MARINES KILLED 1,132 IN HAITIAN CAMPAIGN

Major Turner, Adjutant First Brigade, Says Every Inducement Given Bandits to Surrender.

[By Associated Press.]

PORT-AU-PRINCE, HAITI, Nov. 11.—Eleven hundred and thirty-two Haitians were killed in 298 engagements since the intensive campaign of the American marines began in Haiti in October, 1919, Major Thomas C. Turner, adjutant of the first provisional brigade of marines, testified today before the naval board of inquiry appointed by Secretary of the Navy Daniels. Major Turner was the only witness examined at the opening session of the hearing.

Since the American occupation in Haiti, Major Turner stated, 17,000 bandits had been in the field at various times and since October, 1919, bandits to the number of 7,605 had surrendered. Major Turner testified that strict orders not to kill bandits after their surrender had been issued and that men violating these orders had been tried by court-martial.

Every inducement, according to the witness, had been offered bandits who surrendered. None of them were killed and most of the bandits went to work in the sugar fields. Major Turner declared there was no molestation of the inhabitants.

Questioned by Admiral Henry T. Mayo, president of the board of inquiry, Major Turner testified that he believed the estimate of Major-General George Barnett, former commandant of the United States marine corps, that more than 1,100 Haitians had been killed prior to the intensive campaign, was exaggerated. He declared it was impossible to obtain an accurate estimate of the number of casualties. Major Turner said that checking of first reports regarding the engagements showed they had been greatly overestimated. He cited the surrender of the bandits as substantiation of the statement that they are not afraid of being harmed.

EXPLORER'S CREW STRIKES WHILE SHIP IS AT NOME

Amundsen Proceeds With But Three Men Because of Others' Demands.

[By Associated Press.]

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 11.—Captain Roald Amundsen, Arctic explorer, has sent the following telegram to the Berlingske Tidende from Eastcape, Siberia, bearing date of August 13: "We sailed from Nome immediately after my wire of August 8, with only three men, as the others claimed wages of $300 monthly. The following day held up by pack ice in Bering Sea. All aboard well."

The foregoing is the first direct message from Captain Amundsen since he set out on his polar expedition from Nome, Alaska in the ship Maud, August 9. Five weeks later information reached Nome that the famous explorer's ship had become wedged in the ice twenty miles off Cape Serge, 225 miles northwest of Nome, on the Siberian coast.

Northwesterly winds, which prevailed during the summer, carried the great Arctic ice floes to the east coast of Siberia, trapping Captain Amundsen's ship. The reports added that ice had formed ten feet high on all sides of the vessel.

Eastcape, Siberia, the point from which the explorer sent his telegram to the Copenhagen paper, is about 170 miles northwest of Nome and is on the Bering Straits.

TELLS THRILLING STORY OF VESSEL'S OVERTURNING

Survivor Abandons Lifeboat When Man-Eating Shark Attacks and Devours Occupant.

[By Associated Press.]

MANILA, P. I., Nov. 11.—A survivor's story of the wreck in a typhoon of the coastwise steamer San Rafael, which was overturned, throwing sixty-four persons into the sea off the island of Leyte in the South Philippines, was told today by Concordia Eardo, one of the twenty persons saved. He said the crew was attempting to lower anchor when the ship went over.

Eardo, who arrived here yesterday on the steamer Samar, which picked him up at sea after drifting two days, vividly described the typhoon wreck.

The sixty-four persons hurled into the sea when the ship turned turtle, struggled to reach lifeboats and wreckage strewn about them, according to Eardo.

"I swam to a lifeboat," said Eardo, "but, after reaching it, was compelled to jump back into the sea when a man-eating shark attacked the boat. The shark devoured one of the men in the boat. I obtained a life-preserver, which kept me afloat until I collected enough wreckage to make a raft, upon which I drifted two days before the steamer Samar rescued me."

N. & W. TRESTLE BLOWN UP AT THACKER, W. VA.

Violence is Renewed Following Withdrawal of Federal Troops From Strike Zone.

[By Associated Press.]

WILLIAMSON, W. VA., Nov. 11.—The Norfolk and Western Railroad trestle over Grapevine Creek at Thacker, near here, and the drum house of the Matta May Coal Co., Axax, a few miles from Williamson, were blown up early this morning. State police with bloodhounds have been sent to the scene of the explosions.

The explosions occurred in the heart of the coal strike zone in Mingo County and mark a renewal of violence in the district after a period of twenty-four hours' quiet. Federal troops were removed from the fields recently.

CONDUCTOR IS ACQUITTED

Georgia Jury Says Knight Did Not Slay Superintendent of Car Company.

[By Associated Press.]

ATLANTA, GA., Nov. 11.—J. C. Knight, former street car conductor, was acquitted by a jury here today of the murder of James Means, transportation superintendent of the Georgia Railway Power Company. Knight told the jury Means was shot while trying to seize a pistol which he, Knight, had turned on himself, after being accused of a shortage in his cash fares.

Ready to Lend to Farmers.

GREENVILLE, S. C., Nov. 11.—Announcement was made today that the pool of $150,000 has been raised and that local merchants would be ready to lend money to farmers on cotton beginning Monday morning.

A WELL-KNOWN CAMPER WRITES:

"Long before I knew that it was the effect of tea, I have been fairly startled at a transformation in myself. Time and time again I have come to the noon spell, limp and lagging from a hard morning, and after a lunch with tea have taken again to paddling in such a manner as to discover with a kind of shock that I was keyed to a high pitch of vigor."

The above statement proves what I have said and written a thousand times. Tea is not a nerve wrecker; it is a nerve builder, and is restful. I know from experience.

DEFINE AUTHORITY UNDER TRANSPORTATION ACT

Rail Men Ask I. C. C. to Determine Status of State and Federal Bodies.

[By Associated Press.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The National Association of Railway and Utilities Commissioners today unanimously selected Atlanta, Ga., as the place for the next annual convention, beginning on the second Tuesday in October, 1921. The convention adopted a resolution asking the Interstate Commerce Commission for a conference to define the relative authority of the State commissions and the Federal commission, under the transportation act.

The resolution as adopted, said: "In order that the maximum benefits may be derived from the co-operative provisions of the transportation act, it is desirable that it should be understood in what classes of cases co-operation between State and Federal authorities is deemed feasable by the Interstate Commerce Commission and respect to each class of such cases whether by joint conference or joint hearing and under what rules of procedure such conferences or hearings may be initiated and carried forward."

Other resolutions adopted included authorities for the appointment of a committee of seven on litigation to represent the State commissions in any matters arising in which they may be interested, and for a committee of three to make a general survey and digest of laws creating utility corporations and to make recommendations to the next convention.

FURTHER BREAK IN SUGAR MARKET NETS 6-CENT PRICE

Quotation of 6-Cent for Cubas Sets New Low Record for Season.

[By Associated Press.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—There was another break of ¼c a pound in the price of raw sugar today, with Cubas selling at 6c, cost and freight, a new low record for the season. The decline came under continued pressure from producing countries, and the poor demand for refined sugar.

The weakness in raw sugar brought about a further decline of ½ cent a pound in granulated by the Federal Sugar Refining Company to the basis of 10 cents, representing a new low record price for the season. Other refiners are still listed at 10.50, although they are expected to follow the lead of Federal.

A new post-war low mark was set in Richmond yesterday when "pure white granulated" sugar was quoted by at least one retailer at 11½ cents.

URGES WITHDRAWAL OF U. S. TROOPS FROM RHINE

Are Not Bill Collectors for Other Nations, Declares Representative Kahn, of California.

[By Associated Press.]

FREDERICK, MD., Nov. 11.—Immediate withdrawal of American troops on the Rhine was urged here today by Representative Kahn, of California, chairman of the House Military Committee, speaking at the Armistice Day celebration. If he had his way in the next Congress, the forces would be recalled, he said, adding that American troops were not "bill collectors for other nations, nor are they policemen for the nations of Europe."

Mr. Kahn urged military preparedness as a means to prevent war, adding that he took little stock in talk of a war with Japan.

Brother Slays Brother.

BENTON, TENN., Nov. 11.—During a row which resulted from an argument concerning their younger brother, Jim, Harrison Waters shot and killed his brother, Charley Waters, last night at a saw mill on Smith Creek, near the Louisville and Nashville station of Crumley, according to advices received here today. The shooting occurred in one of the remote parts of Polk County, near the Georgia-Tennessee-Carolina State lines. The three brothers obtained some whisky, it is said, and the two older ones got into a dispute concerning their younger brother.
