SOCIETY

And the headlines in the newspapers for the past week have carried word to the smart set that the dreamy, old-fashioned waltz is coming back again! You can hardly believe it. You have agonized with an instructor, lo! these many months, twisting your toes unmercifully into the latest step of the tango—and now, with a wave of the wand wielded by the National Association of Dancing Masters, it is to go. Society maids and matrons waiting for their ducats wasted upon the tango steps will go about the streets, but oh the beauty of a real waltz! For mor years than you care to remember th older members of the society set sat against the walls and openly railed a the "no dances." They were "dreadfully immodest," and smacked of another world than that decorated with pink teas and debutante balls. In less time than it takes to tell these same middle-aged persons had first endured and then embraced the fad, and they have been dancing like mad ever since.

But the introduction of a new kind of dance is always frowned upon and looked at as something entirely too dreadful to think of. Was not the whole of staid old England shocked at the beautiful, naughty princess who came home from France with the first waltz steps twinkling from her little slippers? The dowagers said it was just what might be expected from sending one's daughter abroad. At the prestime we think the waltz is one of the milder forms of dancing, but such a beautiful dance. In your imagination it is always associated with soft, shiny things and tiny pink rosebuds. The very sound of "The Blue Danube" makes you think of all the love affairs you ever heard of. It sets the scene in a twinkling for the stage proposal, where the hero rushes in from Bally-hack, covered with dust and moss, just as the heroine is announcing her betrothal to his rival at a great ball. Isn't it thrilling, and don't you wonder why they ever have any other kind?

Alas! poor Paul McCarty, who penned the lines:

"When Mary's queenly form I press
In Strauss's latest waltz,"

It wasn't exactly a waltz which caused the famous duel over one of the most beautiful woman who ever reigned as belle of the social set here, but that was what the poetry was about.

So society is vastly interested in the announcement that the waltz is to return. Of all dances, it is perhaps the most romantic. The tears of lovers' farewells sound through its dreamy music, woven warp and woof of moonlight and threaded with the silver stars of new tomorrows. One doesn't need a convention of the dancing masters to tell us that the old-fashioned waltz will be popular. One turns the music to Strauss and whirls into the dance.

BRENT WITT.

Leads Fancy Ball.

Little Miss Emma Gray White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. White, Jr., of Norfolk, and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. White, of 806 West Franklin Street, Thursday night led the grand march at the children's annual fancy dress ball at White Sulphur Springs. She was dressed to represent Cupid. Many new figures were introduced by Garrett Buckner Wall, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Wall, of Monument Avenue, who led the german, dancing with Miss Anne Grant, of Atlanta, Ga. Master Wall wore the costume of a prince. The scarf dance, butterfly dance, Spanish tambourine dance, Oriental dance and the Scotch fling were among the numbers. A number of Richmond children were present.

On Motor Trip.

Mrs. Robert S. Bosher, of 2 East Franklin Street, left Richmond last week for a motor trip to Massanetta Springs, where she will be the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Purcell, for a week. Mr. Purcell and young children have been spending some time at Massanetta during the late summer.

New Publication for Women.

It has been announced that North Carolina is to have a new publication—a woman's magazine—to be edited by Mrs. Nina Holland Covington. The title of the new periodical will be "Everywoman's Magazine," and it will be devoted to the interests of women everywhere, but particularly to those of Virginia and North and South Carolina.

Mrs. Covington has been active in literary work. She is a graduate of Roanoke College, Salem, Va., class of '99, and took her M. A. degree there in 1906. Since she has been in Raleigh she has been engaged in club work, and was for a while editor of the woman's department of a Raleigh newspaper.

The first number will be published on September 23, with many good and interesting features. It will contain editorials from the Richmond Times-Dispatch, the News and Observer, the Charlotte Observer and the Columbia State and other Southern papers.

There will be, also, in the first number, an article on the Virginia group of women novelists who have recently issued books, namely, Miss Glasgow, Mrs. Rouse and Mrs. Bosher. A serial with the scene laid in a college town in Virginia will begin in the first number. This will be published anonymously. Mrs. E. E. Moffitt, formerly of Raleigh, now of Richmond, will discuss the work of the Mathew Maury Association, of which she is president. The editor, Mrs. Covington, is a native of this State, and is also connected by marriage with an old Virginia family, Mr. Covington being a descendant of William Overton Winston, uncle of Patrick Henry.

For Mrs. Saunders.

Mrs. J. W. Phillips, of Morrison, was the hostess at a charming lawn fete on Saturday evening in honor of her guests, Mrs. B. F. Saunders, of Richmond, and Miss Martha Baughan, of West Point. The porch and lawn were decorated with flowers and Japanese lanterns, and music and dancing were features of the evening. Mrs. Saunders and Miss Baughan have been much entertained during their stay in Morrison.

Visiting in New England.

Miss Blanche Thomas, of Richmond, who has been visiting friends near Boston, has been at the Inn, in Bethel, Me., for a week, visiting Miss Kathryn Gray. Miss Thomas is a charming dramatic soprano, and has entertained the guests of the Inn with her pleasing selections of popular airs.

In North Carolina.

Miss Agnes Kelly, of Richmond, and Miss Parlett, of Norfolk, are in Asheville, with the latter's sister, Mrs. N. T. Robinson. The party will make an automobile tour through the mountains of Western North Carolina before returning to their homes.

At "Bellevue."

Mrs. Randolph H. Thompson entertained at a family party Tuesday night at her home, "Bellevue," near Hollins. The six sisters of the family were present—Dr. Mary Moomaw, of New York; Mrs. J. A. Jamison, of Roanoke; Mrs. W. A. Gibbons, of Roanoke; Mrs. Henry L. Schmelz, of Hampton, and Mrs. Herbert S. Williams, of Fort Sill, Okla.

Of Interest Here.

A pretty mid-summer wedding took place Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the home of Captain and Mrs. Willis M. Partridge, in Olney Road, Norfolk, when their daughter, Miss Mary Louise Partridge, became the bride of William Luther Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Clark.

The entire lower floor of the house was decorated with palms, ferns and china asters. The ceremony was performed before an altar of palms and ascension lilies by Rev. J. M. Roland, pastor of the Park Place Methodist Church. Mrs. Herbert Myrick played the wedding marches and during the ceremony rendered the "Venetian Love Song." Just before the bridal party entered, Miss Helen Hosier, of Suffolk, sang "I Love You Truly."

The bride, who entered on the arm of her brother, Lloyd S. Partridge, wore a traveling suit of blue taffeta and carried a shower bouquet of Bride roses and lilies of the valley. She had as her maid of honor and only attendant, Miss Mabel Lilliton, of Suffolk, who wore a gown of lace over silver tissue and carried a bouquet of Killarney roses. Wallace Clarke attended his brother as best man.

An informal reception followed the ceremony, and later Mr. Clark and his bride left for a Northern wedding trip. They will be at home at the home of the bride's parents, in Olney Road, after September 15.

Popular Priced MILLINERY---

MANY a woman (especially the one particular as to AUTHENTIC style) looks with suspicion at those two words, "Popular Priced." She knows that very often they mean inferior quality. This is undeniable. Yet consider: We buy literally thousands of Hats to the average dealer's one, BECAUSE WE SELL TO HUNDREDS OF MILLINERS AT WHOLESALE.

It is reasonable, then, that we can truthfully quote: Popular Prices on Authentic Styles in Hats.

This Tailored Beaver CHAPEAUX Priced Decidedly Less

THIS is a value which illustrates the point spoken of. Three pleasing types of these Hats which are at present most popular. At the single price we are showing both velvet and beaver with grosgrain trim in black or the new deep damson purple. Brims are tailored or in picture effect. Elsewhere you'll pay a good margin more. Special, $7.50.
