ERRORS COST BUILDERS GAME IN LAST SESSION

After Getting Licked in the First Affair Builders Return With Mighty Wallop.

NEWPORT NEWS, VA., July 29.—After playing scoreless ball for nine innings in the first game, the Builders lost to the Tars, 3 to 1, on errors. With two out and two on bases, Watt fumbled an easy chance and a run scored. On the next play he tried to intercept a short throw to Wratten, and succeeded only in deflecting the ball to the outfield, another run scoring. Hartsell stole home for the third run, while Ray held the ball. All three runs came without the semblance of a hit. The Builders got one run in their half on a pass and Walter's double.

The second game was a slugging match, with the locals doing all the slugging. Nicks was driven to cover in the second inning, after six runs and seven hits had been made off him. Thomas did well for two innings, but later was hit all over the field. The score was 14 to 1. The scores:

SPLIT IN DOUBLE AFFAIR

PORTSMOUTH, VA., July 29.—Portsmouth split even on the double-header to-day, losing the first contest by the score of 4 to 3. The opener went twelve innings, and was as close as could be desired by the most factidious fan. A big second inning in the closing contest enabled the Truckers to get three runs over on a couple of scratchiest singles, intermingled with a passed ball and a disastrous error by Puckett. The game went to Portsmouth by the score of 4 to 0, and by agreement only lasted seven innings.

A home run hit by Parker that landed on top of the fence and then bounced over was about the only feature of the game. Only a fair-sized crowd was present, the recent falling off of attendance having become a serious problem with the local management.

Hurd started the second game, but was relieved by Wood in the sixth frame. Alton and Spaid were twirling opponents in the opener, and Jim Poole went all the way for the Goobers in the second game.

Louisville Gets Wendell.

LOUISVILLE, KY., July 29.—O. H. Wathen, president of the Louisville American Association baseball club, to-day announced that the deal for the purchased from New York Nationals of Catcher Lew Wendell had been completed. It was understood that refusals to waive on Wendell had halted the sale.

MATHEWSON'S RETURN

NEW YORKERS' WELCOME TO HIM WAS SUPERB

Every One Stood Up When the Old Master Walked Out to Give Battery Selections.

Under the caption, "Fans Welcome Matty With a Mighty Roar," Walter Turnbull has told in the New York World of this return of the "Old Master" to the diamond made famous by the great Big Six, the Chesterfield of baseball. Leaving out the details of the game, which was played on Wednesday and won by Matty's team, 4 to 2, the story says

"Christopher Mathewson returned to the Polo Grounds yesterday as the chief of an alien clan, but from the greeting he received it might have been supposed that he was a conqueror returning to his home dragging the Cincinnati Reds as captives at his chariot wheels.

"The fans, 15,000 strong, gave him a welcome that has perhaps never been equaled on the diamond. To make his triumph complete, the Reds defeated the Giants by a score of 4 to 2.

"Matty led his players on to the field shortly after 2 o'clock, and, while the Seventh Regiment Band played 'Hail to the Chief,' the rooters cheered their long-time favorite to the echo.

"Then McGraw and the Giants crowded about the man who for so many years was their mainstay and their pride and extended congratulations that were as real as their affection was deep.

"Not only did the fans cheer Mathewson, but they called good wishes to him as they might to an old friend starting on a journey.

"There was a husky note in many a voice that demonstrated what a strong sentimental hold the king of 'em all has on his followers and admirers.

"The finest, truest tribute that Matty received came just before the game. As he walked out to give his battery selections to the umpire, proceedings were halted while he was presented with a huge basket of flowers.

"The members of both teams came out and grouped themselves about the plate. Suddenly the band struck up 'Auld Lang Syne' and, almost as one man, those thousands of spectators in the stands instinctively rose to their feet and uncovered their heads. Few men and few occasions have the power to inspire the feeling which prompted this action.

"If the weather had been bright there is little doubt there would have been a crowd of 30,000 at the baseball park. Under the existing conditions it is remarkable that the attendance was as large as it was. The only way that we can figure out this weather is that whenever the local skies think of Big Six as the commander of an alien army they start weeping all over the place.

"When Charley Herzog appeared in a New York uniform he too was warmly greeted. There was also applause for Slim Sallee, Eddie Roush and Bill McKechnie.

"It was a great day for the photographers and moving-picture men. There was an army of them on the field and they did deadly execution. They filmed everybody and everything in sight, and then went back and did it all over again. It will not be their fault if Matty Day is not reproduced on the screen in every city in the land.

"Of course the credit for yesterday's victory goes to Mathewson. We have not the slightest desire to deprive him of an iota of the glory. There is very little doubt that he signaled to Wingo to wallop out the sacrifice fly in the seventh inning which scored Louden with what was really the winning run.

"While admitting all this, we still feel that we must give a little credit to Pete Schneider, who held the Giants to five hits and pitched throughout with telling effect. After the third inning he permitted only one single, and during their last six sessions at bat just three Giants reached first."

Matty Assumes Managerial Desuit

MANAGER MATHEWSON ©INT'L FILM SERVICE

Here is "Big Six" in his new uniform as he appeared upon the diamond with the Reds for the first time. Matty was the Giant's standby for sixteen years before accepting the management of the Reds.

NAMED AFTER LOU DILLON

JACK DILLON, MESSENGER, GETS NAME FROM HORSE

Ernest Price Didn't Sound Right for a Prize Fighter, so His Name Was Switched About.

Izzy Brill, the Indianapolis scribe, tells how he discovered Jack Dillon, light heavyweight champion, one of the greatest boxers of his weight the ring has ever seen, and how Dillon got his start:

"About nine years ago," says Izzy, "I was acting in the capacity of matchmaker for an Indianapolis membership organization known as the Merion Club. Monthly boxing shows were staged at this club, and exceptionally good boxing talent was used. At that time Fortville Kid Brown was considered about the best lightweight in Indiana, and Jimmy Kelly was another boxer with a good record.

"I matched these two boys to try conclusions for six rounds for the main event. One day previous to the date of the contest Kelly was taken seriously ill, and naturally I had to search about for a suitable substitute for Kelly.

"Jack Dillon in those days was a messenger boy for the Western Union, and in his leisure hours he would don the gloves with some of the messenger boys in the basement of the Western Union.

"While seeking an opponent for Brown at the club to take the place of Kelly, a youngster by the name of 'Wick' Davidson, who had seen Dillon box some of the messenger kids, came to me and inquired if there was any chance of matching any one in one of the preliminaries on the Marion Club card.

"I told him my preliminary card was all filled up, but I needed a good boy to meet Brown. Davidson offered to assist me in getting a substitute, and he recommended a kid to me that he swore could lick his weight in wildcats.

"'What's the boy's name you want me to match with Brown?' I asked. 'His name is Ernest Price, but we call him "Pricey," he answered. 'Is his hair parted in the middle, and does he wear glasses?. I can't use a fellow with such a "sissy" name as Ernest.' I told the booster. Well, Davidson agreed to bring Ernest around to the club for me to look over and have him put on the gloves with some of the boxers taking workouts around the Apollo Club. It was not long before Ernest was brought around. He was a huskily-built lad and good-looking, and looked like a real boxer. He was not the kind of a looking chap that his name might make one believe.

"'Dou you want to box to-morrow night?' I asked. 'Sure, I do,' was the reply. 'Will you tackle Brown?' He is a good boxer, you know.' 'He suits me fine,' was Ernest's reply. Ernest was taken up to the training quarters, where he donned the gloves with several of the big fellows. It did not take long for him to impress me. The fighters whom he boxed with swore that he was a ringer and not a novice.

"I luckily happened to meet Millard Sanders, a former driver and trainer of Lou and Sidney Dillon, noted race horses. Sanders was a great boxing fan,' and he wanted to know who I had matched for the Marion Club show. I explained to him that I had originally matched Kid Brown with Jimmy Kelly, but the latter took ill and I had substituted a boy by the name of Ernest Price, but that name would not do for a boxer. I must give him a real name. Anyhow, his mother might read in the papers about him fighting and she may object, I told Sanders. 'Is he good with the gloves?' Sanders inquired. 'He can step some,' I told the racehorse man. 'Well, my horse can step some. If he is fast name him Dillon.'

"That struck me fine. But how about his first name? Should I call him Ernest Dillon? It was finally decided to call him Jack Dillon, and it was in his bout with Fortville Kid Brown that he established the ring name of Jack Dillon. Jack was seventeen years old then and weighed 128 pounds when I procured for him his initial bow before the public."

Refuses $50,000 for Horse.

John Sanford recently refused an offer of $50,000—real money—for his great horse Nassorian, which finished third in the 1916 English Derby and later won the $10,000 Princess of Wales stakes. John E. Madden made the bid.

The Sanford horse is by William the Third, out of Veneration II., by Gallinule. He represents one strain of the greatest racing blood in the world. Madden wants the horse for breeding purposes.
