ANNIVERSARY DATA.

Tried to get this one on the first page, but met with rebuffs from every source. One cold-blooded guy said they didn't even print the news of Detroit's doings on the first page of that city's papers. If Hugh Jennings' second-story workers had wandered in the wilderness of defeat for lo this generation past and had unexpectedly slipped out a record, wouldn't it go on the first page, though? True, there was an open date, a Sunday, and a deluge mixed in on this most propitious date, but what of it? When our Artless Athletes do get to going they all look alike; indeed, the bigger they are the harder they fall.

M'ALEER TO PLAY HENRY ON FIRST BASE AGAIN

Gabby Street, Who Has Been in Town for Three Days, Will Go Behind the Bat—Speaker Out of Boston Line-up.

By WILLIAM PEET.

Back from the West with a record of twelve defeats and only four victories, the Nationals will entertain the home fans this afternoon in a little encounter with the Boston Red Sox.

The boys on the team from Jim down were glad to get home. They offered no excuses for their poor showing in St. Louis and Cleveland, where each game of the series dropped into the pockets of the rival teams.

"In St. Louis we were not hitting. The Browns played better than they knew how—it was the same in Cleveland," said Manager McAleer. That was about all he had to offer.

Manager Jim and his henchmen are of the opinion that the Naps and Browns will never again get away with such a juicy string of victories as was the case during the last trip.

Both Chicago and Detroit are much faster ball clubs than the Naps and Browns, and against the first named teams the Nationals split even.

"We should have won every game in Detroit," declared Capt. George McBride. "The Tigers were mighty lucky. I'll tell the world that."

There will be another shift in the batting order of the Nationals this afternoon. Manager McAleer is going to give Collegian John Henry one more crack at first base. That is, providing Gabby Street is able to go behind the bat, and Street, who has been in town for the past three days, and who has worked out at the ball park, thinks he will be all right to take his turn.

Henry has been hitting the ball like a fiend the past few days and it looks as though he had at last gained that old confidence, so important to a ball player.

The collegian was behind the bat in all of the Detroit games, and, although suffering from a lame ankle, gave a mighty good account of himself.

Whether or not Kid Elberfeld will replace Bill Cunningham at second base in to-day's game will depend on the shape of Elberfeld's ankle. The pepperbox has been forced to take things easy the past week, and may not be able to play for some time. It is McAleer's intention to give Cunningham a short lay off, as the youngster is worried over his poor showing on the recent trip.

Gabby Street has been in Washington since Wednesday and worked out daily at National Park. The catcher looks to be in splendid condition, and while his thumb is a bit sore, he says that he can go in behind the bat any time Manager Jim so orders.

The Boston Red Sox will not reach town until 8:20 o'clock this morning, making the trip from St. Louis direct. As the Nationals drifted into the Capital at 6:40 last night they will have at least a good night's sleep on their fiery-hoofed rivals.

Tris Speaker, the Boston star, is out of the game on account of illness. This news will bring joy to the hearts of many of our leading baseball fans, as Speaker has the nasty habit of walloping the ball all over the lot in almost every game his team has shown here.

As stated in another column, Manager McAleer passed up both Meloan and Hogan, the outfielders purchased by St. Louis.

Capital fans have been howling bloody murder since this fact was known, claiming that if the club wanted to strengthen it missed a glorious opportunity when these worthies passed over to the Browns.

Whether or not Manager McAleer made a mistake, time alone will tell. The Nationals' boss certainly knew what he was doing, as he has had plenty of time to watch both Meloan and Hogan in harness.

The Washington club stockholders have enough confidence in McAleer to permit him to run the club as he sees fit. McAleer also has free rein in the matter of buying players, therefore the fans should not yelp until it has been found out that somebody is hurt.

To-day's game will start promptly at 4 o'clock. Advance news from the Boston club just before leaving St. Louis states Manager Donovan expects to pitch to-day his young college flinger, Ray Collins, who has always given the Nationals a tough battle.

HUGHES TO PITCH TO-DAY

Manager McAleer stated last night that Tom Hughes would be in the box for the Nationals against Boston this afternoon. The game starts at 4 o'clock.

McAleer Tells Why He Passed Up Players Meloan and Hogan

Asked why he did not make a bid for the services of Outfielders Meloan and Hogan, obtained by the St. Louis Browns from Chicago and Philadelphia, Manager McAleer last night made the following statement:

"I might have had Meloan, but the price demanded by Chicago was more than I thought the player worth. As for Hogan, he did not impress me as being a better ball player than any of the men I am carrying. I don't think Meloan will set the league on fire, either."

Other members of the Washington club say the same thing. They cannot see where the addition of Meloan and Hogan would have helped out a bit.

McGRAW'S GIANTS ARE AGAIN ON TOP

Victory Over Phillies Gives Them Lead in Race.

New York, May 26.—The Giants regained the pennant summit this afternoon by beating the Phillies and crowding them into second place. The score was 5 to 3. Some sharp hitting in the early stages put the Giants out of reach before the Phillies solved Raymond in the eighth and scored two runs. Mathewson finished the game on the local hill. Burns made his first appearance in the box for Dooin's team, and his work made a strong impression. Chief Meyers retired in the third inning with two badly split fingers. Score:

BOSTON DEFEATS DODGERS.

Boston, May 26.—The Rustlers won their first game in fourteen this afternoon, when they took down an easy victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers. The score was 7 to 2. They batted Cy Barger all over the lot. Curtis, for the locals, was invincible. The third inning was their best, three singles and a double and an error netting them a trio of tallies. Score:

JAPS ARE BEATEN ON THE HILLTOP

Ninth-inning Batting Rally Turns the Trick.

TAFT IS UNABLE TO ATTEND

Big Crowd on Hand to See the Orientals in Action and Is Impressed with Amount of Baseball the Little Fellows Show—The Final Score Is 3 to 2.

Washington fans yesterday caught a glimpse of a real Japanese baseball team in action, when Georgetown defeated the Keio University nine on the Hilltop diamond with a rousing batting rally in the ninth inning, final count 3 to 2.

President Taft was scheduled to be there, but at the last minute sent word that Mrs. Taft was holding a lawn party and insisted upon having him at her side.

A crowd of 2,000 persons turned out to see the Japs do battle, and everybody left with the impression that the Orientals know almost as much about our national game as we do.

It has been said that over in Japan, where baseball has been thriving for the past ten years, the natives are sadly lacking in the fine points of the game and are easily caught by moth-eaten tricks. The work of Keio University's team yesterday hardly bears out this assertion. Pitcher Fukuda worked his batters like an old professional. He used his change of pace in fine style, had good speed, and a fine curve ball. Fukuda's control was perfect, not a single Georgetown batter going to first via the pass route.

Know Inside Baseball.

As for quick thinking and inside baseball, the little fellows certainly showed it in almost every inning. Take the eighth inning for instance. Georgetown had already scored two runs, one man was out and second and third loaded. The Jap outfield, instead of playing way back, crawled up to scarcely ten feet behind the infielders. They had it all figured that a long fly would score the man on third any way, and that by playing in close a line drive might be converted into a double play, retiring the side. This is exactly what happened. Davis drove a vicious liner over the shortstop's head, and Centerfielder Takahara made a beautiful catch of it, doubling up Feenan at second.

When it comes to quick action the Japs take the money. In the very first inning Tug Fury, of the Hilltoppers, knocked the ball over the bank in right field, but he got no farther than third base, as the ball was recovered in a flash, and instead of an ordinary home run only went for three bases.

Catcher Miyaka, Shortstop Sasaki, and Centerfielder Takahara were the stars for the visitors. The catcher was sure death on foul flies. In the fifth he ran clear to the grandstand after Hunt's pop-up. How the little fellow ever got under it still remains a mystery.

As for the game itself, Georgetown won by playing better all around baseball. The Hilltoppers outbatted and outfielded the foreigners, and but for an error by Davis might have gained a shut-out.

Coach Sprigman picked the right man when he sent in big Dave White to do the twirling. White kept his six hits well scattered and used good judgment at all times.

The Hilltoppers got a man to third in the first chapter, but could not score him. In the sixth Cogan rapped out a pretty triple and Fury was hit by a pitched ball. No one out, first and third occupied. But the Hilltoppers were unable to score, and it was not until the eighth that they broke into the run column. Hunt started off this inning with a single to center and stole second, he took too big a lead off the bag and was nailed on a lightning throw. Cogan dropped the ball to an unguarded spot in right field and pulled up at second. Fury crashed to the left field fence for a home run, scoring Cogan ahead of him.

Japs Score in Sixth.

The Japs pulled down their only tallies in the sixth. Kusaka started off with a pretty single to right; Goto fanned. Sasaki was safe when Davis fumbled his easy grounder. A single to left by Kauki scored Kusaka, and Miyika rapped out another bingle, sending in Sasaki. Koyami grounded to White, who threw him out at first, and on this play Kauki tried to sneak home, only to be caught by a narrow margin.

Georgetown won the game in the final half of the ninth. An error by Kusaka gave Donnelly a life. White beat out an infield hit and Donnelly raced to third. Hunt drove up a sacrifice fly to Higo and Donnelly sprinted home with the much needed tally.

Serges---Especially the $15 Serge

Every Serge Suit in our line from $10 to $30 is all wool and fast color. If it wasn't, it wouldn't be here. But that isn't the important thing about them. They are made with exceptional care. A properly made Serge is a lasting satisfaction; improperly made, all the worth of wool and strength of color won't make up for it.

Every seam has had tailoring attention; every stitch has been taken with expert skill. They are sewed into permanent shapeliness; not ironed into temporary effects.

THE SAKS SERGE GUARANTEE IS OF SATISFACTION, not only with the weave, but with the workmanship.

And we say "especially the $15 Serge" because it's such an exceptional value for the price. We have never sold so good a Serge Suit for $15 before. Nor have we ever sold so many of them. That's proof of value.

New York, May 26.—Matt Wells, the light-weight champion of England, weighted down with the $15,000 Lord Lonsdale belt and other trophies of victories, arrived here to-day on the liner Cleveland to fill his contract for three fights at the Madison Athletic Club, the first of which will be a bout with Jack Goodman next Friday night. He also has an offer to meet Packey McFarland in Milwaukee.

TALENT HIT HARD AT LOUISVILLE

Bourbon Beau Wins—Favorite Runs Last.

Louisville, May 26.—Bourbon Beau, from the stable of T. Collins, gave the talent one of the saddest bumps it has received this meeting when the son of Star Shoot romped home ahead of Heatherbroom in the feature at Churchill Downs to-day. Off well, Bourbon Beau, well handled by Jockey McCahey, stood off the early pace and came strong on the stretch. Boola Boola, heavily played to-day, ran absolutely last.

The race was believed to be between Boola Boola and Heatherbroom. Breaking in front of her field, Heatherbroom took the lead, but raced herself down setting the pace. Starry Night came with a belated rattle in the stretch and just nosed out Heatherbroom for the place.

On Saturday the Louisville Handicap will be run, in which the best field of the meeting will be scheduled to go to the post. The summaries:
