COMPENSATION ACT, NINE OTHER LAWS IN EFFECT

Working Men and Their Families Protected Under the New Statute

CHILD LABOR GUARDED

Ten New State Laws in Operation Today

1. Workmen's compensation act. It affects 1,750,000 employes, excluding domestic servants and farmhands, and 200,000 employers, large and small alike; provides quick relief and compensation in case of death without lawsuits; provides four forms of State insurance for protection of employer; places premium on safety devices.

2. Child labor act. It affects 1,000,000 persons (estimated); prohibits children between 14 and 16 years of age working in establishments for more than 51 hours a week, including 8 hours a week in continuation schools created by the act; prohibits children under 14 working in establishments; provides for physical tests; prohibits in a large measure the employment of children on streets and in public places; provides for other minor restrictions.

3. Uniform sales act.
4. Stock transfer tax act.
5. Practice act for Common Pleas Courts.
6. Act increasing powers of second-class cities in building inspection and fire prevention.
7. Act providing for State inspection of agricultural lime.
8. Act amending anthracite and bituminous coal mining acts, to include miners in the compensation system.
9. Act providing for uniform policy contracts for fire insurance.
10. Forms for the operation of the acts of 1915 taxing corporations and of the escheat act.

Ten new State laws, passed by the last Legislature, including the workmen's compensation act and the child labor act, became effective with the New Year at midnight.

Others which will be enforced on and after today are the uniform sales act, the stock transfer act, the practice act for Common Pleas Courts and acts providing for increased powers of second-class cities relative to building inspection and five prevention; for State inspection of agricultural lime, for the amendment of anthracite and bituminous coal-mining acts so that miners shall be brought under the workmen's compensation system, and for uniform policy contracts for fire insurance, and the issuance of forms for taxation of corporations under the acts of 1915 and for the operation of the escheat act.

The workmen's compensation act and the child-labor act, the most important of the new laws, have been termed the most far-reaching and humane acts in their respective fields in the United States. They affect more persons than all of the other acts combined. They represent years of study and systematic campaigning.

FAR-REACHING BILLS.

Six separate laws cover the subject of workmen's compensation. The first is the general measure covering the subject of compensation; the second provides for its administration; the third creates a State insurance fund; the fourth and fifth relate to liability and mutual insurance, and the sixth exempts domestic servants and agricultural workers. A seventh bill, a constitutional amendment permitting a compulsory compensation act, will be presented to the 1917 Legislature, and, if passed, will be submitted to the people for approval. The present law is elective, having been made so to avoid a constitutional pitfall which prevents a compulsory compensation act.

The bill affects 1,750,000 employes and 200,000 employers, and its influence will be felt in the estimated 150,000 accidents which occur in this State every year. It provides for almost immediate compensation for injured workmen and other employes without long-drawn court proceedings, and provides relief for dependents left by deaths caused by accidents. It affects large and small employers alike, reaching out into all manufacturing trades to protect all workers except domestic servants, farmhands and persons in casual occupations.

STATE INSURANCE FUND.

One of the features of the law is that it creates a State insurance fund, which went into effect with the other sections of the bill. This was incorporated in the bill to win the co-operation of employers and to make the bill fair in the broadest sense, and is in direct line with the policy of the main act, which provides premiums for safety devices and the observance of the "safety all the time" slogan.

Four forms of liability insurance are provided by the act. Assenting employers are required to either insure in the State Workmen's Compensation Insurance Fund created by a separate act, or in an authorized stock or mutual company, or to furnish proof to the bureau of their financial ability to make compensation payments direct. Another collateral law requires that insurance policies must provide for payments direct to employes in case of employers' default or insolvency. The law permits the employer to insure any designated class or part of his employes against any particular hazard, but otherwise than this, permits no limitation of the insurer's liability. It also requires insurance companies to file with the Commissioner of Insurance their classifications of risks and premium rates, which are to be subject to his approval. This applies equally to the stock and mutual companies.

JEFFERSON CHRISTMAN

Aged Printer's Death Recalls Days of Hand Composition

Progress in the printing art and newspaper making is recalled by the death of Jefferson Christman, 78 years old, of 1617 Norris street, whose funeral will be held Monday.

For 33 years Mr. Christman was a compositor in the employ of George W. Childs, who was editor and publisher of the PUBLIC LEDGER. He was of the old school of hand compositors and retired from work when the linotype machine came into active use. He was then a man well along in years and figured he was too old to learn a new trade.

He is survived by Mrs. Margaret J. Christman, a widow, and three daughters, Mrs. H. Conaway, 1617 Norris street; Mrs. A. J. Kennedy, 1615 Norris street, and Mrs. N. M. Gilman, of Logan.

The funeral services will be held at his late home, and interment will be in West Laurel Hill Cemetery. The Union Veteran Legion, of which he was a member, will attend in a body.

Mr. Christman was born in East Vincent, Chester County.

ARE YOU A LITTLE RAINBOW? WELL, THEN, LOOK AND SEE

Almost 4000 Children Since Thanksgiving Day Have Found the Way, and the Bags of Gold Are Certainly There

Isn't it perfectly grand?

'Twas the night before Thanksgiving, in the good year 1915, when the EVENING LEDGER started Farmer Smith's Rainbow Club. We now have nearly 4000 members.

Now, what do you think of that?

Count up on your fingers the weeks since last Thanksgiving and see if you don't think the good people of Philadelphia ought not to have a happy New Year, when they think of how happy nearly 4000 children are—all trying each and every day to make some one happy.

We think by Lincoln's Birthday we ought to have 5000 members, and if the kind grown-ups will give us a little more help and we all work together, we shall have that many and more.

Every little helps.

The following is a list of those who joined Farmer Smith's Rainbow Club this week up to Friday night. Are you a "Rainbow"? If not, see page seven of tonight's EVENING LEDGER, read the club news and sign the "Sunshine pledge."
