COTTON FROM FIVE STATES.

Enterprise, Experience, and Success

Since the war, the great staple business of Memphis, cotton, has changed in many important respects. Under the present impulse of the spirit of enterprise, skill, enterprise, and capital is rapidly and the world astonished at the ideas of the cotton dealers or half a dozen years ago, stranded as we have often been with the change—a change that has become more pronounced every year—our commercial relations. A little incident came under our observation yesterday at Means, Allard & Coffin's cotton rooms, No. 274 Front street. There lie the samples for the capacity of Arnold's Mississippi cotton of every quality of the season as there, opinion and river-bottom. The most of the samples which each sample was scrupulously assorted in size, and covered in a block in its outlines, was the first striking change, from the old way of doing business. Heretofore the samples offered were thrown together in a promiscuous heap, and not seldom in all directions, for like all the true artists, he is too much a master of his own feeling to give way under such depressing surroundings. Our hair and beard of the long ago are quite good and the play was very much enjoyed. To-night Mr. Pope takes a benefit which we hope to see liberally patronized.

The Concert.

We call particular attention to the programme for the grand promenade concert by Arnold's band at the Exposition building this evening. It will charm the ear of the lover of music, and will have the effect of drawing as many persons to the great palace of industry as it can possibly for. The capacity of Arnold's band for correct interpretation of the best music is well known, and we can safely aver that they will avail themselves of the opportunity this presented to prove themselves not inferior to any band in the Union.

The Bethel Concert.

We are pleased to state that the managers of the Memphis Bethel, in compliance with the urgent request of the public, will repeat the concert at the Greenlaw opera-house to-morrow night. This entertainment promises to surpass in every respect the previous one, which proved so unexpectedly agreeable and interesting to all who attended. The music for which this entertainment is given merits a full house. The price of admission is but two fifty-five cents.

LOCAL PARAGRAPHS.

—Mr. W. J. Doyle sends us the following: "In your issue of the thirteenth appears a card from Mr. John J. Duffy, declining a nomination as representative on ticket No. 2, as it appeared in your issue of the day previous. The executive committee of the People's Reform and Workingmen's party feel deeply obliged to Mr. Duffy for the manly way in which he expresses himself upon one of the great issues of the hour, and particularly in the subject of which shall be our United States senator. That party his card we can heartily indorse."

—Mrs. Halligan, who lives in St. Louis, left in a city hack in search of her boy, who, she thinks, came to Memphis about a week ago on one of the packets. The boy's name is Tommy Halligan, aged about sixteen years, dark brown hair, fair complexion, light blue eyes, about five feet five inches in height, rather good-looking; were when he left full suit of dark tweed clothes, rather small for him (but season's suit), dark straw hat with straight brim, low crown. Any one who knows the whereabouts of Tommy will relieve an anxious mother's mind by leaving information at this office, or at the Adams-street stationhouse.

PERSONAL.

DR. P. B. FORD, of Phillips county, Arkansas, and Miss Mollie May Strange, daughter of our esteemed fellow-citizen, Major J. P. Strange, were united in holy wedlock day. We tender the newly wedded pair our sincere congratulations, and join in the wish of numerous friends for their future happiness.

MR. J. S. HALL and Miss Carrie Essig, both of this city, were married last evening at the residence of the bride's father by Rev. Father Kelley. After the ceremony and be tional congratulations the guests partook of a sumptuous supper and then adjourned to the merry dance, which lasted until quite a late hour ere they bid adieu to the happy pair, with renewed wishes for their future joy in life.

DR. R. G. HENNING and Miss Neelie L. Frayser, youngest daughter of Dr. J. R. Frayser, were married at the residence of the bride's father in this city, yesterday morning, Rev. Dr. James W. Knott being the officiating minister. After receiving the sincere congratulations of relations and friends, the bride and groom took the Louisville train for an extended eastern tour. We hope their future will be marked by unalloyed joy, and that each day of their married life may unfold fewer and more beautiful blossoms of happiness and love with which to garland their hearts. Then have our congratulations.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Theater.

We regret that there was not a better house at the Theater last night to witness Mr. Pope's excellent rendition of "Guillaume." Despite the small attendance Mr. Pope held his own, and not one in all delighted, for like all the true artists, he is too much a master of his own feelings to give way under such depressing surroundings. Our hair and beard of the long ago are quite good and the play was very much enjoyed. To-night Mr. Pope takes a benefit which we hope to see liberally patronized.

THE EXPOSITION.

A Great Occasion for Memphis—Grand and Imposing Procession—Immense Concourse of People.

All the Mechanical and Manufacturing Industries Represented—Military Companies in Line.

King Cotton Conspicuous—Benevolent Societies Out in Force—City and Foreign Municipal Authorities.

Line of March—Arrival at the Palace of Industry—Opening Ceremonies—Address by Judge T. W. Brown.

The Building as it Appears Now—Displays Made—The First Occupants—Display at Night—Arnold's Band.

In accordance with the published programme, by nine o'clock the different civic organizations, military companies, benevolent societies, fire department, etc., commenced assembling at the appointed rendezvous on Second street near Market square, for the purpose of forming the grand procession. From Court street to Market square the sidewalks of Second street were lined with people who were attentively engaged in looking at the preparations being made for the procession. In the different wagons, each representing some mechanical, industrial or mercantile interest, passed along, the crowd became all the more anxious to see the procession start. Owing to the murky sky, which threatened rain, the forma ion of the procession was necessarily delayed, and

This closed the procession which stretched two miles in length, reaching from Adams to Beale, thence to Second, thence to Jefferson.

SPECIAL FEATURES OF THE PROCESSION.

Main street from Winchester to Beale, and Second street thence to Jefferson, was one unbroken line of people. Every window and balcony on the above thoroughfares was crowded with men, women and children, while the sidewalks for a long distance from the reach were thronged with crowds of interested observers. In fact, the turn-out yesterday was one of the grandest that Memphis has seen for a long while, the immense outpouring being in number like that of a portion Memphis eye from the presence of scams, leaves, and dirt, where only the snowy down of the cotton plant should be visible. On Messrs. Dillard & Coffin's tables no such showy spectacle was seen; the finest cotton samples were noble specimens of what the cotton plant, well tended to, can produce. The samples were all of good staple, carefully gathered, ginned, and baled. On lifting up those and their samples, it was agreeable to observe that no pains had been spared in the paper beneath; a gratifying improvement on the dirty samples of two years ago. Cotton from five States, the latter side covered with samples—what an amount of toil, energy, and capital is suggested! What a wide dominion represented—what travel and perseverence—lavish outlay of thousands, three little downy block represented! The backbone is in his display of Means, Dillard & Coffin's enterprise and far-reaching business operations—a proof of the vigor and boldness of the spirit which the merchants of Memphis are carrying on their important and celebrated commercial transactions. We have accustomed, daily, to pass carelessly the cotton bale in its rough brown jacket, but a bale hoop seen and heard from Dallas or Fort Dillard & Coffin's, awakens thought, and shows us the extent, and weight, and skill of combination, that business tact and is involved in the valuable commerce carried on with the world, from the cotton houses of our Memphis merchants.

FACTS WORTH KNOWING.

During a recent trial or comparison of ordinary baking powders in New York, with Dooley's Yeast Powders, it was clearly conclusively that better results were attained with from one-half to two-thirds the quantity of the latter, than with any other in market. The secret of the success lies in the care with which Dooley's Yeast Powder is prepared, and its entire freedom from substances that are injurious to the system.

We challenge comparison at any and all times. The verdict of the consumer is always in our favor. For sale by all grocers.
