SHIPYARD NEWS

SHIPWORKERS LAUNCH NATION-WIDE LEAGUE

Merchant Yard Employes at aHrriman Organize the First Chapter

An association to band together all the shipworkers in this country who played an important part in winning the war is being organized, to be known as the United States Association of War Shipworkers. The first chapter of the league was formed Monday night at the Merchant shipyard, Harriman.

A movement is under way to form chapters in every shipyard in the country. The object o fthe new association are:

To win recognition of the part which its members played in the successful outcome of the war.

To establish and perpetuate the proper status of its members throughout the nation and world.

To bind together its members in a spirit of brotherhood for their social betterment and common welfare.

To inculcate patriotism and to spread and sustain the doctrine of a world democracy, with universal liberty and justice to all.

Must Have Served During War

Credit for the creation of the organization is given to Robert E. Kline, former plant engineer of the Emergency Fleet Corporation at the Harriman yard.

Mr. Kline explained that he hoped the association would take its place in the country's life on equal scale with the Sons of the Revolution and the Civil and Spanish War Veterans.

All men shipworkers who served ninety days or more during the war are eligible for membership. This embraces the period between April 6, 1917, when America entered the conflict, until the day that the armistice was signed, November 11, 1918.

Each new applicant for membership shall be recommended by two members of the chapter. The application will be referred to the membership committee for investigation. At the end of thirty days the application will be turned over to an executive committee with a report. To join the Harriman chapter, each applicant must forward $2 initiation fee, with his request for admission to the organization. This sum will be returned if the applicant is not admitted. The yearly dues are $1 per year.

The initiation fee of $2 provides for a year's membership and an emblem or badge, which also costs $1.

Kline Elected President

Thirty-five shipworkers attended the initial meeting of the first chapter of the association. They elected the following officers, who will serve one year:

President, Mr. Kline; senior vice president, Charles H. Crossman; junior vice president, Jesse L. Phillips; secretary, Willard M. Peak; treasurer, Carroll H. Pratt.

Four members-at-large to serve with the officers on the executive council are Frank A. Roweroft, James R. Wells, Leon Cubberly and Arthur E. Arthur.

Appointments to various committees were made at the meeting. The publicity body consists of Leon Cubberly, W. J. Field and J. R. Wells; membership committee, R. E. Kniskern, W. E. Richardson and A. E. Doran; social committee, T. H. Henkels, F. G. Rowe and G. L. Stolfield.

All applicants who sign membership cards within the next thirty days will be considered charter members.

Spasm Nineteen — "Idiosyncrasies of the Chester Yard Marine Engineers."

John Ryan is noted for beautiful plans. Drawn so well say he his life-white hands; He's better than Gibbs and a beautiful voice John has it, he's sure, so let us rejoice.

For a "Lizzie" owner. C. Lex, of the Chester yard mechanical engineering department, has a wonderful idea of auto statistics at his finger tips. He knows all about exhausts, carburetors, and can argue on machines in a manner that rivals the best. Lex was formerly with the Merchant shipyard drawing department.

At the request of the Chester yard engine drawing department workers, the following bit of verse was written by "J. B. L." about some of the drawing department members—noisiness of clearing the throats:

"We have a young man, he is Albert O'Hare, Who frames up his eyes as the President's chair.
But his voice must be altered; we're all sure of that,
For it proved he needs a much larger sized hat.
"We have heard stories that are both bad and good,
From those that we entered our happy childhood;
But C. W. Rittenhouse has such a story, That we all believe it's true but anything.
"Hiscock, Fisher, Gibbs and Ted
Are some of the assets he lays that we
But we know we are assured that the list is
A of we're artist, by name C. T. Singer.

James Price, who does a night trick in the Harlan shipyard, Bishop is now convinced of the truth of the story about money burning a hole in a fellow's pocket. "Jimmy" on thirty-one bucks tricked through the district last night, but he spent every cent of them on for food. However "Honest" John Brown found the money and returned it without as much as deducting carfare.

Noble Grubb, assistant to Jack Gilmour at the Harlan yard, and a wonder, is varied in endeavoring to dress his "driver" so that it will look like something new. He installed a cat from the Chestnut street car for forty-five cents and when he gets the machine all dolled up it will be a splendid Bruless cooker, say his friends.

Suggestion has been made that if Clay Thompson and Frank Steinrock, of the Harlan yard, would blend their so-called motor cycle, they might have a machine distinctly resembling an automobile with four wheels. Thompson has a good set of tires and Steinrock has an engine that runs occasionally. The combination would produce a real good product to a rich but poor philanthropist.

Some unfeeling person at the Harlan yard has named the "Material Hangout" with the sign, "Thompson Quits Here." Even if there is a lot of jawing and bickering and snarling going on within it ain't right.

WOUNDED HERO SAVED COMRADE

Survivor of Famous 315th Infantry Convalescing at Camp Dix

WAS REPORTED MISSING

One Hundred and Ten Men From Keystone State on Casualty List

A. G. KELLAR
Returned to Duty

W. L. BIEGMANN
Wounded

Private Walter L. Biegmann, whose name appears in the official casualty list today for the second time, is one of the surviving heroes of the famous 315th Infantry, "Philadelphia's own."

In an earlier casualty list Private Biegmann was reported missing. Today the War Department classified him as wounded, degree undetermined.

Private Biegmann, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Biegmann, 2316 North Nineteenth street, has returned from overseas and tells interesting incidents of the fighting.

He was wounded the first time November 3, when the American army was advancing along a forty-mile front. A machine-gun bullet struck him in the leg, and a comrade, Noenaker, who lives at 2546 Smedley street, was wounded at the same time.

Carried Comrade to Safety

Ignoring his own wound, Biegmann carried his comrade to the rear, where he would be safe for the time being. Then he dressed his own wounds and returned to the fighting lines.

But it seemed that luck was against him, for a few days later a huge shell exploded near him and he was wounded about the neck, shoulder and arms. This time he was put out of action for good and had to go to the hospital. Biegmann is convalescing at Camp Dix.

The number of casualties for this State today is slightly larger than yesterday, one hundred and ten are given, in contrast with eighty-three yesterday. Five hundred and sixty-seven are on the honor roll for the nation.

There are twenty-nine from this city and its vicinity in the list, just five more than the number yesterday. Five more are dead of wounds. The twenty-four remaining are classified as follows:

Wounded severely, five; wounded slightly, one; wounded, degree undetermined, one; wounded, degree undetermined (previously reported missing), eight; returned to duty, four, and sick in hospital, one.

Pennsylvania's total of dead has increased since the corrections started coming out last week, of the many men from this vicinity who were originally reported missing eight more are accounted for in the latest official report. They are listed today as wounded, degree undetermined.

Private Edward A. Lansche, Company F, 327th Infantry, is one who counts the worry of his mother far more than the suffering from his wounds. The usual Washington dispatch was not sent out to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lansche, 1811 North Ninth street. His family would not have known that he had been wounded and not a friend written them about him. In reply to his mother's inquiry, Lansche wrote: "I was slightly wounded, but I am all right now. Anyway, it was only a little gas."

In the Washington list Private Lansche is classified as "severely wounded." His mother said that her son would not even admit that he had been wounded.

Private Lansche, who is twenty-seven years old, entered the service in October, 1917, and sailed for France in May, 1918. He has a brother in France, Corporal Harry Lansche.

Private Luigi Aiello, 1103 Vine street, previously reported missing in action, is now reported as having returned to duty. Private Aiello lived with Frank Demarco, so he has no relatives in this country. He was trained at Camp Meade. Demarco has received no letters from him since he went to France last summer, and the Washington dispatches are all the news he has had of the soldier.

Private John P. Flynn, 4917 Girard avenue, reported missing and later said to be wounded, was only scratched and has returned to his company. He is a member of Company M, 11th Infantry. He enlisted three years ago in the N. G. P., and after demobilization following the Mexican taugh he was called to Camp Hancock, September, 1917. He sailed for overseas last May and has been in several engagements. Previous to enlistment he was a brakeman on the Pennsylvania Railroad and had made his home with his parents at the Girard avenue address.

FOUGHT CHINESE REBELS

Coxswain Faulhaber, Buried Here, Served Near Shanghai

Coxswain John F. Faulhaber, whose body was brought recently from Shanghai, China, to his home in this city, was a member of a man-of-war's crew that fitted its fighting skill against the clumsy junks of Chinese pirates and rebels instead of elusive Hun submarines.

J. F. FAULHABER

The young sailor, son of Walter G. Faulhaber, 924 North Hutchinson street, was buried with military honors several days ago, following a solemn requiem mass in St. Malachy's Catholic Church, Eleventh and Master streets.

Faulharber was detailed to the U. S. S. Palos on guard duty in the waters about Shanghai. On several occasions rebels sought to attack that Chinese city, where a number of American business houses are located. But on every occasion they were driven off.

Once a band of pirates and rebels attacked the Palos as the American vessel was in the river near Chung King. Swarming in great numbers on several unwieldly Chinese junks the attackers vainly tried to board the Palos, but were driven off with heavy losses. Several American sailors were killed in the encounter.

Coxswain Faulbauer became ill soon after this river fight. A brain tumor had developed, causing his death in Shanghai on November 26, of last year.

In Memoriam

WALLING.—In sacred memory of our dear beloved son, ELMER G. WALLING, Jr., who departed this life Jan. 17, 1918, aged 14 years.

"JUST AWAY"

I cannot say and I will not say
That his death was a mistake.
With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand
He's wandered into an unknown land,
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since he lingers there.
And you—Oh you who the wildest yearn
For the old-time step and the glad return,
Think of him faring on as dear
In the love of there as the love of here.
Think of him still as the same, I say
He is not dead—he's just away.
