptic Pure Refined Steel springs, tempered, annealed, flexible and strongly together, edge to edge, making the tough est, most flexible, elastic and durable spring ever made. They will not bend or break, like the single Springs, and consequently preserve their perfect and beautiful shape more than twice as long as any Single Spring Skirt that ever has or can be made.

The wonderful flexibility and great comfort and pleasure to any lady wearing the Duplex Elliptic skirt will be appreciated, particularly in all crowded assemblies, opera, carriages, railroad cars, church pews, and dancing at promenade and home dress, as the skirt can be folded when in use to occupy a small place as easily and conveniently as a Gored Skirt.

A lady having enjoyed the pleasure, comfort and great convenience of wearing the Duplex Elliptic Steel Spring Skirt for a single day will never afterwards willingly dispense with their use. For children, misses and young ladies they are superior to all others.

The hoops are covered with two ply double twisted thread and will wear twice as long as the single yarn covering which is used on all single steel springs. The three different rows on every skirt are also double steel, and prevent or double cords to prevent the hoops from wearing off the cords when dragging down stairs, dance hops, etc., etc., which they are constantly subject to when in use.

All are made of the new and elegant corded tapes, and are the best and most durable giving to the wearer the most graceful and perfect shape possible, and are pronounced by the fairest most desirable, comfortable and economical dress or skirt.

For sale in all first class stores, Wholesale and Retail, in the city, and throughout the United States and Canadas, Havana, the Cuba, Mexico, South America, and the West Indies.
