UNCLE SAM will INVESTIGATE

why BONDY & LEDERER can produce American Vuelta tobacco, used only in the TOM KEENE cigar, to sell at 5c straight.

The Washington Correspondent of the Chicago Tribune writes:

A pure "Havana leaf," grown in the United States, and having exactly the same characteristics of aroma and other superior qualities possessed by Cuban tobacco is a prospect now being exploited by the agricultural department. For a long time the department has been searching for a soil area with the requisite conditions of climate in the United States that will grow a tobacco like that which distinguishes the Cuban product in the choicest and most expensive Havana cigars. The bureau of soils of the department claims that such an area has been found in Texas by Bondy & Lederer.

Enormously increased value in a popular priced product.

The secret has been found out of how to raise Cuba's delicious Vuelta tobacco here in America. At the time when tobacco agriculture was paralyzed in Cuba, Bondy & Lederer of New York, were induced to experiment with transplanted tobacco sprouts---not seed growths, but best young Vuelta plants. Striking the same soil and atmospheric conditions, Bondy & Lederer produce now, for the first time, a tobacco that is mild and delicious, that gives the smoker a high-grade article, having that "Java Coffee taste" peculiar to the highest grade Havana cigars of the milder type. You will recognize the taste at once, and will appreciate this marked difference, which would not be possible in a cigar at five cents, but for the saving of the immense duty. The phenomenal sale of the TOM KEENE cigar everywhere proves that American Vuelta tobacco pleases nine out of ten smokers who know fine tobacco, and note the difference between the cheap straw tasting fillers used by so many 5c "prize scheme" cigars now on the market.

Try a TOM KEENE cigar and it will be plainly apparent to you. If your dealer will not pay the price, buy in the next block.
