JUST GOSSIP ABOUT PEOPLE

Nancy Wynne Talks of the Heather Sports Suits So Fashionable This Spring and Summer—She Speaks of Garden Trips and Polo Games

THERE is a great similarity in the styles this season, in that the heather sports suits are so much in vogue. The hats are made of the same material as the suits and are awfully effective. I saw Mrs. Holstein de Haven Fox in the car with her mother, Mrs. Wilbur Paddock Klapp, the other day, and Mrs. Fox looks perfectly sweet in a light blue heather suit and small, round heather hat to match. Mrs. Klapp was smartly gowned in gray; that is, her furs were gray and covered the top of her suit, which might have been of another color, as it is difficult to see the gown in a limousine unless you are in the limousine, too, but I thought the suit gray, too. Mrs. Klapp's hat was a wide-brimmed maline straw of dark blue and it was trimmed with a soft dark gray ostrich feather.

Kitty Coxe, who is to be married next week to Andy Porter, by the way, looks very well in a sports dress, the style so much worn by the younger girls this season. I saw her the other day in the frock which was of dark mahogany-colored jersey. The skirt was knife-pleated and the bodice, straight and plain, was held in at the waist with a sash, while the long sleeves and round collar had white cuffs and a white Peter Pan collar as a finish to the fascinating garment. Catherine's hat was a small dark blue one.

NEXT Saturday will be the last of the garden days, which have been such a delight this spring and summer. The Franklin McFaddens' place, Radnor Valley Farm, in Rosemont will be visited, and so will the Robert Le Boutilliers' in Wayne. Both of these places boast exquisite gardens, and the ride out in autos will be delightful, too, for there are so many beautiful places to see on the way and so many wonderful roads to skim along. It will be a pleasure for next spring, I hope, as these trips have been truly successful this year and the School of Horticulture in Ambler, under whose auspices the trips have been taken, will, I hope, have another such series next season.

POLO is going on this week out at Bryn Mawr, and a great many have been attending the games. I don't think there is a prettier sport to watch. The ponies are so graceful and alert and the riders look so hale and strong and out-of-doorsy.

Among the interested watchers on the sidelines I spied Mrs. Johnnie Fell and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Antelo Devereux. Mrs. Gouverneur Cadwalader was there early in the week, looking very smart in Paris clothes. Speaking of Mrs. Cadwalader reminds me that the Bobbie Cassatts have sent out invitations to a dance at their Rosemont home for Mrs. Cadwalader's daughter, Sally Henry, on Saturday evening, June 25, and they are going to entertain a few guests at dinner before the dance in honor of Sally also. You remember before her marriage to Gouverneur Cadwalader in February Mrs. Cadwalader was Mrs. Howard Henry. Captain Henry died in England shortly after the armistice.

DADDY took Mary to the circus the other night. They saw the elephants and tigers and little lions and bears and, oh! the monkeys and all the other funny animals—queer kangaroos with long hind legs and tiny, short front legs and hippopotami with their thick, thick skin and camels and polar bears and seals and all the rest of them. Mary looked intently at everything and while outwardly very quiet she was inwardly all in a turmoil of excitement.

When she came home she confided in low tones to Daddy: "Daddy, I—I—just love the circus. I b'lieve I like it next best to Christmas." And when mother tucked her in bed she was heard to murmur sleepily, "But I fink 'at g'raffe's head must be so lonely away up there from the rest of him."

NANCY WYNNE.
