ELECTION'S COMING!

Says Wait Mason.
I am the blithe and cheerful skato who always has to pay the freight. I labor in the heat and dirt, and wear a faded flannel shirt, and eat my dinner from a pail, and pick my molars with a nail, and use my whiskers, if I'd brush from my chin the corn meal mush. And well dressed sports come up and say: "Wie gets my worthy friend, good day. We run for office, and we hope that you will hearken to our dope, and help elect us on that day when all the voters put up hay. And if we win we'll lift the tax that's burdening the workers' backs. It is our sweetest hope and dream, to fill with mince pie and ice cream, and codfish balls and pickled whale, the laborer's big dinner pail. Oh, sturdy toiler, vote for us, and we will raise the blindest fuss, and put up forty kinds of fights, until we've won your rights." I've listened to this sort of bunc, they've loaded me with fairy junk, year after year since I was young; what working man has not been stung? I've voted for so many guys who promised that they'd help me rise to heights of affluence and ease. Just pass my dinner bucket, please. See what's inside—a naked bone, some liver and a slab of pone.

The Barefoot Chorus with Harry Bulger in "The Flirting Princess."

AT THE THEATERS.

The things that "stand forth" in Harry Bulger's presentation of Mort H. Singer's "The Flirting Princess," coming to the Lyceum next Sunday and Monday, with a special matinee Sunday, are the novelties, some of them of a very dramatic nature. The tuneful music ever found in Mort Singer's productions abounds from overture to finale and it runs through the piece in most entertaining bewilderment and fashion. The plot is strong enough to make one think and the dialogue is of the usual order so common to good musical farces.

Still "The Flirting Princess" is something out of the ordinary. It is full of delightful features and shines resplendently as a costume and beauty show. In fact the costumes are ravishingly beautiful and have seldom been outdone in any of Mr. Singer's former productions. The chorus and dancing girls, whether they be the stately like beauties or the dainty broilers look like models in face and form.

Two startling features connected with "The Flirting Princess" are the "vampire" and "apache" dances. The first named dance in the first act is so wild, weird and dreamy that it falls upon the spectator as a hideous nightmare albeit its beauty chains the senses. It is as Kipling wrote it and Philip Burne-Jones transferred it to canvas.

The "apache" dance as rendered by Charles Morgan and Maude Emery is a very realistic study of the denizens of the underworld of Paris, who are so brutal to their paramours in crime.

Surprise after surprise makes its appearance in the tuneful comedy, "A Broken Idol," which comes to the Lyceum Oct. 27, 28, and 29. Among the many melodies the following are mostly noticeable, "The Human Dragon," "The World's Merry Go Round," "Living Rose Bushes," and the sensation of them all, "The Great Balloon Ascension." The prima donna actually sails through the audience so close that she can shake hands with her friends. The book of this successful comedy is by Hal Stephens, lyrics and music by Williams and Van Alstyne. The company of 50 engaged is up to the Whitney standard. The production is finished in every detail, and its successful run of eight months in Chicago, seven months in Boston and six months in New York stamps it the musical comedy event of 1910-1911.

Among the coke producing states Pennsylvania ranks first and West Virginia second.

STATE SUFFRAGISTS TO CONVENE IN MILL CITY

The annual state convention of the Minnesota Woman Suffrage association will be held Monday and Tuesday Oct. 24 and 25, at the court house convention hall in Minneapolis. The hour for the opening session on Monday will be 10:30 a. m. Reports of officers and standing committees will be given at that session.

Addresses will be given by good speakers on both afternoons of the convention.

The principal speaker on Monday evening will be Mrs. Florence Kelly, who has done noble work for children, both in Chicago and New York, and who has served for the past four years as vice president of the national board.

Tuesday morning the election of officers for the coming year will take place.

A reception and banquet is planned for Tuesday evening at the Radisson.

"THE DIRECTOR AND US"

Director goes to meeting with his head held high,
He votes himself a million from the treasury,
Then votes to raise the price of food that you and I
So need to keep our bodies fit for drudgery.

Ere dawn we seek the workshop—tollers, you and I—
From dewy morn till dusky night we labor faithfully,
That we may buy the food for which our children cry—
The sole reward of all our toil and industry.

His wife has gone to Paris for her lingerie,
His daughter studies are in Sunny Italy,
His son is with his touring car in Hungary—
And so he votes more millions for his family.

No Paris fawns, nor touring cars, nor trips abroad,
Nor yet the humbler pleasures that our dear ones crave,
Reward our toil and ease the burden of our load—
For us the paths of labor lead but to the grave.

The seventeen locals of the Typographical union of America in Texas have voted an assessment which will aggregate $10,000, to be offered as a reward for the arrest and conviction of the dynamiters of the Los Angeles Times building. The printers in Texas declare union labor is not responsible for the crime, and to prove their faith they are willing to assist in every way possible in running down the dynamiters.
