THERE'S A MORAL IN THIS

Steve O'Donnell, a fireman on the steamer Breenbrary, owned by the Tropical Fruit Company, reported to the Boston agent of the firemen's union that his hand was broken when three days from Philadelphia, for Port Limon. In Port Limon he asked the captain to get a doctor to examine his hand, and the captain said he had no time, although the ship lay there for nine hours.

On arrival in Boston he again asked for a doctor, and after a while he got one. The doctor said the man's hand was broken, and he would have to undergo an operation. The hospital authorities would not take him in till they had someone to guarantee to pay $1 a day so long as he was under treatment.

He told the captain and also the British consul, and both these gentlemen told him to sign clear and he would have enough money to pay his own expenses, as the fruit company never paid any compensation to anyone that got hurt on their ships.

But when the firemen's union spoke to them they sang another song and put the man in the hospital for eight days, and had a boarding house ready for him when he came out. The man was advised not to settle for less than $2,000, but he got cold feet, and when asked what he would take in compensation, he made a break and killed his own case by saying he would settle for $600. Of course, the agent could not fight for any more.

Finally the company went for him and said they would give him $400 in settlement. He was again advised not to take it. The company, raised it another hundred, and finally, after some strong arguments on both sides, the firemen received $556.33.

The company has to pay for the man's treatment in the hospital, three weeks' board bill, and any other expenses incurred previous to the final settlement, which was signed on June 14. The man's hand will be some time before it is well.

After he settled he joined the union and he may be a good union man, as he knows he would only have got his wages earned while on the ship if it had not been for the firemen's union taking up his case. The firemen's union is always ready and willing to help not only its own members, but any bona fide marine fireman who has got any idea of unionism in his head.

PARISIAN POLICE TAKE LEAF FROM PHILA'S BOOK

PARIS, July 29.—During the recent strike disturbances in Paris a workman, Cler, was brutally assaulted by the police and died as a result of his injuries.

His funeral was the scene of a great demonstration on the part of the Parisian working class.

On leaving the cemetery the demonstrators formed in a procession and marched back to the city at the Flandre gate, singing the "International." The police, horse and foot, were ambushed at this gate and made a sudden charge with drawn swords on the crowd of men, women and children.

The order to disperse was given, but the charge followed immediately on the signal, before the crowd had time to obey the order. The police struck savagely with bared swords and whosoever stood in the way was struck.

The unmounted police followed their victims into the houses, into the cafes and stores along the boulevard, striking down indiscriminately. A reporter of L'Humanite, Laguey, remonstrated with the chief of police. He was immediately set upon by two aids and dragged to prison.

THE SYMPTOMS.

When you wander home about half-past four,
The morning after the night before,
And you search in vain for your own front door,
You've been drinking.

When just about dawn you come rolling back
From some swell cafe in a night-owl
hag;
When your hat fits tight and your clothes are slack,
You're soured.

When your heels hit hard and your head feels queer,
And your thoughts rise up like the foam on beer;
When your friends look sad and talk severe,
You're potted.

When your wit is short and your talk is long,
When you whoop and yell at some crazy song;
When your legs are weak and your breath is strong,
You've slipped off the water-wagon.

When they carry you home at half-past five,
When to stand alone in vain you strive;
When you feel more dead than you do alive,
You're drunk, by heck, you're drunk.

TROLLEY CAR HITS AUTO; TWO KILLED OUTRIGHT

DECATUR, Ill., July 27.—Two persons were killed outright at Niantic Ill., this morning when an interurban trolley car struck an automobile containing prominent central Illinois people.

The dead, J. P. Farris, Miss Nelson, Mansfield, a wealthy grain dealer, is expected to die.

Nelson Mansfield, a wealthy grain dealer, is expected to die. Bert Farris, son of J. P. Farris was severely injured.

MUTINY STORY DENIED.

BERLIN, July 27.—It was officially denied today that a mutiny growing out of dissatisfaction with the news had occurred on the German liner cruiser Bluecher during the cruise to Norway, as was reported in a dispatch from Kiel to the Vorwaerter.

PARIS BANK CLERKS THREATEN TO STRIKE

PARIS, July 29.—Bank and bureau employees are agitating for higher pay. They threaten an "open mouth" strike, which consists of betraying secrets of the profession. An appeal they have issued states that industry and commerce are on the road to ruin. Owing to the exodus of French capital by financial establishments, which to December 31, 1908, sent abroad thirty-two milliards of francs.

THE POWER OF WEALTH.

By Rev. Charles Stetzie.
The wealth of the United States amounts to about $125,000,000,000. This is nearly twice as much as the wealth of Great Britain and Ireland, two and a half as much as that of France and Germany, more than three times as great as the wealth of Russia and about six times as much as that of Austro-Hungary. The wealth per capita in the United States is approximately $1,400. As a matter of fact, however, this great wealth is very unevenly distributed.

It is difficult to secure accurate figures, but it is said by financial experts that one per cent of the families hold but one-eighth of the national wealth. It is said that while not the absolute owners, there is within the control of a score of men an estimated sum amounting to over $20,000,000,000. This is an amount greater than the wealth of Austro-Hungary, the combined wealth of Italy and Belgium and one-quarter greater than the combined wealth of Spain, Portugal, Switzerland and the Netherlands. It is impossible, of course, to estimate the actual wealth of the richest man in the United States, but his real influence in the United States is very much in excess of the amount of money that he absolutely owns.

The stocks of the railroad companies of the United States are held by about 1,000,000 persons, but a mere handful of men control the property owned by these million stockholders. The great railroad systems of the United States have been reduced to a few groups by means of consolidation and reconsolidation. Ten of these groups comprise three-fourths of all the railroad lines in the country, with a mileage of 200,000, and with a combined capitalization of approximately $9,000,000,000. It is not inconceivable that through a process of reconsolidation, the railroads of the United States will be merged into a single monster corporation, even though laws may be formed seeking to prevent such consolidation, for it is a well-known fact that some of the cleverest brains of the country are at work to circumvent such laws.

The Standard Oil company controls 117 subsidiary companies with a combined capitalization of $238,301,409. Were the real market value of this combined capitalization given, it would exceed three-quarters of a billions dollars. It is well known that in addition to the above, mining, railway, franchise, land, banking, transmission and manufacturing corporations are owned and controlled either by the Standard Oil company or its chief stockholders. These equal many times the value of the Standard Oil company itself.

When one thinks of the vast army of men employed by the Standard Oil company, by the United States Steel corporation, by the great mining and railroad companies, there must come a realization of the tremendous power of these corporations over the lives and destinies of men, women and children. It is true that the corporation does not usually systematically set itself out to destroy the liberty of the individual workman nor take away his chances of making a living, but frequently by the manipulation of the markets on the part of unscrupulous stockholders, these things actually happen.

This concentration of power must lead to the close organization of workers, for only as the workmen themselves organize will they be in a position to present a united front against the unjust conditions which may be imposed upon them.

THE UNION CARD.

We were crowded in a box car
Not a soul could bear to sleep;
It was freezing on the outside,
And the snow was two-feet deep.
When along came a brakeman,
And shouted to his pard:
"Make all them fellows unload
That hasn't got a card."

We rolled into the roundhouse,
And wanted to get warm;
We thought for us to go inside,
That'd do no harm.
Then we met a burly fellow
Who sized us up real hard:
Then he gently whispered in my ear,
"Have you fellows got a card?"

We were walking through the city—
Through the snow, and slush and sleet—
And met a big policeman,
A-strolling on his beat.
He stared at us as if he'd
And our weary souls he jarred.
For he said: "Who be you bums—
Have you got a Union Card?"

All along life's rugged journey,
Should we meet with friend or foe,
It is best to have the goods in print,
Then everyone will know
That we stand for human freedom,
And with conscience unmarred,
We can go on our way rejoicing,
Carrying a Union Card.

Shout it out among the nations,
In summer's heat and wintry gale,
Till the angels join the chorus
Over in the heavenly vale,
That when Gabriel blows his trumpet,
They will find the gates are barred,
Unless they can present St. Peter
With a paid-up Union Card.

And Why?

Bill, the coal wagon teamster, sat on a box half way up the steep hill and his team stood at the curb. Pounding up the hill is a heart-breaking feat for a team with a heavy haul, and teamsters stop half way up these days and rest their horses and themselves.

"There is a fight on," said the teamster, "for summer vacations for horses, but has anyone said anything about vacations for teamsters? No, no one has said anything. Tom and Bill, them's my horses, are going to the country for two weeks, but I, Bill, the driver, must keep on working if I want to eat.

"The team will keep on eating whether it works or not, because if the horses would starve to death there would be a loss of about $500. "There are other teamsters. It pays to give a horse a vacation, but it doesn't pay to give a driver one. This is a funny world.

Men and Horses.
"Men are cheaper than horses," philosophized the driver. "Not that Bill and Tom don't need vacations. They have worked hard. But so have I. When Bill and Tom are out in pasture, I will keep on driving, and if I work myself sick my pay ends. Sometimes I think I would like to change places with Bill, my horse. "I have been driving for fifteen years, and never had a vacation. I have had Bill two years and he has had two vacations. Bill has come back a better horse each time. Maybe I'd be a better teamster."

"Yes," said Bill, the teamster, "I daren't complain, either. If I would I would get a vacation all right—for good and without pay."

THE OFFIS BOY SEZ:
My pay check ain't as bi gas th' foreman's, but I'm thinkin' I earn more of it.

My chum tells me his boss don't say "goodnight" half as nice as he says "good mornin'."

When I can't stick up fr th' man that hands me th' envelope, I'll be ashamed t' take it any more.

I don't never expect t' git so interested in my work that I'll forget t' ask fr th' wages I think I'm earnin'.

After I give my boss eight hours good work I ain't barred from giving him a thought or two when I'm on my own time.

Th' boss kin write pay checks with a smile, but I notice that he often looks mighty peaked when he is street 'n' up th' stubs.

Th' other day a woman in th' street car turned up her nose at me 'cause my face was dirty an' I had my overalls on. That was a couple of hours after th' boss sent me t' her husband t' collect a bill and he told me t' call the first o' th' month.

It didn't take me long to learn that a lot of feller sthat kiek against the union rule fr apprentices don't do it because they are anxious fr boys t' get a chance t' learn trades, but because they wan t' have a chance t' get a lot of kids t' do th' work of full grown men on kids' pay.

THEY'RE GOOD READING.
Among the magazines of national reputation which disport themselves in riots of colors each month on the news stands, which are printed in sanitary workshops, where workmen toil for only eight hours a day for a living wage—in other words which are union made—are The American, Cosmopolitan, Everybody's, Forest and Stream, Hampton's, Leslie's Weekly, Collier's Weekly, McClure's, Scrap Book, Scribner's, Show World, Smart Set, Young's, Munsey and Uncle Remus's.

According to a decision by the board of park commissioners all band concerts in Milwaukee parks this summer will be furnished by union musicians. The union will be held responsible for the carrying out of the schedule after it has been accepted by the board.

The Everett, Wash., laundry strike lasted one week. The girls promised to start a union laundry of their own and began soliciting. The "open" shop bosses became panic-stricken. They capitulated without demanding anything. The increase went, so did the recognition of the union.
