TO STOP THE FENCE

Pavilion Owners at Minnehaha Seek to Enjoin the Railroad Company.

Construction Has Begun and They Want to Preserve Their Business.

A merry war is on between the residents of Minnehaha and the owners of the unsightly pavilions ranged along the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul right of way in front of the main entrance to the park. The struggle has been carried on before the city council, the park board and has at last found its way into the courts. Judge Brooks has granted a restraining order returnable to-morrow morning, enjoining the railway company from erecting a fence in front of the pavilions, which would cut off all front door access to them.

Henry S. Mead again appears as attorney for the Gardners and has charge of the application for an injunction. The grounds on which the injunction is asked are that the high fence being erected by the railway company is on the Gardner property instead of on the railroad right of way and furthermore it is alleged that it obstructs a public highway.

The evident intention of the pavilion owners is to gain time until the summer is well advanced and they have taken their profits from the immense crowds which now frequent their resorts. Mr. Mead asked that the restraining order be made returnable some time in July. Judge Brooks could not look at the matter in that light, however, and fixed the time for hearing to-morrow morning, when the matter will be decided.

The residents of Minnehaha park are very much interested in the outcome, as it will directly affect them and their property. The row of pavilions, with the Coney Island methods employed, has for several years been most annoying to property owners and visitors in the district. Some time ago a determined effort was made by the residents to do away with the pavilions. The park board was appealed to and asked to condemn and purchase the property on which the resorts stand. The matter was thoroly discussed and the property designated but on account of lack of funds the proceedings stopped at this point. Later it was decided to build the park refectory in the hope that it would make the pavilion business unprofitable and at the same time the railroad company was persuaded to promise to erect a high fence along its right of way which would materially hurt the business of these places or at least hide them from public view.

The railroad company has been deliberate about fulfilling this promise, but at last has commenced the work, having set part of the posts for the fence. Now come the pavilion owners with their tale of woe and the matter will have to be decided by the court.

R·I·P·A·N·S

I would suffer greatly after my meals with my stomach and heavy, dull pains, so that I was almost led to believe that I had heart trouble. One day a customer saw me suffering and recommended Ripans Tabules—in fact, gave me one. I felt so much relieved in a few hours that I sent to a druggist for some, and after taking another after supper and one at bed time, I arose the next morning feeling like a different person. I have always kept them in the house since.

GRAND LODGE MEETS

Members of the I. O. O. F. of the State Begin Annual Session in St. Paul To-day.

Nearly 500 Delegates Representing 249 Lodges Are in Attendance.

The 50th annual session of the I. O. O. F. grand lodge of Minnesota was called to order by C. A. Fosness of Montevideo, grand master, in St. Paul to-day. Two hundred and forty-nine lodges were represented by nearly 500 delegates, one-half of whom are new members of the grand lodge, upon whom the grand lodge degree was conferred.

The grand master's report showed eight subordinate lodges instituted in the year and five Rebekah lodges.

Officers to Be Installed.

The canvassing committee and the grand master found that the following had been elected: S. A. Farnsworth, of Triple Link lodge, No. 209, St. Paul, grand master; B. G. Covell, of Kerkhoven lodge, No. 191, deputy grand master; E. M. Clay, of Pap Wilson lodge, No. 141, grand warden; A. L. Balton, No. 2, grand secretary; C. M. Sprague, No. 34, grand treasurer; C. A. Fosness, No. 75, grand representative. They will be installed to-morrow.

The grand represenatives submitted a report of the proceedings of the last session of the sovereign grand lodge.

Grand Secretary's Report.

According to the report of Grand Secretary A. L. Bolton, which will be made today, there has been a substantial gain in the membership of the Odd Fellows since the last grand lodge meeting. The total number of initiations was 1,634. The total membership of the order in Minnesota now is 18,245. The total receipts for the year were $224,009.31. Out of this nearly $50,000 was spent for relief and $125,000 for the ordinary running expenses of the order. The total assets of the order in Minnesota are figured at $1,059,786.36. Incidentally the secretary criticized some subordinate lodges which had grown careless in observance of the ritual. In one lodge the officers had been installed by lady members of the Rebekahs.

As to the women's branch, there are 186 lodges, and they have spent in relief during the year less than $1,500. The expense of the women's branch was close to $10,000. New subordinate lodges were instituted at Morgan, Frazee, Ceylon, Wilmot, Tenstrike, Swanville, Seaforth and Fulda and Rebekah lodges at Blackduck, Osakis, Delano, Breckenridge and Virginia.

St. Paul leads with the largest lodge of the order in Minnesota, Capital City lodge, No. 48, being credited with 434 members. Minneapolis has the next largest lodge—the Northern Light, with 365.

Amendments Proposed.

Several important amendments to the constitution will be considered. Perhaps the most important is the reduction in the initiatory and degree fee, the figure under the amendment being reduced from $5 to $2. This price is to apply in the case of all degrees and is to be payable on application for admittance. The present figure, it is claimed, greatly handicaps the advance of the order.

Another important amendment is the change in the grand lodge meetings from June to May of each year. The warm period is the excuse offered in this case and there is little doubt but that the amendment will prevail. Nearly a score of other amendments are up for consideration, but those named will have the liveliest consideration.

The Anniversary Celebration.

This evening at the Grand opera-house the fiftieth anniversary will be celebrated. The general public, including ladies, is especially invited. A large delegation from Minneapolis will attend. The program:

"Early Odd Fellowship in Minnesota," David Ramaley, P. M. G.; "The Grand Lodge of Minnesota," Ed A. Stevens, P. M. G.; "The Grand Encampment of Minnesota," C. R. Wilkinson, grand scribe; "The Rebekah Assembly of Minnesota," Eunice Melville, secretary; "The Patriarchs Militant of Minnesota," August Hohenstein, G. S. W.; "Minnesota and the Sovereign Grand Lodge," W. G. Nye, P. M. G.; "The Subordinate Encampments of Minnesota," M. C. Kelsey, P. G. M.; "The Rebekah Lodges of Minnesota," T. W. Hugo, P. M. G.; "The Odd Fellows' Home," G. S. Ives, P. M. G.; "Sentiments," expressed in twenty words or less, by past grand masters, past grand patriarchs and past grand representatives.

Rebekah Assembly.

In addition to the grand lodge the sixteenth annual session of the Rebekah assembly is being held in the hall of the Capital City lodge at West Seventh and Walnut streets. This is the women's auxiliary. Last night the degree work of the order was exemplified by the women, it being performed by a team from Pine City.

S. OF V. ENCAMPMENT

Veterans' Sons of the State Will Gather in St. Paul To-morrow—Their Program.

The nineteenth annual encampment of the Minnesota division, Sons of Veterans, will be held to-morrow at Garfield hall, Sixth and Washington streets, St. Paul. The Ladies' Aid Society will hold a joint meeting during the encampment.

The presiding officer will be Commander C. E. Casler of St. Paul. In the evening a military ball will be followed by a supper.

The election of officers will be Friday. The encampment will wind up with a campfire at which addresses will be made by Judge Eli Torrance, past commander-in-chief of the G. A. R.; I. N. Mahan, department commander; Captain A. L. Jones of Minneapolis, and others.

HIGH DIVING ELEPHANT

The Gentrys Planned a Thrilling Act, but Hugo Broke His Neck.

The Gentry Brothers are probably the greatest and most sucessful animal trainers in this country, and during their sixteen years in the trained animal show business have never had but one failure. That was two years ago when they attempted the wonderful feat of "breaking" an elephant to do a high dive.

"Instead of breaking the elephant the elephant broke his neck," said W. W. Gentry, the general manager of the show which is in Minneapolis this week, and himself a wonderfully successful trainer. Mr. Gentry conceived the idea from witnessing a pair of high diving horses perform in Indianapolis. Taking the train for Bloomington, Ind., the next day, where the Gentry winter quarters are located, he selected an elephant, erected a hugh diving apparatus and begun work. It was three months before any progress was made, but patience has its reward eventually, and before another three weeks were over Gentry thought he had at last reached the pinnacle of animal training and that Gentry Brothers owned the only high-diving elephant on earth. The printing houses were given orders to send down their sketch artists, that pictorial posters might proclaim to the world the new sensation "wonders of wonders"—a high diving elephant.

The artists arrived with the day of the initial performance but returned like they came—without the photograph. "Hugo," the now deceased trumpeter, mounted the huge steps heroically, amid the applause of the combined population of Bloomington, and just as heroically started the ascent. As the fatal plunge was made, something went wrong with the apparatus, and poor Hugo plunged headforemost to his death. Gentry covered his eyes with the back of his hand, gazed in a dazed sort of way at his three brothers and exclaimed, "what do you think of that?"

"I think you have played the dickens," said his little brother Frank, and that marked the first and only failure the Gentry's ever made. When asked this morning if the idea had been abandoned, Mr. Gentry replied in a sad, soft voice that he thought it had. "You see," said he, "elephants cost a lot of money, and besides this is the first and only animal we ever injured or killed while training, so I guess we will remain content in the high diving line with 'Rags,' the high diving dog, and Don Juan, the monkey that loops the loop."

The Gentry show is giving daily matinees and evening performances this week on Thirteenth street near Nicollet and the big crowds are quite satisfied with the program as it is, even without an elephantine high diver.

GREAT FURNACE

Man's Stomach Like One

So Says Voegeli Bros., Our Well Known Druggists

"There is no need of your going about with that woe-begone expression on your face," said a member of the drug house of Voegeli Bros.' Drug company to a reporter who called on him yesterday.

"You are not going to die, man," said the druggist, when our correspondent had related his woes and told how late hours, hasty lunches, changes in the weather, and other conditions had brought him to the state where life had lost all happiness and he was feeling miserable all over.

"I can fix you so that you will feel better in twenty minutes," said the druggist.

"Your whole trouble is your stomach. You abuse it—neglect it—forget it—and pay no more attention to it than though it did not exist, until in indignation and revolt it reminds you of itself. Don't you know that this stomach of yours is the most important organ in your body? It is like the furnace that drives the palatial steamship across the ocean. It is the center of vitality of your entire system. Into it is taken the fuel that maintains your life—that is, the food you eat; when it works properly this food is converted into bone and tissue, and pure new blood.

"You cannot run a furnace without paying some attention to it. If you neglect it, it will become filled with clinkers and foreign matter and will not only fail to heat properly but will eventually go out.

"It is the same with your stomach. You cannot abuse it, you must pay a little attention to it, you must help it digest the food you put into it and you must try and see that the right kind of food is employed. You would not throw granite paving stones in place of coal into a furnace, and yet I would guarantee that you even put almost as bad into your stomach.

"Now take my advice and try Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets. They will help your stomach digest the food which you eat. They will enable it to better obtain the nourishment from that food.

"I know what I am talking about," concluded the druggist, as he handed the newspaper man a package of the little tablets about which he had been talking. "Of course I have investigated the merits of this article and, as you know, I guarantee its action, promising to refund the price of the remedy to those who are not satisfied with the result it accomplishes.

"The best part of this offer is, however, that I don't find very many people coming back for their money. They come back again, you may be sure, for another box of Rexall, and most of them talk just as strongly in its favor as I do myself. The price being 25 cents, places these tablets within the reach of all. Every box sold means another Rexall friend."
