MARGARET ANGLIN

As Helena in "The Awakening of Helena Richter."

Jos. Howard in "The Goddess of Liberty" at the Lyceum, Sept. 11 and 12.

AT THE THEATERS.

Clyde Fitch's masterpiece, "The City," which ran all last season at the Lyric Theater, New York, comes to the Lyceum Theater Sept. 15, 16 and 17, with matinee Saturday the 17th.

Years ago, before his death, it was said of Clyde Fitch that he could not write a man's play. "The City" is his answer.

With a list of fifty odd plays and adaptations to his credit, this truly genuine American playwright turned a new page when he penned the stirring blood-and-bone story of the little family of Middleburg, N. Y., which, upon the death of the venerable head, yielded to the call of the city. Had "The City" been produced a century ago, it would now be regarded as one of the classic tragedies of the stage. But it is more generously offered as a modern drama.

So frequently are New York critics quoted that the frequent repetition must raise the question of doubt as tural son thereupon decides to remove to New York, thus listening to the call of the city. Believing it is for the best interests of his father's memory, he engages Hancock as his private secretary. The second act shows the family ensconced in a beautiful home on Fifth avenue. Rand having entered politics, he is on the eve of being nominated for governor when he makes a second discovery which proves even more dramatic and tragic than that of the previous act. Hancock—crook, dope fiend—is in love with Cleo's Rand, and when taken to task by his employer he confesses that they are married.

It was the desire of Mr. Fitch that the finish of his story should never be made known, that is, in advance of the first performance, and the same wish has actuated the Shuberts in withholding the finale of the second act. Suffice it is to say, Mr. Fitch has sounded the deepest depth of tragedy.

The play has been staged with all of those little attentions to detail which characterize the Fitch productions.

JOS. E. HOWARD,

to the authenticity of the quoted excerpts. In the case of "The City" it is only necessary to refer to the new accounts of the demonstration which followed the fall of the curtain upon the tragic scene of the second act, when the play was first produced at the Lyric. Not for eighteen years had New York witnessed such an ovation. Women fainted, men shrieked—the whole audience rose with one accord to cheer the masterful conception of the dead author and the wonderful setting of the company. It seems but simple justice to the late Clyde Fitch to record these facts.

The story is simple. The characters in this human drama are the members of the family of George Rand, a banker of Middleburg, N. Y., they being father, mother and three children, George, Theresa and Cleo. The banker is the father of an illegitimate child, George Hancock, knowing that he has something of the financier, bleeds him upon one occasion. The first scene of the play is set in the Rand family at Middleburg, the act culminates in the discovery of the son, Rand, Jr., that Hancock, an illegitimate child of his father's, revelation kills the banker.

LABOR PARTY FACES CRISIS IN ENGLAND

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The joint board representing the general federation of the British trades unions has determined to fight for the political life of the Labor party whose campaign funds are threatened with extinction by the Osborne judgment. This throttling decision prevents the unions from using their funds for parliamentary purposes.

Presided over by Mr. Shackleton, M. P., the joint board's proceedings were secret in the matter of detail but the actual results of the deliberations were given out in a report which, after charging that the Osborne judgment has invaded the rights the trades unions have possessed for fifty years, demands that these rights be restored.

Continuing the report outlines the proposed plan of campaign as follows: "The board regrets the decision of the government not to grant facilities for the consideration of the bill introduced during the present session to carry out this object, nor ever to give a definite guarantee to provide for the payment of members' and returning officers' expenses, and having regard to the injustice of the decision and of the urgency of the matter, the board calls upon all affiliated organizations, in view of the misrepresentations of the position which have appeared in the press:

- (1) To co-operate in enlightening public opinion on the issue.
- (2) To approach their parliamentary representatives on the subject and urge their members to make this a test question at all elections.
- (3) To urge their members to give a definite guarantee to provide for the payment of members' and returning officers' expenses, and having regard to the injustice of the decision and of the urgency of the matter, the board calls upon all affiliated organizations, in view of the misrepresentations of the position which have appeared in the press:

COAL BARONS HATE PEACEFUL STEIKERS

DENVER, Col., Sept. 9.—The fifth month of the peaceful strike in the northern fields of Colorado has closed with a remarkable record—attested to by the blotters of the police and justice courts—showing a general decrease of drunkenness and crime as compared with previous periods throughout the mining camps.

In the six camps 2,500 members of the United Mine Workers of America are out for an increase in pay and a shorter working day. The operators announce that they will never recognize the union and have been importing gun-men to Lafayette, the headquarters of Frank Smith, president of the district.

In Louisville, where a majority of the merchants are favoring the side of the strikers, all is as peaceful as a county church yard, while in Lafayette, where the business men have clamored for troops and encouraged the importation of armed thugs, there are signs of an impending clash with the company's Pinkertons.

Sheriff M. C. Capps of Boulder, is being bitterly assailed by the operators who assert that he is "favoring" the men.

"I am to give each side an even break," quietly replies the sheriff with a southern accent and a square chin. Rumors are plentiful that many of the small operators are on their last legs and would sign up with the union if they dared.

MEN LAID OFF—STRIKE.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Sept. 9.—Three hundred molders and core-makers employed at the General Electric company went on a strike here Wednesday morning as the result, they say, of the company sending a large portion of the work to be done to other cities, necessitating the laying off of many of the employees here.

SYRACUSE ORGANIZES EIGHT-HOUR LEAGUE

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 9.—An eight-hour league, consisting of representatives from almost every union in the city, was organized here recently.

object of the organization is to bring about an eight-hour day for Syracuse, for the purpose of which a vigorous campaign is to be started at once.

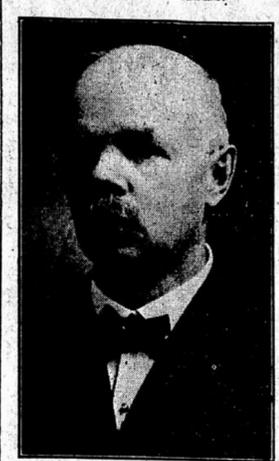

Edward V. Wood, business agent of the Machinists' Union, is the leader of the movement. The league has representatives from the following unions: Meat Cutters and Butchers Workers' Union, Boot and Shoe Workers, Horsemen, Machinists, Pressmen, Retail Clerks, Pattern Makers, Molders, Beer Drivers, Malsters and four Garment Workers' Unions.

In order to arouse the interest of the general public in the movement small buttons, bearing the words, "Eight hours for Syracuse," were distributed.

Aside from the button, the leaders in the movement have decided upon a definite plan of campaign, which will consist in bringing the matter before the public in as many different ways as possible. Literature on the subject has been obtained and is ready for distribution and at future meetings speakers will seek to keep alive enthusiasm in the movement.

WILLIAM J. BATES.

Candidate for Republican Re-Nomination for Sheriff.

One of the best officers in the county, and a man who believes in the strict performance of his duty at all times and under all circumstances, is Sheriff Wm. J. Bates, who was elected to that important and responsible office in 1904. Since his election as sheriff he has made a most excellent record, and has well justified the confidence of his friends in electing him to that position. He is an active, energetic official, who takes a deep interest in the affairs of his office, and who keeps abreast of all improvements in the methods of dealing with prisoners. He is careful and economical in the administration of the office, and has won the esteem of all classes in his charge, and his humanitarian methods. He does not look upon a man who may have been convicted of violation of the law as being outside the pale of kindness and consideration, and believes that they are entitled to be thus treated.

Sheriff Bates is a fearless champion of law and order, and a man who insists upon the strictest business methods and necessary discipline amongst his subordinates, although he is not a believer in unnecessary red tape and by no means a martinet and is held in the highest esteem by the subordinates in his office and by all with whom his business brings him into close touch. He holds the interests of the public as of first importance, and all who have dealings with his office may be assured that they will receive the most courteous treatment, and that every effort will be made to provide them with any information they may seek, or to give them any assistance they may ask.

Mr. Bates is a first-class officer, and stands high in the county.

He is a candidate for the Republican nomination, and solicits the votes of the citizens of St. Louis county.
