FINANCIAL.

There was nothing occurring in Madison street to-day to distinguish it from the two or three days before. Exchange was in fair but not heavy supply at ¼@¾ discount on New York and the East, and on New Orleans; selling at par on all points. Very little was doing in gold at 113@113¼. For city currency bonds 52 was offered, but we heard of no sale. There was a sale of one thousand State warrants at 90; one thousand 5-20s, 1865, at 112¾; twelve hundred Alcorn money at 92. The Nashville Banner of Friday quotes as follows: Controller's warrants 66; Memphis and Charleston railroad stock 28; Bank of West Tennessee money 30; Bank of Shelbyville money 85; Bank of Tennessee, old 91@93, new 38@43, post notes 35@40.

COTTON.

Saturday is usually a day for shipping cotton bought, or buying what is wanted to round off former purchases. Most of the business done to-day was of this character, and the total sales did not amount to over 1000 bales. The New York dispatches reported a case sold at 19c, Liverpool firm at 9¾d, New Orleans quiet at 18½c. Middling cottons and above were again eagerly inquired for, but very little could be found. Rates remained generally unchanged, but fine cottons in lots would have probably commanded higher prices if they could have been found; middling are quote higher.

There is much discussion just now—and discussion is always—upon the subject of grades. For want of uniformity of classification, any comparison of our markets with those of other markets, and with our own markets of past years, is becoming impossible. New York, Liverpool and New Orleans all quote middling cotton—unless our middling cotton in Memphis bears a known relation to the middlings of these places, telegrams of their markets will be to us meaningless hieroglyphics. "My middling" is assuming the place of middling, and every operator's "my middling" is what he considers it expedient to make it. If our cotton factors do not know how to grade their cotton when they have sampled it, but must find out the grade or price from parties they invite to examine their tables, the existing confusion must be submitted to as inevitable; for if the uncertainty could be only brought to consider that his middling is low middling, there is a chance of buying it at the low middling price. This difficulty has existed before now, and to settle it there were deposited, in the Chamber of Commerce, samples, which officially decide which is middling and other grades of cotton, and when "my middling" is not the Chamber of Commerce middling it is not, in Memphis, middling at all. We must have a standard grade, and the Chamber of Commerce supplies it, and, in Memphis, that is the authority. When cotton is shipped away, what was middling on the seller's table in Memphis, may be invoiced as low middling when sent to Providence, or strict low middling when shipped to Boston, so as to agree with whatever mode of classification may be adopted in those markets, but in Memphis we must class according to the authorized samples kept for the purpose in the Chamber of Commerce, which samples have been adopted and recognized relative to the grades of New York, Liverpool and New Orleans. The sooner the idea is abandoned that cotton can be got cheaper by calling strict middling "my middling," than by calling it by the name recognized authoritatively by a committee of buyers and sellers appointed for the purpose, the better for all business purposes.

GENERAL MARKET.

This day has been a dull time in Memphis. Cold and frost were unfavorable to bush ess, and the country seems to have first-class markets are not calculated to help it for the moment. Corn was no stronger than yesterday; sales were made at 60c, but later in the day offers at 59c were plentiful. Oats were wanting in strength—a lot of inferior but sound sold at 35c. Hay is very plet, ithi sale at $25 was asking for choice on the landing. Bran, notwithstanding strong effort to advance the price, sold at $22. Cornmeal remains weak, with a very moderate demand. Flour is held stiffer by some operators, on the expectation that the cold weather will prevent the events; if the weather should change to rain, the reverse process may be looked for. Butter exhibits no change; we saw choice roll sold at 22c. Eggs were selling at 30c, at which rate the market was wanting in firmness. We saw Irish Potatoes go off briskly at old rate in good request and strong. Dressed Hogs are selling at former quotations. Geese will bring no better than $7 50. Turkeys are firm at $12@20, the higher priced are the most sought for. Hogs are in good request for pork, and large are not wanted. Apples are active at $3@5; superior bellflowers would command handsome, but these are none in the market. For really good Potatoes $3 is readily paid. Onions are becoming scarce; for choice $3 is the established rate. Cabbage is in plenty, and some of the last arrivals are touched a little with frost, and, according to quality, they can be had all the way from $6 50@7 50. In Bacon there is nothing new; it is scarce in most articles, and some articles—clear sides, for instance—are out of the market. Lard most is not plentiful; rates remain as quoted yesterday and given in the table below. The weather favors deer, birds, fish and oysters, and the demand is good.

Quotations for feed are for round lots on the landing unless otherwise expressed.

MONETARY AND FINANCIAL MATTERS
