HUNDREDS WATCH FIGHT WITH BLAZE IN CHURCH

Firemen Extinguish Flames in Roof of Fulton Baptist After Battle Lasting Hour.

DAMAGE IS PLACED AT $500

Chief Raffo's Men Are Forced Several Times to Return to Alcove for Air and to Escape Smoke Fumes.

All Fulton was thrown into excitement last night when flames were discovered pouring from the roof of the Fulton Baptist Church, Nicholson and Fulton Streets. The church was damaged to the extent of $500.

The fire was discovered by a pedestrian shortly after 9 o'clock. When Engine Companies No. 8 and 2 and Truck Company No. 2 arrived on the scene the blaze was gaining rapid headway and had spread to the four corners of the roof. Firemen were handicapped by a crowd of several hundred people and had difficulty in getting their ladders in place. Battalion Chief J. F. Raffo directed his men to a vantage point in the rear of the church, where they scaled the slate roof and cut an entrance, so that hose might play on the burning rafters in the interior. Firemen then made their way between the ceiling and roof in an endeavor to extinguish the blaze at its origin. After an hour's battle, during which they were forced time and again to return to the alcove in the roof for air and to escape the smoke fumes, the fire was extinguished.

Chief Raffo stated that the timely discovery of the fire and the nature of the roof probably saved the church from burning to the ground. The church had been closed since Sunday, and the cause of the fire is unknown, Chief Raffo said, however, that the blaze probably started from a short circuit of wires that lead to a huge chandelier suspended from the ceiling.

NATIONAL INTEREST SHOWN IN MEMORIAL TO MAURY

T. S. Southgate, of Norfolk, has sent to Mrs. Herbert W. Jackson, treasurer of the Matthew Fontaine Maury Association, a check for $25 as a contribution to the monument fund. This donation was accompanied by a letter, which expressed intense sympathy with the movement to honor the "Pathfinder of the Seas."

Not only are citizens of Virginia beginning to display substantial interest, but from widely scattered communities throughout the nation, men and women, learning of the association's object, have forwarded checks. From California, from Missouri, from New York and other States donations are arriving. A scientist living near Washington, D. C., has given $50 to the cause.

As the association plans to have a memorial elaborate in design, the total sum thus far received is nowhere near the goal set.

SEVERAL WINDOWS BROKEN IN STREET CAR COLLISION

The automobile was driven by J. A. Batten, of the Meyer-Greenfree clothing firm.

Only two passengers were carried by the car and no one was injured. The motorman of the street car, which is of the one-man variety, was temporarily imprisoned, but he left the car after opening the rear door.

Industrial Commission Explains.

The Virginia Industrial Commission has sent out to all insurance carriers and self-insurers a statement which they believe will correct a misunderstanding which exists between the parties involved in the payment of compensation insurance. This statement is to the effect that an award made by the commission confirming an agreement has the same effect as an award made in a contested case and can only be set aside upon the ground of a fraud in its procurement or a mistake in fact.

PLAN TO PRESERVE NATION'S OLDEST PROTESTANT CHURCH AS SACRED VIRGINIA SHRINE

Proposals Approved at Celebration of Two Hundred and Eighty-Ninth Anniversary of St. Luke's, Isle of Wight County—Richmonders Make Visit.

At the celebration yesterday of the 289th anniversary of St. Luke's Church, near Smithfield, the oldest Protestant church in the Western Hemisphere, plans were made for a permanent endowment so as to preserve the ancient structure for the world. The Endowment Association, recently chartered by the State Corporation Commission, has been formally launched for this purpose. It was proposed that the endowment shall be definitely completed by the time of the three hundredth anniversary of the ancient edifice, in May, 1932. Several Richmonders attended the celebration and are interested in the preservation plans.

In spite of unfavorable weather, a large congregation made the annual pilgrimage to the old church, which was erected in 1632 by Hon. Joseph Bridger, one of the first settlers. The annual sermon was preached by Right Rev. Beverley Dandridge Tucker, D. D., Bishop of Southern Virginia, and was followed by celebration of the Communion. Assisting Bishop Tucker were: Right Rev. A. C. Thomson, bishop coadjutor of Southern Virginia; Right Rev. H. H. Covington, rector of St. Paul's Church, Norfolk; Rev. Floyd Cartwright, rector of Christ Church, Smithfield; Rev. J. F. Coleman, rector of St. Paul's Church, Suffolk; Rev. W. A. Brown, D. D., rector of St. John's Church, Portsmouth; Rev. C. P. Holbrook, of Craddock, and Rev. Winfield Shires, of Franklin.

Lunch was served on the ground following which, at a meeting of the association, Bishop Tucker was reelected president, and E. H. Cofer, of Smithfield, treasurer.

Judges to Determine Best Company of Battalion in Meet at William Byrd Park.

A competitive drill between the four companies of the John Marshall High School Cadet Battalion will take place this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at William Byrd Park. The object of this drill is to determine the cadet company which is the best acquainted with military tactics, and can perform the various maneuvers with the highest degree of accuracy. This is in line with the custom of the cadet corps at John Marshall for the past several years. At the close of the spring school session each year the companies of the battalion compete in a drill to determine the best company. The prize for the winner is a silver trophy cup.

According to plans which were announced yesterday, each of the companies will drill separately on the field, and go through the prescribed maneuvers which will be given each captain on the field in the form of a printed letter. Four judges will follow the companies about the field and determine the winner. The judges will be Major Joseph L. Masurier, Major Edwin Conquest, Captain James Earnest and Captain Morgan Mills, Jr. Three of these men were judges at the time company A of the high school won in the competitive drill against the cadets of the Benedictine College.

LAUDS ROTARIANS' WORK FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN

Dr. W. T. Graham Tells What Is Being Done for Relief of Little Sufferers.

An interesting review of the work of the Hospital for Crippled Children from the date of its inception several years ago, when three patients were cared for in the basement rooms of the residence at 214 East Franklin Street, to the present date, when sixty-five little sufferers are receiving was presented before the Rotary Club last night by Dr. W. T. Graham, who has devoted much of his life to the relief of crippled children.

Mr. Graham illustrated his address with a number of lantern slides, showing methods used in the relief of children, with pictures of some of those who had gone through the wonderful treatment which made them whole and well again. Demonstrations were shown of methods of treatment in various hospitals in the United States and in Europe.

The speaker declared that the help given the hospital by the Rotary Club had been of great service, and that the money thus contributed had been used to great advantage. He spoke in terms of praise for the women of the city who give many hours of their time in helping to make the children comfortable and happy, and told of the splendid work of reconstruction now going on through the help of the women who, through various groups, help to brighten the days of the children by reading to them and teaching them to sew and weave and to read. Three days during the week a group of girls, known as the motor corps, take the children out for automobile rides, while another group devotes several afternoons a week to entertaining the children, and still another takes care of the linen and the mending. The surgeons of the city give their services at all times, and even cancel engagements to answer the call of the suffering children.

The women at the heads of the various groups embrace Miss Elizabeth Valentine, Miss Elizabeth Cooke, Miss Isabelle Carter, Miss Fredericka Campbell, Miss Marcuse and Mrs. Franck.

TAKE STEPS TO ORGANIZE CIVILIAN WAR WORKERS

At a meeting held at the Jefferson Hotel yesterday afternoon, a nominating committee, which will report later at a general meeting of war workers, was elected with authority to name candidates for president, secretary-treasurer and members of the executive committee for the proposed service Legion. The executive committee will consist of five from Richmond, and one vice-president from each of the ten congressional districts in the State. It was decided to apply for a State charter as soon as a constitution and a set of by-laws have been drafted.

The nominating committee will shortly confer with Governor Davis with a view to calling a general meeting of all war workers as soon as possible. The Governor is to be asked to preside at the meeting.

The Service Legion is planned as a body similar to the American Legion. As the American Legion commemorates military service, so the Service Legion is to commemorate civilian service in war time.

MAY USE GASOLINE ENGINES ON ELECTRIC CAR LINE

Oliver J. Sands, president of the Richmond-Fairfield Railway Company announced yesterday that interurban electric cars on the line between Richmond and Seven Pines may be individually motorized with gasoline engines. Although the company has taken no definite action in this direction, Mr. Sands said that the plan is being given serious consideration.

The introduction of gasoline motors in this section will be a novelty. Such lines are in operation in many parts of the United States and have proven to be fast, dependable and economical.

During the past few months more than twenty-five families have located at Seven Pines, occupying the houses purchased by the Richmond-Fairfield Railway Company from the Government.

FLOOD FLAYED FOR STAND AGAINST HIGHWAY BONDS

General C. C. Vaughan Makes Sharp Rejoinder to Congressman's Letter Against Issue.

DECLARES HE IS MISINFORMED

Head of Good Roads Association Says Tenth District Representative Jumped at Conclusions and Has His Figures Twisted.

The proposal of the Virginia Good Roads Association to ask the Legislature when it convenes in 1922 to authorize a bond issue for the purpose of building a State highway system of 3,800 miles, has resulted in a controversial exchange of letters between Congressman H. D. Flood, of the Tenth Virginia District, and General C. C. Vaughan, president of the Good Roads Association.

Congressman Flood's letter was occasioned by his receipt of a document sent out by the Virginia Good Roads Association, which contained the association's tentative program with reference to the building of the State highway system through the issuance of bonds. With the program as outlined in the association's document, Congressman Flood takes sharp issue, writing the president of the good roads organization that present economic conditions, which he believes are not likely to improve between now and the convening of the Legislature, do not justify a further increase in the State's bonded indebtedness.

"I cannot agree with the contention of your association that the interest on these bonds can be paid, and the principal liquidated, without an increase in taxation," he writes, and adds that the association's figures bearing on the subject are nothing more than "an intelligent guess" at the most. The Congressman says he considers the present time "peculiarly inappropriate" to advance any proposition, particularly one "for the building of a State highway system," which might result in an increase in taxation. He declares that the "road bureau" now has $12,000,000 for expenditure this year, "more than it has ever spent" and more, Mr. Flood believes, "than it will ever intelligently spend," and will have next year a sum as large "as it can intelligently spend." In conclusion, Congressman Flood says his opinion is that concentrating nearly all the State's available resources for road building in a system of 3,800 miles, leaving over 50,000 miles which would receive little or no attention, would prove an unwise move.

Replying, General Vaughan accuses Congressman Flood of having "jumped at conclusions" in accepting "unreliable information," and denies that "the road bureau" has $12,000,000 for expenditure this year. He gives statistics purporting to show the money the State had available for road improvements in 1919, 1920 and 1921, and insists that the total from both State and Federal sources for the three years is but a quarter million dollars more than the Congressman says the department has on hand for improvements this year. General Vaughan says the amount will be less than $200,000.

The general declares that the proposed bond issue program contains positive provision for the retirement of the bonds at stated periods from current revenues and would have the effect of putting labor back at work, stimulating business and boosting the price of farm products. He dismisses the 53,000 miles of neglected roads, mentioned by the Congressman, as "a new idea." He alludes to certain "propaganda" which he charges as having emanated from the Congressman's office "as rather disappointing."

General Vaughan says that the Legislature of 1922 will be asked for a bond issue of $12,000,000 for road construction in 1922 and 1923, but adds that his association is still of the opinion that $50,000,000 will be needed for the completion of the program.

VIRGINIANS FORM EXCHANGE TO MARKET CABBAGE CROP

The produce raisers of Smyth and Wythe Counties met Friday and organized the Southwest Virginia Co-Operative Exchange for the purpose of marketing the cabbage crop. Nearly all of the farmers of both counties are reported to be interested in the movement, and it is anticipated that during the coming year about 1,200 cars of cabbage will be handled through the co-operative exchange.

The growers will meet the latter part of this week to select men to act as directors of the exchange in applying for a charter from the State Corporation Commission.

V. R. & P. ASKS 7-CENT FARE IN NORFOLK COUNTY

Following the action of the Norfolk City Council in granting an increase in street car fares in that city from 6 to 7 cents, the Virginia Railway and Power Company has applied to the State Corporation Commission for authority to make the same increase in fares on the lines in Norfolk County, to 7 cents per zone. The commission fixed June 6 as the date for a public hearing on the application.

The proposed increase applies only on suburban lines north and east of the Elizabeth River, which means the lines running out of Norfolk. It would not apply on county lines south of the river, running out of Portsmouth, which city has not yet passed on the application of the company for a 7-cent fare. The increase asked for in the extension of what is known as the Money Point line is from 3 to 4 cents.

In its recent decision in the light and power rate case, the State Corporation Commission indicated its belief from its investigation that the deficit in the revenue of the Virginia Railway and Power Company comes from its street railway lines and not from its light and power business.

BANKING CLASSES MAKE GOOD RECORD DURING YEAR

The report of the educational committee of the Richmond Chapter, American Institute of Banking, issued yesterday and covering the year 1920-21, shows that, of the 184 students taking the necessary examinations, only nine failed to meet the requirements. Twenty-eight members qualified for the institute's certificate, making a total of ninety-eight certificate holders in the local chapter, twenty-six with two credits, seventy-five with one credit and thirty-six who have completed the course in elementary banking.

The instructors in the institute and the subjects they taught during the past year follow:

Carter E. Talman, elementary banking; George H. Keesee, money and banking; R. Grayson Dashiell, commercial and banking law; J. H. Binford, political economy; Branch Johnson, public speaking and debate.

REDUCED RAILROAD FARE ASKED FOR U. OF VA. MEN

Application was made yesterday to the State Corporation Commission to order the railroads to give reduced convention fares to members of the University of Virginia Alumni Association who attend the centennial celebration of the university at Charlottesville next week. It was stated that the railroads had been asked to grant the reduced round-trip rate, which amounts to one and a half fare, but had refused.

In the absence from the city of the commissioner in whose department the matter belongs, the application went over until today.

Bound Over to Grand Jury.

Following a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Sunday, Joe White, colored, was bound over to the grand jury of the Henrico County Circuit Court yesterday for a further hearing on charge of larceny. White was arrested in Charlottesville on a warrant charging him with the theft of articles valued at $60.
